START VETERAN BONUS LOANS IN CHICAGO TODAY

Let Needy Get Aid First Is Plea.

The United States veterans' bureau is prepared to accept applications for loans on bonus certificates today. War veterans who hold certificates may apply either at the contact offices at 330 South Wells street, or at the Hines hospital, near Maywood. It was announced last night by Noel Jeffrey, assistant manager of the Chicago regional branch of the bureau.

Unemployed veterans and others not in need of assistance or relief are urged by the veterans' bureau officials to delay their applications to enable needy veterans obtain prior relief. It is the desire of the administration at Washington to give priority to needy ex-service men in getting loans, the Chicago officials say that under the law the applications must be accepted as received. Therefore, the officials say, the only way that the poor veterans can be assured of help at once is for veterans "not in dire circumstances" to play the game and give the other fellow a chance.

Gives Rules for Applying.

In order to expedite the new bonus loans Mr. Jeffery makes the following suggestions:

1. Apply as early as possible and carry your discharge papers and certificates, or, in case of previous loans, the loan slips. The loop offices open at 8:30 a. m.

2. Apply, in case of previous loans at veterans' bureau office here or elsewhere, to office of original loan.

3. Apply, in case of previous unrenewed loans from banks, here or elsewhere, directly to Washington, D. C. Do not write to or call at bureau office in the event bonus loan checks are not received within ten days or two weeks. To do so will only delay further the receipt of the loan check.

Explains Interest Rates.

According to Mr. Jeffrey, veterans who have made previous loans, under the old interest rate of 5½ per cent will not have the interest on old loans reduced to 4½ per cent, the new loan rate. However, he said, a veteran who had borrowed $200, for instance, at 5½ per cent under the old plan, and is entitled on a $1,000 certificate to a new loan at 4½ per cent, will receive $40 at 4½ per cent without any deduction for interest due on the old loan. The old interest will continue, however, on the previous borrowing at the old rate.

BONUS BILL BECOMES LAW

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—President Hoover today announced plans to give priority to those in need in granting loans to needy war veterans on their bonus certificates.

The president made known the program of the administration after the veterans' bonus loan bill had become law in spite of his veto.

The final step in the enactment of the legislation was its passage by the senate this afternoon by a vote of 76 to 17. The affirmative total was 14 in excess of the two-thirds required to override a veto by the president.

Passage by the senate placed the measure on the statute books without further formality inasmuch as it went through the house yesterday by a vote of 322 to 79.

Quick Action Pledged.

President Hoover in his comments stressed that the law would be administered as expeditiously as possible, but asked for cooperation in making the loans as much as possible to those in need as has been advocated by the American Legion. The president said that on the basis of a report by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, of veterans in need the additional loans might be held down to one-tenth of the potential liability created under the law.

The potential liability is computed at a total of 712 millions, which, however, includes 223 millions in loans already outstanding. One-tenth of the potential liability would mean additional loans of 171 millions, which would represent a substantial easing of the financing burden involved if as estimated heretofore 75 per cent of the veterans should seek loans amounting to nearly a billion dollars. Under the new law all of the 3,397,000 world war veterans holding bonus certificates are entitled without regard as to need to increase borrowings to 50 per cent of the face value.

LAWYERS NEAR FIST FIGHT AT KIRKLAND TRIAL

Waitress' Story Is Cause of Battle.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ARLENE DRAVES.

Prosecutor John Underwood of Gary advanced on Mr. O'Hara with clenched fists as the Chicago lawyer broke into the story being told by Victoria Leonard, a Gary waitress, in a vain effort to block her testimony. Mr. Underwood was raising his arm to strike when a sharp order from Judge Grant Crumpacker sent him back to his chair.

The waitress' story, picturing Kirkland exhibiting his bloody knuckles to two friends in a Gary restaurant and inciting them to go to the car outside and attack her, followed the testimony of Richard Sturtridge.

Tells of Wild Party.

On the stand for two hours, Sturtridge, a De Pauw university graduate, sketched the scene of dancing, drinking, love making at the Gary house party on last Nov. 30, during which Arlene went for an auto ride, was raped by five young men and left dead at a physician's house.

With his own wife among those sickened by the liquor, young Sturtridge missed seeing some of the revels of the evening and there were gaps in his story on the stand.

No gaps appeared in the waitress story. When she had finished, Mr. Underwood declared the waitress was his strongest witness.

Having once appeared as a witness in a Chicago murder trial, Victoria knew what to expect and was carefully powdered and rouged for this occasion.

On the night of Nov. 29, she said, she was employed in "John's place," a lunchroom at Thirty-ninth street and Broadway, in Gary.

Kirkland and Chums Drop In.

Q.—Did you see Virgil Kirkland that night? A.—Yes, he and Paul Barton and David Thompson came in about 1:30 a. m. and ordered fifteen hamburger sandwiches.

Q.—How long were they around the restaurant? A.—About half an hour. They were in and out from the restaurant to the car.

Q.—Did they go anywhere else? A.—Yes, to the washroom. They had blood on their hands and asked John for soap to clean themselves up.

Q.—Did Thompson or Barton talk to Kirkland?

The witness answered in the negative, and Mr. Underwood's face fell. Defeated in his effort to bring out Kirkland's conversation, the prosecutor asked a few less relevant questions and turned the witness over to the defense.

O'Hara Precipitates Clash.

"What about Kirkland's blood stained hands?" Mr. O'Hara began.

"It was this way," Victoria explained. "Kirkland came back from the car and showed his hands to the other two and said—"

MR. O'HARA — Wait a minute, where were you then?

MR. UNDERWOOD—No, no, don't interrupt. Let her answer the question. You put the question to her.

MR. O'HARA—Yes, and you put the answer in her mouth before this trial began.

MR. UNDERWOOD — What's that you said?

The tall, sandy haired prosecutor was instantly on his feet. With flushed face and clenched fists he took three long strides which brought him eye to eye with the shorter O'Hara, who had also risen.

MR. UNDERWOOD—You apologize now or——

JUDGE CRUMPACKER—Mr. Underwood, go back to your place and sit down. Disregard the

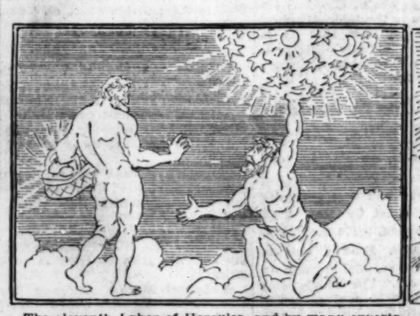
Capone, Sentenced, Faces More Woe

THE APPLE HAS PLAYED A BUSY ROLE IN TRADITION, MYTHOLOGY AND HISTORY

It was an apple that tempted Eve. Her curiosity got the better of her judgment and, as a consequence, all mankind has been obliged to suffer a penalty ever since. If you notice occasionally that things are going wrong with you, this is the reason.

A golden apple was the beauty prize awarded by Paris to decide which of three local beauties was the fairest. He gave it to Venus, and the other two contending beauties, Minerva and Juno, who only got place and show, were so sore that they conspired against Paris with such success that they brought on the Trojan war. There was never any doubt as to the causes of that war.



The eleventh Labor of Hercules, and by many experts regarded as the most difficult, was the capture of the golden apples of the Hesperides. He enlisted the aid of Atlas, then engaged in the monotonous job of holding up the heavens—a twenty-four hour a day job with no time off. Hercules held the heavens while Atlas found the apples. Then Atlas didn't want to take back the burden, but Hercules asked him to hold it a minute while he got a pad to ease his shoulders. Unsuspectingly, Atlas fell for this, and Hercules gave him the laugh and betook his departure.

The story of William Tell and the apple is easily recalled. A local bailiff named Gessler, probably a member of the city hall crowd, compelled William to shoot an apple offen his son's head. The first shot was successful and William didn't have to use the second arrow. He retained this and the practice he had gained in hitting the apple was so good that later he used the spare on Mr. Gessler's Adam's apple, completely ruining that gentleman permanently.

Now we come to one of the most famous apples in history. One day Sir Isaac Newton was sitting out in the orchard thinking or, perhaps, reading. History is vague on this point. However, it doesn't matter. While thus engaged, an apple fell down. Putting two and two together, Sir Isaac discovered the law of gravity. Nobody had ever noticed it before, although it had been known for some time that apples fell down and not sideways or up.

Now we come to the part apples are playing in this modernistic age. On many sidewalks throughout the land unemployed veterans are offering apples for sale, thereby acquiring the means of livelihood. They say an apple a day keeps a doctor away. Think of how many doctors a million apples a day keep away. It is staggering!

"Jim" Reed Re-acts Bridge Game Killing

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 27.—(AP)—The Bennett bridge game slaying was reënacted today before the jury. The chief actors were former Senator James A. Reed, chief of defense counsel, and Francis O'Sullivan, a member of the defense staff.

JAMES A. REED.

The silver haired ex-senator, a pistol in his hand, struggled and tussled with O'Sullivan while the 12 men who are trying Mrs. Myrtle A. Bennett for the murder of her wealthy husband on Sept. 29, 1929, looked on.

The purpose of the attorneys was to prove that the two shots that ended Bennett's life might have been fired accidentally during a struggle with his wife.

From Deputy Coroner Stanley M. Hall, state witness, Reed drew a statement that the shots could have been fired accidentally.

Dr. Hall testified Bennett was shot just below the left arm and in the back. He identified the blood stained and powder marked polo shirt worn by Bennett. Mrs. Bennett broke down and wept as the shirt was passed among the jury.

Questioned by Reed.

The deputy coroner, under questioning by Reed, would not hazard an opinion as to whether the powder marks proved the shots were fired at close range, as contended by the defense, in contrast to the state's theory that Bennett was shot as he attempted to leave the Bennett apartment while his wife pursued him.

For the third time Charles Hofman took the stand and related the events in the Bennett apartment that led to the shooting. He was a player in the game with his wife. He related that Bennett had opened with a spade bid, that Mrs. Bennett had raised the contract to four spades, which Hofman doubled, and that in the play Bennett was set two tricks. Mrs. Bennett called across to her husband: "You're a bum bridge player," whereupon Bennett leaped to his feet, leaned over, and slapped his wife's face "good and hard" five or six times. Mrs. Bennett rose, screaming hysterically.

Bennett Threatens to Leave.

"Bennett said he was going to leave," said Hofman. "I don't know where he was going. He was prancing back and forth like a crazy man."

Hofman said Bennett had "bawled him out," when he suggested an apology to Mrs. Bennett was in order. He quoted Bennett as saying:

"Let her alone, she has those brain storms often." "I stood there, I was absolutely paralyzed," Hofman testified. Sharp clashes between the prosecution, defense, and trial judge frequently interrupted Hofman's testimony.

For the third time since Hofman was placed on the stand the jury was

GETS 6 MONTHS IN JAIL; BLOW TO GANG POWER

JUDGE WILKERSON.

Promptly following the sentencing of Capone to six months in the county jail for contempt of court the news trickled out of Mr. Johnson's offices that Capone is confronting only the first of his troubles with the government. It was reported, quite unofficially, that income tax investigators are completing the network of evidence which will result in the indictment of Capone. If Mr. Johnson maintains the "100 per cent" standard of successful convictions thus far achieved, Capone is regarded as a certainty for Leavenworth penitentiary.

Gangster Power on Wane.

That the wane of gangster authority in Chicago is apparent appears in the legal processes now at work. Judge Wilkerson, in sentencing Capone to jail for six months, indicated that this sentence should begin before July.

Before the release of Capone at Christmas time federal authorities believe an indictment will be returned charging the gang boss with failure to account to Uncle Sam for enormous illicit profits.

So far United States Attorney Johnson's income tax war against the hoodlums has set the "100 per cent standard." His war upon hoodlums has had these results:

RALPH CAPONE, sentenced to three years in prison.

FRANK NITTI, serving eighteen months in prison.

TERRY DRUGGAN, pleaded guilty, not sentenced.

FRANKIE LAKE, pleaded guilty, not sentenced.

This evidence that the Capone gang is skidding from its pinnacle was augmented yesterday by the ruling of Secretary of Labor Doak, who held that Tony [Mops] Volpe, another of Al's captains, must be deported.

Not only hoodlums but public officials have been gathered in the tax net. County Assessor Gene Oliver is under a three year sentence; State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien must serve eighteen months. Contractors who fattened on sanitary district largess in the days of President Tim Crowe are indicted but not tried.

The power of the United States government to deal with the Capone gang and effect its gradual disintegration, authorities believe, has been demonstrated.

How Capone Was Sentenced.

The sentencing of Capone terminated a dramatic scene in the courtroom of Judge Wilkerson and the judgment came at the end of a 15 minute oral decision of the court which permitted of no doubt as to its conclusion.

The chief public enemy knew his fate even before his counsel, Benjamin P. Epstein, had concluded his final address to the court, for Judge Wilkerson sharply cut off the attorney at frequent intervals and assailed Capone's failure to take the stand and state the facts of his illness in Florida two years ago. An admittedly false affidavit made after this illness obtained a stay of Capone's appearance before the federal grand jury from Jan. 12 to Jan. 29, 1929.

Gangster Shows Anxiety.

The gangster, attired in a flashy brown suit, having worn blue and gray, respectively, the first two days, nervously shifted his position as the court recited the decision with vehemence.

"Upon the record as it stands in

RUNAWAY HORSE MEETS MATCH IN RADIO AND AUTO

Employing up to date methods, with the aid of two modern inventions, the radio and the automobile, two policemen last night captured a runaway horse after it had knocked down and seriously injured Mrs. Magdalene Jankowski, 66 years old, of 2308 Lister avenue.

Mrs. Jankowski was standing in the alley at the rear of her home when the horse, drawing a junk wagon, became frightened and dashed away, hurling her to the ground. Neighbors notified the police and an alarm was broadcast over the police radio.

Sergts. Arthur Bauman and Thomas Burke, of the Shakespeare avenue station, cruising in their flivver, picked up the message and sped to Lister avenue in time to see the runaway horse. Burke drove the car alongside the animal. Bauman stood on the running board, grabbed the reins and halted the horse's flight. Later William Astrinsky, 55 years old, 1250 North Daven avenue, driver of the horse, was arrested.

'MOVING MONEY' DRIVE TO SPUR AURORA TRADE

A test to show what moving money can accomplish in speeding prosperity will be inaugurated on Monday by Aurora banks with the issuance of 200 cashier's checks which are to be kept in circulation throughout March.

Each check is to be used in the payment of an obligation, and will have room for 100 signatures. Five prizes of $1 each will be given daily by the various banks to the holders of the checks shown to have figured in most transactions during the preceding 24 hours.

The campaign, called the "moving money" drive, is sponsored by the Aurora Advertising club and has been taken up by all the service and civic clubs.

Landlord, Do You Recognize Mr. Carlson?

Since last Thursday Mr. M. E. Carlson, a dealer in real estate, whose home is in Minneapolis, Minn., has been studying the façades of buildings in the vicinity of Fullerton avenue and Clark street.

MR. CARLSON.
[Tribune Photo.]

For hours together Mr. Carlson has scrutinized with unabated desire the forms of architecture prevalent in this neighborly region of Fullerton avenue and Clark street. In his mind there are doubtless stored away countless details of mansard roofs, projected through the defenseless centuries by architects of Bourbon masterpieces, of Elizabethan cornices, of Florentine piazzas, Athenian stoas, and north side delicatessens.

He Becomes an Expert.

He probably knows more about the contours of buildings in the community about Fullerton avenue and Clark street than Messrs. Fullerton and Clark in person.

Mr. Carlson has studied, to repeat, every front yard, every doorway, every roof, every window, every front step, every joist and brick and clapboar and pillar and post and newel and scroll and doorknob and push button and lintel and sash and threshold. Neighbors, M. E. Carlson of Minneapolis, Minn., hasn't missed a tuck point. [Do you know what is a tuck point? Well, it's the mortar between the bricks that sticks out.] Mr. Carlson hasn't missed a tuck point in that whole community.

The Police Hear About It.

Yesterday he inquired his way to a police station. He explained that he was M. E. Carlson of Minneapolis, Minn.

"And," said he, "I brought my trunk and traveling bag and some doo-fods and one thing and another to Chicago on Thursday."

"All right," said the police sergeant, "you interest me strangely. Go on."

"Thank you," said Mr. Carlson to the sergeant. "I engaged a lodging in a house in the neighborhood of Fullerton avenue and Clark street."

"Indeed?" said the sergeant.

"Yes, indeed," said Mr. M. E. Carlson of Minneapolis, Minn., "and I have need of the trunk and the traveling bag and the doo-fods and one thing and another. And the rent is paid in advance."

So, if a landlord in the vicinity of Fullerton avenue and Clark street is ahead a trunk and a bag, some doo-fods and one thing and another, and if he will throw his eye up to the top of this item, he will be richly rewarded by seeing the portrait of the owner.

this case there is nothing the court can do but adjudge the respondent guilty as charged in the information," said the court. Clerk Joseph O'Sullivan and Bailiff Frank Otto arose and approached the bench, heralds of bad news for Capone.

Capone sat motionless, with rapt countenance, like his attorneys. Silence fell over the crowded courtroom and Judge Wilkerson continued:

"And as punishment for the contempt, the respondent shall be confined in the Cook county jail for a period of six months."

Length of Term a Blow.

Capone appeared stunned by the length of the sentence, but he pulled himself together, smiled broadly, and began chewing his gum. "If the judge thinks it's correct, he ought to know," he said as he left the courtroom. "You can't overrule the judge."

Judge Wilkerson recited the facts in the case, how Capone, on March 11, 1929, made an application for postponement of his appearance before the grand jury in a series of liquor violation cases and submitting at that time an affidavit stating:

"'That the respondent was then under professional treatment, and from Jan. 13, 1929, had been suffering from broncho-pneumonial pleurisy, with effusions of fluid in the chest cavity, and for six weeks had been confined to his bed at his home on Palm Island and had been out of his bed only for ten days last past.

Dangerous to Leave Florida.

"'His physical condition was such that it would be dangerous for him to leave the mild climate of southern Florida and go to Chicago, and that to do so would entail a grave risk of a relapse, which might result in his death from recurrent pneumonia.'

"The doctor [Kenneth Phillips] said he did not pay much attention to the affidavit when it was dictated by the lawyer. There is no contention, however, by the respondent, that he did not understand the allegations of the affidavit. On the contrary, he adopted it and sent it to Chicago to be used for the purpose indicated. Aside from the opinion of the doctor as to what was the matter with the respondent there were certain averments of fact in the affidavit which could not have escaped the attention of any one who had given casual consideration to the language.

"Dr. Phillips' testimony, of course, must be considered in the light of the telegram he sent to Dr. Omens [Capone's Chicago physician], in which he characterized the sickness of the respondent as not serious."

Not Confined to Bed.

The court then reviewed the testimony of Capone's two nurses, Ann Fagan and Nora Hawkins, both of whom left the Capone house by the last week of January. He recalled that against the testimony of these nurses that Capone did not leave his bed while they were there, "the evidence established beyond all possibility of doubt that during the month of February the respondent was not confined to his bed."

"The evidence shows during that period," he continued, "frequent attendance at the race track, shows trips in an airplane, shows a boat trip, and, taking all of this evidence, it is perfectly clear that, after at least the second of February [the airplane trip to Bimini], it could not be truthfully stated that he was confined to his bed, and that the statement made on March 5 that he had been out of bed only ten days last past was glaringly false."

Failed to Obey Court.

Referring to the false representation to the court for a postponement, Judge Wilkerson said:

"The point in this case is the effect of conduct of that kind upon the administration of justice. The situation would not have been changed, is not changed, by the action the court took with reference to the document. The point is that instead of obeying the process of the court, this affidavit, which contained false statements, was made and presented.

"The court deals with litigants, witnesses and jurors in only one way, and that is through the process of the court, and when that process is issued it is to be respected, it is to be obeyed, it is not to be trifled with, it is not to be flouted."

Attorney Epstein attempted to show that Capone was without knowledge of the facts stated in the affidavit and colloquy ensued between him and the court:

EPSTEIN—It is fundamental in the law of contempt that before one can be charged with a contemptuous act he must be shown to have had knowledge of the acts on which the contempt charge is predicated.

THE COURT — The affidavit was prepared in a law office, with a doctor and the respondent present.

EPSTEIN—He testified before the grand jury that he did not read it.

THE COURT—He hasn't said it here. He adopted it and defended it in this proceeding. The whole attitude of the defense has been an attempt to defend the truth of the affidavit, thus aggravating the offense.

No Word from Capone.

The defense attorney declared that the only positive testimony to the effect that Capone attended the races during February had been discredited, and Judge Wilkerson replied:

"The respondent has said nothing on this subject. In response to the rule entered here he has vouchsafed no information to the court as to whether he went to the races."

An ironic smile played upon the features of the judge as Attorney Epstein declared:

"There is no exertion in sitting at the races in that warm, tropical climate. As a matter of fact, physicians down there prescribe it."

Defense a Lost Cause.

The attorney asserted that the United States attorney's office didn't know what to do with Capone when he came here, that the Volstead act [Capone testified as to booze conditions] provided immunity for one testifying before the grand jury. Apparently realizing that the defense was a lost cause, he continued:

"Surely, your honor, the fact that the assistant district attorney admitted that Capone's appearance was not urgent, and the fact that he did appear on the date set by your honor, should have some weight in mitigation."

Prosecutor Jacob Grossman declared that the fact of Capone's ultimate appearance was not material, and he referred to the sentence of Harry F. Sinclair to six months for contempt.

"That charge grew out of the shadowing of jurors," he said. "The evidence showed that Sinclair had nothing to do with the shadowing, and that even the jurors were unaware of the attempt. None was shown to have been approached or intimidated.

"The Supreme court held that the tendency of the act must be considered. If people can do as they please, soon the processes of the court will be nullified, the business of the court thrown into confusion, and the court itself held in contempt."

Judge Wilkerson overruled a motion for a new trial, but granted a supersedeas, with Capone's $5,000 bond to stand, permitting an appeal. He declared, however, that he was restricting the ordinary provisions of a supersedeas in order that the case might be disposed of by the end of the court term, July 1. Unreasonable delay, he said, would destroy the effect of the punishment.

Only thirty days was permitted for the filing of a bill of exceptions, which means, according to the prosecutors, that the case will be disposed of by the April term of the Circuit Court of Appeals. Since wide discretion is permitted federal judges in contempt matters, there being no statutory limit on the fines and sentences that may be imposed, it is believed that Capone's chances of a reversal by the Appellate court are slight.

The gangster must appear again before Judge Wilkerson on Monday, when the order will be entered and a new bond provided. On Wednesday he is scheduled to appear before Judge Frank Padden of the Criminal court on a vagrancy charge.

Ready for Vagrancy Trial.

"I shall be very glad to try Capone on the vagrancy charge," said Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne yesterday. "He has had no legitimate occupation for years, and I believe that in view of his record, we can make a good showing against him."

However, because the Three Fingered Jack White murder case, scheduled for Monday, is to go ahead, Prosecutor Ditchburne said the Capone vagrancy case will have to be continued.

United State's Attorney Johnson gave full credit to Mr. Grossman for his successful prosecution of the Capone case, and praised the manner in which the trial was conducted by Judge Wilkerson.

"Custody of Al Capone for six months does not present any serious problem. The Cook county jail has a set of rules which apply equally to all federal prisoners committed there. These rules will not be changed because of the presence of Capone. He probably will be a 'ractable prisoner, especially after he finds that he is being treated just like any other prisoner. He will not be abused, neither will he be glorified."

DENIES WHITE'S PLEA TO ESCAPE MURDER TRIAL

Judge Sets Gunman's Case for Monday.

CRIMINAL COURT.

John Dondalski and Mas... Blank, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in Pontiac reformatory; Rocco Belcastro, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory; John Backosky, burglary, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Peter Schwaba.

William J. ["Three Fingered Jack"] White, one of the leading public enemies listed by the Chicago crime commission, yesterday lost his fight in Judge Joseph Sabath's Criminal court to avoid trial on a revived murder charge. After hearing arguments from Attorneys W. W. O'Brien and W. W. Smith in behalf of White, who contended that the state had abandoned the prosecution of the defendant when an order striking the case was entered in 1929, the judge refused to quash the indictment.

WILLIAM J. WHITE.

The selection of a jury for the case will be started Monday morning. The judge refused to hear any plea for a continuance on account of Leo V. Brothers' murder trial being scheduled to start in his court on Tuesday morning.

Orders Trial for White.

"White is entitled to a trial," said the judge. "He has been in jail for several months and if he is innocent, he should be discharged. If, on the other hand, he is guilty, the public is entitled to see that he is justly punished.

"The White case was set for trial first and is entitled under the rules of law to precedence in this court. It will be tried starting Monday and the Brothers murder case will follow immediately. The other cases pending on my call will then be tried in regular order."

Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne told the judge that the state will ask the death penalty for White.

Accused of Killing Policeman.

White is to be tried for the murder of Policeman Edward Pflaume of Bellwood. The murder occurred on Dec. 13, 1925, in front of the Mannheim inn when the policeman tried to arrest White and a man named Johnston also an ex-convict, as robber suspects. Johnston and the policeman were killed in a shooting affray.

White was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment. The Supreme court, however, after debating the case for two years, ordered a reversal of the judgment and held that, under the evidence at the trial White could have been guilty only of manslaughter.

Attorney Cline C. Brosius Is Sued for Divorce

Cline C. Brosius, an attorney and former director in several south side banks, was sued for divorce yesterday in the Circuit court by Mrs. Irene Brosius, 33 years old, 10170 South Seeley avenue. Mrs. Brosius charges cruelty, drunkenness, adultery and desertion in her bill. The couple were married Aug. 1, 1917, and separated Feb. 1, 1927. Attorney Brosius has offices at 111 West Monroe street.

HELD FOR PLANE CRASH.

Edward Kennedy, 20 years old, 6244 Dorchester avenue, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bonds of $5,000 on a charge of malicious mischief by Judge Francis Borrelli. He was accused of intentionally causing the crash of the airplane of Pierce O'Carroll, 6332 South Kilpatrick avenue. O'Carroll was slightly hurt.

Volpe, Capone Aid, Ordered Deported by Secretary Doak

Tony ["Mops"] Volpe, Capone minion, was ordered deported to Italy yesterday. The necessary papers were signed in Washington by Secretary of Labor Doak. A shipment of 125 deported aliens will leave Chicago tonight for Ellis Island, but the Volpe order will be too late to include him in their ranks, the officials said.

The gangster ran afoul of the immigration laws when he flew from Cuba to the United States in company with City Sealer Dan Serritella, Thompson cabinet member and Capone lieutenant; Ald. William V. Pacelli, former Ald. Albert Prignano, and Jack Guzik, Capone's chief lieutenant. Volpe's trip was considered an illegal reëntry because he was previously convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude. The crime was counterfeiting war savings stamps.

Attorney May Seek Writ.

It is probable that another shipment of undesirables will be gathered together within two months and Volpe will be included in it unless he can institute legal proceedings to prevent it. His attorney was said to be considering habeas corpus action to stay the execution of the Doak order.

Director S. D. Smith of the Chicago immigration office started the action against Volpe some months ago and lawyers took the case to the labor department at Washington. A board of review in the capital held secret sessions and the final decision rested with the secretary. He made it public yesterday.

Must Be Surrendered.

Volpe is now at liberty on $10,000 bonds and when the department here receives official word of the action it will notify his bondsmen that he must be surrendered. He will be kept under close surveillance until he boards the guarded train that will take him to Ellis Island, from whence he will sail for Italy.

Mr. Smith said yesterday that he expects a number of impoverished aliens to take advantage of an order issued this week by Mr. Doak, under which the immigrant department will send the poor to their native countries at its expense. "Whole families can take advantage of the opportunity," explained Smith, "but they will not be able to return to the United States."

Office of Public Defender Restored by County Board

The county board today will adopt its 1931 budget appropriating, approximately $47,500,000. During a final study of the appropriations at a meeting last night in the Hotel Sherman the commissioners decided to restore an item of $26,000 to finance the office of public defender. This item had been tentatively eliminated from the budget early in the week.

Rail Switchman Wins $30,000 for Lost Leg

A jury in Superior Judge Caylor's court yesterday awarded damages of $30,000 to John Bartosik, 42 years old, 4803 South Paulina street, a railroad switchman. Bartosik testified that he lost a leg when he was thrown beneath a freight car while employed by the Chicago River and Indiana railroad.

Ropes Off Share of Bed; His Wife Gets a Divorce

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—"My husband," testified Mrs. Gertrude Doehr Sommers in divorce court here today, "said that I took up too much room in our bed, so he placed a rope running from the head board to the foot board of the bed and gave me a black eye whenever I crossed over to his side." Judge Edward M. Yeomans granted her a divorce from William Sommers.

NEW YORK ALKY WAR TAKES LIFE OF ANOTHER MAN

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The east side "alky" war flared anew tonight and Mariano Alonzo was shot dead.

An automobile trailed him. When it was within a dozen feet of him, it paused and shots poured from it, striking Mariano full in the chest.

When police arrived shortly afterward a woman ran forward and dropped beside the body.

"Let me kiss him just once more," she moaned. "I'll never see him again."

A week ago Aces Mazza, presumed to head a gang of liquor peddlers, was shot dead on the street by two men.

VISIONS WORLD TRADE ROUTE TO CHICAGO SHORE

City Future Seaport of Midwest, Klein Says.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Chicago was pictured last night as one of the world's great seaports, with the completion of the Illinois waterway two years hence, and middle west manufacturers were advised to gird up their loins and go after world trade.

DR. JULIUS KLEIN.

Any theory that America's prestige in world business has waned during the depression was refuted by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce. Speaking at a dinner at the Hotel La Salle, he said the share of the United States in the world's foreign trade has not declined, although in common with other nations it has fallen off, and that no grounds exist for any pessimism over world customers.

Illinois Has Vital Stake.

Dr. Klein pointed out that Chicago is 1,000 miles from the ocean but closer to world trade routes than every salt water port, and that Illinois, which sold $238,000,000 of goods abroad in 1929, has a vital stake as hundreds of thousands of workers in the midwest are dependent for their living on the foreign market.

Other experts testified that export business is looking up—a good item of news on unemployment—and the advantages of Chicago as a world distributing center were stressed.

The dinner was the closing chapter of a one day's foreign and domestic trade convention at the La Salle under the auspices of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, the Illinois Manufacturers' Costs association and the United States department of commerce. Some 400 representatives from this and nearby states attended.

Sixth State in Exports.

"Illinois manufacturers," said Dr. Klein, "are more vitally affected by our foreign trade than are those in most other states, since Illinois ranks sixth in the value of its exports. It may be 1,000 miles from the sea geographically, but economically it is a lot closer to the world's trade routes than many a region washed by saltier water than Lake Michigan's.

"The farsighted business men of the territory realize the great significance, the actual and potential value of foreign markets. They know that demand for American merchandise in Sweden, in China, may mean sandwiches in the dinner pail of a worker in Chicago or Milwaukee or Joliet.

"Hundreds of thousands of men and women in this area of the inland ports are dependent in one way or another upon foreign markets for a livelihood. The stake of manufacturers, farmers, distributors and transportation agencies is, perhaps, greater than we might realize."

View of a Manufacturer.

One impressive utterance came from H. H. Fisher of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., who testified to a practical experience of Chicago's present advantages in the world trade routes.

"The company I represent," he said, "had its first executive export office in Chicago. We moved to New York with the idea of improved control of shipping, but after six years of trial we moved back to Chicago. The serious handicap was not shipping, but in being so far away from our factories. It meant a long and expensive journey to chase orders at the works and also to present our frequent demands for special design or new models to better meet our foreign competitors. This experience should convince the doubting that the supposed handicap of being located in the middle west is less real than imagined."

Chicago Shovels in Greece.

Shovels made in Chicago today are digging on a project in Athens, Greece, for which Solon shouted in vain 2,500 years ago, according to G. E. Hines of Ulen & Co., an engineering concern of New York and Lebanon, Ind. He exhibited four reels of pictures of a $23,000,000 water works system his company is installing at Athens and Piræus, Greece.

Talkie movies to promote salesmanship and civilization were expounded by John E. Otterson, president of Electrical Research Products, Inc., of New York, who exhibited eight films on this new medium of teaching.

Opposes Cutting Employé's Pay.

All this was a background for the utterances of Dr. Klein on world trade, that American prestige is shown by recent statistics relatively unimpaired. Before the Executives' club at luncheon, he urged against cutting pay rolls as a means of combating the slump.

"The feeling is unwarranted," said Dr. Klein, "that the United States faces the prospect of losing its preeminent position in the world's trade. Comparing our share in the imports of the world markets in 1913 as against 1930 we discover these interesting figures:

"In Canada our proportion of the total imports rose in that time from 64.8 per cent to 66.1 per cent. In Brazil the shift was from 15 to 24 per cent. In Chile, from 16 to 33 per cent; in British India, from 2½ to 8 per cent, in Japan from 17 to 32 per cent. Even in the old world itself our share of the imports of some of the markets has not suffered so badly.

Slight Increase in France.

"In the case of France, we had 10.6 per cent of the total import trade before the war and we increased that slightly to 10.8 per cent last year. In Italy our share has risen from 14 per cent to nearly 16. In Germany and the United Kingdom our proportions have fallen slightly—in the former from about 15 per cent to 12½ per cent, and in the United Kingdom from 18 to 14 per cent."

The 10 per cent of American goods sold abroad was discussed by Dr. Klein, who pointed out that some Illinois products run far above this figure. He said:

"In 1927 agricultural implements were produced in Illinois to the value of $102,000,000. The wage earners in this industry were 18,000 and their pay rolls more than $26,000,000. Thus in one industry nearly 9,000 wage earners with a buying power of $13,000,000 are directly dependent upon export sales.

"In 1929 exports of merchandise from Illinois were valued at $239,000,000. About $70,000,000 of agricultural implements were shipped to foreign markets, $43,000,000 of packing house products, $10,000,000 of corn, cornstarch, and wheat flour. All this is a part of the stake Illinois has in American export trade."

BEAUTY OF WORLD'S FAIR LIVES AGAIN

A NIGHT LETTER from Ring Lardner

East Hampton, L. I., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Subscribers to these dispatches have complained bitterly in the last few days that they were too short. Well, brothers, the editor of the magazines for which I used to write so erotically will tell you that I never crowded out any of the advertising matter and brevity was my slogan. Furthermore, the public is hard to please. I understand that Mr. Coolidge has never been scolded for this fault.

INTERIOR WORK SOON TO START ON 1893'S FINE ARTS BUILDING

Bids soon will be called for on restoration work for the old 1893 World's Fair Fine Arts building in Jackson park at an estimated cost of $3,000,000. That was announced yesterday by J. R. Van Pelt, acting director of the Museum of Science and Industry.

When the interior has been completed, work will begin on moving into the building examples of the evolution of scientific and industrial accomplishment. It is estimated that the exhibits will be worth $50,000,000. The development of locomotive construction, to be symbolized in the largest single exhibit, will be shown by 10 full sized locomotives, supplemented by smaller models.

The work of restoring the exterior of the building with Indiana limestone has been carried on for a year by the R. C. Wieboldt company. The total cost of restoring the building was estimated at $7,000,000. A bond issue of $5,000,000 was approved by voters of the south park district in 1926.

The industrial museum has also been endowed for $3,000,000 by the Rosenwald Foundation to be applied to the maintenance of a museum staff and for exhibits. More than a hundred persons are to be employed. Mr. Van Pelt said yesterday that 400 leading corporations already had promised to furnish displays at their own expense.

The exterior of the building will retain its original dimensions. Restored in limestone, and topped by a terra cotta dome, 180 feet high, the structure presents a completed appearance, except for a large hole on the west end of the central pavilion. Through that the locomotives will be pushed into the building.

The total cost of the interior work will be within $4,000,000, exclusive of exhibits, Mr. Van Pelt said. Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, architects, could reveal no definite plans as to the interior decorations.

SLAYS WOMAN AND THEN KILLS SELF IN HOME

Frank Conforti, 30 years old, shot and fatally wounded his former housekeeper, Mrs. Rose Matika, 26, mother of two children, and then killed himself last night in his second floor apartment at 3650 West Ohio street. Two of his four children heard the shots.

Conforti and his wife separated last autumn and Mrs. Matika, also separated from her husband, consented to move upstairs from her flat and act as his housekeeper. Two weeks ago her husband, John, returned, and effected a reconciliation. Mrs. Matika left Conforti.

Last night Mrs. Matika entered Conforti's apartment. There were two shots. Sergt. William Granger of the Austin avenue station, found Conforti dead, and Mrs. Matika, with a bullet wound in the head. She died at the Franklin Boulevard hospital.

PACKER'S HEIR AND FRIEND HELD ON RAPE CHARGES

Evanston Youths Accused by Two Women.

Charged with raping two young women, Charles Simpson, 20 years old, 913 Grove street, Evanston, heir to $40,000, and Warren Thompson, also 20, of 1605 Ridge avenue, Evanston, were held to the grand jury in bonds of $20,000 each by Magistrate Harry H. Porter in Evanston yesterday. Simpson furnished bail and was released, while his companion was held.

The complainants against the youths were Miss Ruth Stantz, 19 years old, of 1230 Chicago avenue, Evanston, a maid, and Mrs. Angeline Balinski Wieland, 25 years old, of 2508 Logan boulevard.

Women's Stories of Attacks.

According to Miss Stantz, she met Thompson and Simpson on Feb. 2 and two days later accompanied them, supposedly for a visit to a roadhouse. They drove her to Niles Center, north of Church street, she said, then halted their car and after striking her because she resisted, attacked her.

Mrs. Wieland said she became acquainted with Thompson and Simpson in a drug store at Lawrence and Kedzie avenues, where she works, and accepted their invitation to an auto ride on Feb. 9.

They stopped their car at virtually the same spot as in the Stantz case, and raped her after beating her when she resisted, she charged. Neither of the defendants testified. They were represented by counsel.

Thompson is a son of James W. Thompson, a salesman for a shirt company. Simpson is a grandson of the late Robert Simpson, pioneer operator of a packing house in Evanston. According to friends he will come into an inheritance of $40,000 on his 21st birthday under his grandfather's will.

Held as Girl's Assailant.

Joseph Kubica, 19 years old, 4215 Haddon avenue, was arrested last night by Cragin police and identified as the youth who tried to assault Miss Anna Klimek, 20 years old, of 2141 North 72d court, Elmwood Park, near Dickens street and Newcastle avenue, late Thursday night.

The girl had just left the Mars Candy company 2019 North Oak Park avenue, where she is employed, when her assailant seized her and clapped his hand over her mouth. Miss Klimek bit his finger and he fled. Last night Sergts. Charles Marine and John Lancaster took Kubica into custody. He was identified by the girl. One of his fingers showed teeth marks. Kubica denied the charges.

As a result of the attempted raping of Miss Klimek, officials of the candy company posted armed guards around the plant last night to protect the employés. More than 1,200 girls are employed, many of them on night shifts. Only a week ago Mrs. Adeline Heck, a young mother, who also works at the factory, was kidnaped and raped while on her way home from work.

WOMAN PHONES HOTEL CLERK, "I'M JUMPING TO DEATH," AND DOES

"Good morning," said the clerk.

"Good morning," a woman's voice answered. "This is room 1503. I am going to jump out of the window."

The clerk and bell boys raced to the fifteenth floor. Room 1503 stood open. They peered out of the window. In the courtyard was the body of the woman who had telephoned. She was Mrs. Florence A. McPartland, 35, a widow with two small children, a boy and a girl.

She had been employed as a saleswoman at a Fifth avenue fur store but had been away ill for two months.

OAKLAND PONTIAC TWO FINE CARS

JAMES A. REED ENACTS BRIDGE GAME KILLING

Pistol in Hand, He and Aid Tussle in Court.

Court Takes a Hand.

"If you are seeking to discredit this witness, come out and say so," Judge Ralph S. Latshaw demanded of James A. Page, prosecutor, when the attorney suggested that Hofman refresh his memory by reference to a transcript of his preliminary hearing testimony.

The court permitted the witnesses to read the indicated testimony over the vigorous objection of Reed and O'Sullivan.

Page sought to establish the positions of Hofman, Bennett, and Mrs. Bennett during the shooting. It is Hofman's testimony touching these points which the prosecutor has declared at variance with his testimony at Mrs. Bennett's preliminary hearing.

Too Shocked to Remember.

Cross-examined by Reed, the witness testified it was impossible to determine the relative positions of the persons in the apartment during the slaying. He was too shocked at the time to remember, he said.

Mrs. Frances Trowbridge, a policewoman, testified she talked to Mrs. Bennett when the latter was arrested. She quoted the defendant as saying: "I shot him. He slapped me. I got the gun from my mother's room and followed him into the den and saw him packing his grip. I shot him."

Reed on cross-examination asked the policewoman if Mrs. Bennett was hysterical at the time. Mrs. Trowbridge replied that Mrs. Bennett was crying.

Wanted to Die, Too.

The witness said Mrs. Bennett exclaimed "Jack, why did you do it? why did you do it?" and later remarked "If Jack's gone I want to go too."

William S. Reid, a neighbor, testified he rushed to the scene and picked up the pistol at the request of Mrs. Hofman, one of the bridge players, who expressed fear Mrs. Bennett would take her own life.

After considerable argument Mrs. Annie Rice, West Frankfort, Ill., half-sister of the slain man, was permitted to testify for the state.

Mrs. Rice said she had visited Mrs. Bennett after the death of her brother and had said "you told Brother Tom when he visited you you didn't know why you did this. But, Myrtle, you do know why you did."

She quoted Mrs. Bennett as replying "Yes, Annie, no one knows but me and my God, and after this is all over and you find out you will not be so bitter."

Watches Lawyer Enact Killing

Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, on trial in Kansas City, Mo., charged with killing her husband following a row that originated at a bridge whist game, as she appears in court. Her attorney, former Senator James A. Reed, yesterday enacted the killing as his client says it took place.

ENGLAND OPENS AIR MAIL LINE TO SOUTH AFRICA

[Copyright: 1931: by the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 28.—[Saturday.]—Flying over a route that has taken eleven years to prepare, the first African air mail will leave Croydon this morning and on Thursday will pass from Cairo over what is declared to be the worst flying country in the world. So treacherous are the storms between Khartoum, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and Juba, Italian Samoiliand, during the rainy season, that flying is safe only during certain hours of the day.

For the first few months the new service, which eventually is to land passengers in Cape Town, 7,000 miles distant, nine days after leaving London, will end at Muanza, on the southern shore of Lake Victoria Nyanza. During the early stages passengers will not be carried beyond Khartoum. By midsummer the whole route is expected to be in operation.

Air ports and emergency landing grounds have been hewn from the tropical forest, rest houses and radio stations have been built, airplanes capable of landing and taking off with heavy loads in high altitudes have been tested out on the India route, and many pilots holding special qualifications have been trained.

Two Deerfield High School Girls Reported Missing

Police were asked last night to search for Helen Poole, 16 years old, of Highland Park, and Margaret Cain, also 16, of Lake Forest, both juniors at the Deerfield High school, who disappeared from their homes Thursday evening. They were last seen in the a tomobile of Helen's father, Warren F. Poole, a chauffeur. According to police, the Cain girl left a note declaring she was tired of home life.

WOMAN SERIOUSLY BURNED.

Mrs. Mary Jaworwicz, 36 years old, was probably fatally burned last night when her dress caught fire when she spilled some naptha on a stove in her home at 3680 Milwaukee avenue.

WINTER IS MILDEST IN HIS KEN, VETERAN OF GREAT LAKES SAYS

The fact that his station has not had a single distress call from a stricken ship on Lake Michigan since last fall leads Capt. John O. Anderson, veteran commander of the coast guard station at the mouth of the Chicago river, to characterize this winter as the mildest he has known on the lakes in 30 years. Freight and passenger ships have been sailing all season, he said yesterday, with no blockades of ice or "dirty" weather to prevent their operations.

The earliest recorded opening of navigation at Sault Ste. Marie was on April 7, 1902, but the ice conditions noted by great lakes mariners indicate that an early breakup in that region is imminent, perhaps next month, which would set another record.

The contrast between this winter and last is marked. Early in the 1929-'30 shipping season the storms began to take their toll of vessels and lives and more than 100 persons were drowned and three sizable ships were lost on Lake Michigan alone.

The mildness of the winter was emphasized by yesterday's temperatures. At 3 p. m. the mercury had risen to 53 degrees, which came within five degrees of the record warmth for the day. On Feb. 27, 1896, the thermometer registered 58 degrees.

This has been the warmest and driest February on record. Only 1.33 inches of rain has fallen since the first of the month, which contrasts with the normal fall of 2.14 inches.

LAWYERS NEAR FIST FIGHT AT KIRKLAND TRIAL

Underwood Subsides.

For a full minute Prosecutor Underwood stared at his opponent. Then, bowing to the court, he returned to his chair. "I regret my hastiness, your honor," the prosecutor said. "I shall be glad to hear the witness answer the question."

Now O'Hara was on the offensive, protesting vehemently that the question had been answered.

JUDE CRUMPACKER—Let the clerk read the question and answer. Then we'll see.

When the clerk had complied the judge instructed Victoria to finish her reply. A hush fell over the courtroom. Kirkland and his lawyers leaned forward in their chairs.

"He came back from the car," the waitress said, in a loud, clear voice. "He showed his bloody knuckles to Barton and Thompson. He said: 'Boy, I gave it to her that time.'"

Q.—Well, was anything else said? A.—Yes, Kirkland turned to Thompson and said: "Now's your chance, Dave."

O'Hara Shifts Attack.

Mr. O'Hara launched into another channel of interrogation. In a sharp voice he took up Victoria's previous appearance in a murder trial.

Q.—You said you had lived two years in Chicago? A.—Yes. For a while I lived at 2953 Washington boulevard and then I moved to 2953 North Racine avenue.

Mr. O'Hara—Well, when you lived at Racine avenue did you know John Popescu and Tony Rocco? A.—Yes.

Q.—And they were your friends, weren't they? A.—Yes; they lived in the same house. I knew them.

Q.—And those two boys, friends of yours, they are same ones who are now under sentence of death for stabbing to death a banker, Mr. Stevens, in an attempted robbery?

Mr. Underwood—We object. Now, if it please the court, this sort of badgering has gone far enough.

Mr. O'Hara argued the right of the defense to impugn the credibility of the witness, but the judge ruled for the prosecutor, and the question was left unanswered.

Sturtridge's Testimony.

The preceding witness Sturtridge, testified that it was he, Paul Barton, Leon Stanford and Henry Shirk, who bought the liquor for the party. The three he named, together with David Thompson, the party host, are under joint indictment with Kirkland, but secured separate trials.

Sturtridge, a young man of 26 years, with a pleasant voice, open face and carefully considered answers, seemed to impress the Hoosier farmer jury. His coat front fell open as he took the witness chair, displaying his college fraternity pin.

The questioning brought out that he had been a football star in a Gary high school and for four years at De Pauw, and that he had played at intervals since his graduation with the Chicago Bears, a professional team. He said he was now employed as a clerk in the Gary steel mills.

At Party with Wife.

Q.—You attended a party the night of Nov. 29? A.—I did. My wife and I went with Paul Barton, Leon Stanford, and Josephine Rukas. We got there about 9:30, I think, but I'm not sure.

Q.—You left the party during the evening? A.—We came down town, Stanford, Barton, Shirk and I. We got a gallon of alcohol and a gallon of wine. We got back to the house about 10:15 or 10:30, I'm not just sure.

Q.—I suppose there was some drinking. Did you see Kirkland and Miss Draves? A.—I saw both drinking and dancing, and I saw Kirkland and Miss Drave in some loving scenes on the davenport.

Q.—Did you see them also on the front porch? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was their position there? A.—Miss Draves was in an easy chair and Kirkland sat on the arm. I was sitting at the other end, on a settee.

Q.—Describe the porch to the jury. A.—It's a place about 8 by 20 feet, enclosed in glass, with a concrete floor.

What He Heard on Porch.

Q.—When were you on the porch? A.—About 12:30. My wife was ill.

Q.—You were giving her some attention. A.—All my attention.

Q.—Did you hear any conversation? A.—It was dark out there, so that you could just see the glow of a lighted cigaret at the other end. I heard whispering, yes.

Q.—What did you hear? A.—I heard Virgil saying: "I love you, you know I love you. Arlene, I love you."

Q.—Did Arlene say anything? A.—The only thing I heard her say was: "I want to go home."

Q.—During the whole of the party after that, you heard her say nothing else? A.—Those were the last words I heard her say.

Kirkland Watches Witness.

During this recital Kirkland leaned forward, puckering his lips as is his habit. He was watching the witness intently and a frown was on his rather flat face.

"Was there any other occurrence?" asked the prosecutor in a higher key.

"Yes, sir, shall I start at the beginning?"

Q.—You want to tell it in your own way? A.—Yes. As I said, my wife was ill and wanted to go out. I took her across the porch to the steps and she leaned over the rail.

Q.—What about Kirkland? A.—We had no more than sat down when I heard him. I told you what he said. Then there was a loud crash.

Q.—What did you do? A.—I jumped up and ran across the porch. She was lying face down on the floor. Virgil was standing above her. I picked her up.

Q.—You picked her up—what was Virgil doing? A.—He said: "Give her to me. She's drunk."

Q.—You did that? A.—Yes. My wife had come over. I turned to her and I said: "Honey, it's cold out here, and you haven't got your coat. You better go in."

Q.—She went in? A.—I took her in, and we went upstairs.

Hears a "Sobbing Sound."

Q.—What was Kirkland doing when you left? A.—They were still standing there. Virgil had her in his arms.

Q.—Yes, go on. A.—She made a sobbing sound.

On the cross-examination Attorney Oscar B. Thiel drew from Sturtridge the statement that Mrs. Bernice Elser, called by the state yesterday, had been drinking before she reached the house party and was served wine and cocktails at the house. The lawyer failed to make Sturtridge say Mrs. Elser was intoxicated.

Q.—Your host, David Thompson, was a Gary city fireman at the time of this party? A.—Yes, I believe so.

Q.—You had a drink at this party. A.—Yes, like everybody else. I had wine, but no alcohol.

Q.—Your wife, she had wine? A.—Yes sir.

Q.—And alcohol?

An objection of Mr. Underwood was sustained.

Never Saw Arlene Before.

Q.—How long had you known Miss Draves? A.—I never saw her before that night.

Q.—Was she drinking? A.—Yes, like everybody else. No, I can't say how much she had.

Q.—Did you see Mrs. Elser drinking? What was her condition? A.—She had taken drinks before coming to the party.

Q.—Was she drunk? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Did she act as if she had been drinking? A.—I think so.

Q.—Was any one sick besides your wife? A.—Both Mr. and Mrs. Evan Madera were. When I say sick I mean they had to vomit.

Q.—How much of the liquor was left when you started home? A.—From a quarter to a third of the alcohol and about the same amount of wine, I believe. I'm not quite sure.

Q.—You didn't see Kirkland hit Arlene? A.—No, I didn't.

Q.—Were you facing them when you overheard the conversation? A.—No, I was bending over my wife.

Two Crowded Minutes.

Q.—How long before the crash did you hear Arlene say "I want to go home"? A.—It all happened in a couple of minutes.

Q.—Was the interval between her remark and the crash sufficient for her to get up from her chair and fall over? A.—I don't know how long it would take her to get up from the chair.

On redirect examination Mr. Underwood led Sturtridge back to his departure from the house in a car with Kirkland, Arlene, Paul Stanford, and Miss Rukas.

Q.—Did you see Kirkland again that night? A.—Yes. When my wife and I were ready to leave, he was in the car with Miss Draves.

Q.—What time did you leave? A.—Between 1:30 and 1:45. I couldn't be sure.

Q.—Who else was in the car? A.—Paul Barton and Miss Rukas were in the front seat. My wife and I got into the rear. Miss Draves was sitting in the middle.

Q.—Did you hear Arlene say anything? A.—No. Not a word. I told Kirkland to move her over. Then I got in and my wife sat on my lap.

Prior to Sturtridge's appearance, Coroner's Physician J. B. Burcham was on the stand all forenoon and for an hour after noon recess, as the attorneys wrangled over hypothetical questions.

Dr. Burcham performed an autopsy on Arlene's body at 5 a. m. the morning of the party and had given it as his opinion that she was dead several hours before. Dr. Russell O. Wharton had pronounced her dead at 3 a. m. when Kirkland, Barton and Stanford carried her into his home.

One question framed by Defense Attorney Roland Oldham, asked Dr. Burcham to assume that a young woman of Arlene's age and physical condition suffered a brain concussion in an accidental fall and asked if death could result, providing the girl went without medical care for five hours. Dr. Burcham gave a qualified affirmative answer.

CHIEF OF CRUSADERS BLAMES DRY LAW IN DRAVES GIRL'S DEATH

COL. JULIAN CODMAN.

Col. Julian Codman, national executive commander of the Crusaders, a young men's organization aiming at the overthrow of prohibition, said here yesterday that sentiment against the 18th amendment and the Volstead act is constantly gaining headway. This growing opposition, said the Crusader chief, who stopped here on his way to Milwaukee, is strengthening the hopes for the repeal of the dry laws.

When the killing of Arline Draves at a gin party in Gary was mentioned, Col. Codman attacked the prohibition law "which made this party possible and other parties like it."

"Because of prohibition," he said, "the younger generation now drinks gin and raw spirits and parties such as this fatal Gary affair are the result. The hard liquor these youngsters drink makes them crazy drunk."

CERMAK-DENEEN MERGER HINTED IN SOUTH PARKS

Bundesen Still Silent on Mayoralty Race.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Although most of the leaders, both large and small, expressed a feeling of post-primary fatigue and a willingness to rest up a few days, politics continued yesterday in its refusal to subside.

The question whether Coroner Bundesen will put himself all the way into the race as a third candidate still was the subject of contradictory reports hourly, without any definite statement from Dr. Bundesen, but there was general interest in developments elsewhere.

There was a brief but peppery debate at a noon luncheon of the political action committee of the Hamilton club, a Republican organization, which wound up in a technical defeat of a motion to indorse Thompson. And there were signs of an impending agreement between Cermak and United States Senator Deneen over the election of a member of the south park board.

Battle in Hamilton Club.

The row in the Hamilton club committee was precipitated by William D. Saltiel, former city attorney and now a special attorney for the school board, more widely known as the Thompson greeter and substitute for the mayor at conventions and other gatherings.

Saltiel reminded the committee that it had been the custom of the Hamilton club to indorse the Republican nominees. That started it.

"Who is the Republican nominee for mayor?" was the demand of Dr. John Dill Robertson, former health commissioner and school board president under Thompson.

David H. Jackson, former president of the Lincoln park board and former chairman of the state commerce commission under Gov. Small, replied that Thompson was the nominee. Chester R. Cleveland, former assistant corporation counsel under Thompson, insisted that this information was correct.

"Thompson No Republican."

"But Thompson is not a Republican," persisted Dr. Robertson. "He read himself out of the party last year. George Harding formally read him out during the last campaign. I'm willing to indorse the rest of the nominees but not Thompson. That's not due to personal enmity but because he's the father of the crime wave."

Dr. Robertson also declared that he was not for any independent candidate.

"I'm for Cermak," he said.

Dr. Robertson was supported by Walter E. Bacon, a Lundin-Deneen candidate for county treasurer last year, who presided at a business men's banquet for Lyle during the primary battle. He also argued that Thompson is not a Republican.

These two were outnumbered by the opposition in favor of "regularity" by the club if not by candidates, and the action taken was the passage of a motion to refer to the club's board of directors whether the customary rally for the Republican ticket will be put on this year.

Cermak and Deneen.

So far as could be learned there has not been any agreement yet between Senator Deneen and Cermak over the election of a south park commissioner, but it is a Deneen man, Commissioner John Bain, whose term expires today, and it is Cermak who will determine whether he will be reelected.

Under the statutes ,the members of the park board are chosen by the judges of the Circuit court. The Republicans on that bench are split up factionally and the eight Democratic judges are considered as controlling the situation. It is believed certain that if Cermak approves Commissioner Bain will be elected, but if Cermak disapproves either a Republican from some other camp or a Democrat would be chosen.

The meeting of the judges for the election of a commissioner has been called by Chief Justice Klarkowski for 3:30 Monday afternoon. But the report that the way is to be left open for Cermak-Deneen negotiations is based on the fact that a recess of the meeting until after the mayoralty election of April 7 has already been agreed on.

There have been reports that some of the Deneen support that went to Ald. Arthur F. Albert last Tuesday is going to Cermak. Such a report is current in the Seventh ward.

From other sections of the city comes information that many of the rank and file of the Lyle campaign organization also have started to move into the Cermak camp. It is said that all the big leaders of that force who have been talked to about the possible Bundesen candidacy have refused to consider it seriously as something with which they might identify themselves.

The couple were married Feb. 6, 1927, and separated three weeks ago. They have a daughter, Theresa, 2 years old.

RADIUM FOUND ON SHORES OF LAKE IN ARCTIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EDMONTON, Alberta, Feb. 27.—Tests being conducted at the University of Alberta indicate the possibility that a world's supply of radium may be located on the shores of Great Bear lake, in the artic. Examinations have revealed that samples of pitch-blende from this region are high in radium-activity.

Tests of the radium content of the ore are under way. The ore, which is a black mineral of dull luster, was discovered at Hunter bay and Echo bay, on the east shore of Great Bear lake. Samples for analysis were brought out by Geologist Cyril W. Knight.

Other than what is obtained in Colorado from carnotite the only other known radium supply center in the world is in the Belgian Congo. Its value is $70 a milligram, or $70,000 a gram.

5 OFFICERS OF N. Y. CLOSED BANK PLEAD NOT GUILTY 2D TIME

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Five officers of the closed Bank of United States pleaded not guilty today, for a second time, to indictments brought against them in connection with the bank's operations.

The five—President Bernard K. Marcus, Executive Vice President Saul Singer, his brother, Herbert, Counsel Henry W. Pollock, and Vice President Simon H. Kugel—had already denied their guilt before a court, but the failure of their move yesterday to quash the indictments compelled them to plead again.

Isidor Kresel, counsel and a director of the bank, was too ill to appear, but an attorney pleaded not guilty on his behalf to an indictment against him.

value. The certificates, outstanding have an aggregate face value of 3 billion, 426 millions, or an average of about $1,000 each.

Unpaid Interest Deducted.

If a veteran already has borrowed 22½ per cent, the maximum heretofore, the amount on the basis of a $1,000 certificate would be $225. Assuming that he has paid the interest on his loan, he would be entitled to borrow $275 more. Unpaid interest would be deducted from the amount of the new loan.

The first check under the new law was placed in the mail late this afternoon by Col. George E. Ijams, director of the veterans' bureau. It went to a Baltimore veteran and amounted to $422.50. The case had previously been investigated. The veteran was in need of the money, as his young son recently was operated upon. A rush of applications was reported at regional offices of the veterans' bureau throughout the country.

Hoover Makes Statement.

"Although I have been greatly opposed to the passage of the bonus legislation in its provision for loans from the treasury to people not in need, now that it is a law we propose to facilitate the working of it in every way possible," said President Hoover.

"Inasmuch as the physical task of making loans to 3,500,000 veterans, or even half that number, who might apply, will require many months, even with the most intensive organization, I have requested Gen. Hines to give complete priority to applications from veterans who are in need, and have asked him to set up some machinery for the certification of the cases, especially giving regard to the certification of the veterans' service organizations and the various relief organizations dealing with unemployment.

May Relieve Local Forces.

"The recent survey of the larger cities shows, in the opinion of the administrator of veterans' affairs, that about 6 per cent of the total number of veterans in industrial centers are now receiving support from the local unemployment and other relief committees. This bill will relieve some of the burden now being carried by these committees, but as the amount possible for many veterans to borrow is so small, it is urgently necessary that the local committees shall continue their service to many veterans.

"I wish to compliment the veterans' service organizations for their cooperation in undertaking a campaign among all veterans, urging them not to take advantage of the loan provisions except in cases of absolute necessity. I understand they are placing it on the ground of assistance to the federal government in minimizing the amount of money we shall be called upon to borrow and upon the fact that loans upon the bonus certificates exhaust the protection to veterans' families under the endowment insurance features of the certificates.

Only 10 Per Cent May Borrow.

"Taking Gen. Hines' survey of the number of veterans being assisted by local committees as a basis, it would appear that if all loans were confined to need, the drain on the treasury may be limited to 10 per cent of the potential liability created by the law."

President Hoover made public the results of Administrator Hines' survey of the situation in leading cities of the country with respect to veterans in need.

"I am inclosing herewith as complete information as it has been possible to secure as to the number of veterans and veterans' families who are receiving relief through organized charities," said Gen. Hines in a letter to the President.

Eighteen Cities Surveyed.

"These returns represent the reports from eighteen cities whose veteran population is estimated at approximating 898,469. While, in my opinion, the figures on relief extended are indexes only, including, as they doubtless do, some duplication, and, on the other hand, in some instances probably not including all cases to whom relief is being extended, it is interesting to note that from these figures the per cent of veteran population represented who is actually in receipt of relief approximates 8, as some 72,310 cases are represented by the attached reports. If we apply this per cent to the 3,400,000 holders of these certificates there would result a figure of approximately 272,000, which is at least indicative of the number of veterans at this time so in need as to seek relief from organized charities.

"I might add it is my personal opinion, however, that these figures on the average are higher than probably the actual facts warrant when we take into account possible duplications and also minor forms of relief which may be comprehended. I would say that a better average figure might be 6 per cent. Further, I have checked back on certain reports originally received, and modified figures have been used."

10,900 Aided in Chicago.

In his detailed report Gen. Hines estimated that 10,900 veterans or veterans' families are receiving relief aid in the city of Chicago. World war veterans in Cook county were estimated at 130,000.

"Relief afforded does not include that furnished by relief agencies in suburban villages in Cook county," said Gen. Hines in a note attached to the Chicago figures. "A general estimate is that 10 per cent of the veteran population is being furnished relief. This does not include aid extended by individual Legion posts."

The report showed 2,936 veterans or their families receiving aid out of 45,000 veterans in Boston, 6,004 out of 20,058 in Buffalo, 4,803 out of 101,932 in Philadelphia, 20,000 out of 258,733 in New York City, 735 out of 22,820 in Cincinnati, 1,025 out of 9,089 in Birmingham, 493 out of 17,500 in New Orleans, 1,061 out of 12,746 in Indianapolis, 1,500 out of 60,000 in Detroit, 4,150 out of 20,229 in Milwaukee, 1,721 out of 55,000 in St. Louis, 1,085 out of 7,000 in San Antonio, 2,600 out of 30,000 in Kansas City, Mo., 6,492 out of 23,000 in Minneapolis, 672 out of 13,552 in Denver, 1,813 out of 16,000 in Seattle, and 4,320 out of 56,000 in Los Angeles.

The bill was passed over the President's veto in the senate after a debate of three hours. Of the 76 who voted to override the veto 36 were Republicans, 39 Democrats, and one a Farmer-Labor member. Of the 17 in the negative, 16 were Republicans and one, Senator W. H. King [Utah], a Democrat.

PICTURE DELAYED

JANET GAYNOR.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Janet Gaynor, motion picture actress, has not fully recovered from an appendicitis operation in Honolulu recently. Studio officials announced that work on her new picture, scheduled to begin yesterday, had been postponed a month to permit Miss Gaynor to recuperate at Palm Springs, a desert resort.

INTEREST ON BONUS LOANS CAN EAT UP MOST OF PRINCIPAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Veterans bureau officials estimated today the veteran who borrowed $500 on the $1,000 average certificate would have $74.03 left in 1945 if he failed to pay the interest.

But, if the interest payments were met yearly, borrowers would receive the face value, less the actual amount of the loan, when certificates mature 14 years hence.

Here's what happens:

Loan, $500.

Interest 4½ per cent, compounded annually, totals $425.97.

Balance, $74.03.

How it works:

Interest on $500 for the first year, $22.50. This $22.50 is added to the $500 and the $522.50 draws interest the second year. The second year's interest would be added to the $522.50 and the total start drawing interest.

The same system would be followed each year.

Veterans' Leader Here to Campaign for Full Bonus

Paul C. Wolman, commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, arrived in Chicago yesterday on a national tour seeking immediate payment of the face value of the veterans' bonus certificates. Commander Wolman has just completed a speaking tour in New England and Atlantic coast states and is now campaigning throughout the middle west. Additional legislation seeking full cash payment will be sought at the next congress, he said.

ILLINOIS TO GET $38,890,000 FOR U. S. BUILDINGS

Chicago, 56 Other Cities Will Benefit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Authorization of funds for new building projects in 57 Illinois cities, towns and villages will be asked of the next congress, the treasury and postoffice departments announced today in submitting their annual report on national buildings operations to the house.

Out of 154 million dollars remaining to be allocated in a 500 million dollar authorized public building program, the sum of $7,140,000 is set aside for use in Illinois. If these new allocations are approved by congress, the total authorizations and appropriations for public buildings projects in Illinois, including the new Chicago postoffice building, will be brought up to $28,890,000.

Remodel Chicago Building.

Included in the projected new authorizations is $500,000 for extension and remodeling of the old federal building at Dearborn, Jackson, Adams, and Clark streets, Chicago. While no definite plans for revamping this building have been prepared, it was said that arrangements are being made to afford considerable more space for the federal courts. The actual cost for the rebuilding has not been worked out as yet.

Postoffice and treasury officials revealed also that the government has a number of other public building projects in mind for Chicago. No allocations for these projects, which include new subpostal units at certain of the railroad terminals, are to be made pending further railroad developments in Chicago.

Chicago's New Postoffice.

The government's building plans for Chicago were included in a general survey of the current public building situation prepared by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Postmaster General Brown.

The Chicago $21,000,000 postoffice was listed among those already specifically authorized by legislation. Of this new building the report said:

"This enormous structure will provide nearly sixty acres of floor space and will be equipped with the most modern mail handling equipment."

It was stated also that a considerable authorization would be necessary to complete programs which the treasury and postoffice department have in mind for Chicago and New York.

New Illinois Allocations.

The Illinois projects for which new allocations have been made and for which authorizations are to be asked from congress follow:

Abingdon, $70,000; Anna, $80,000; Barrington, $70,000; Benton, $90,000; Berwyn, $190,000; Brookfield, $75,000; Carthage, $70,000; Champaign, $135,000; Chicago, court house, $500,000; Clinton, $80,000; Crystal Lake, $70,000; Decatur, $400,000; Des Plaines, $120,000; Downers Grove, $80,000; East Alton, $85,000; Effingham, $90,000; Eldorado, $80,000; Elmhurst, $140,000; Evanston, $650,000; Fairfield, $80,000; Forest Park, $125,000; Fulton, $70,000; Galesburg, $250,000; Galva, $75,000; Geneva, $100,000; Glencoe, $100,000; Glen Ellyn, $95,000; Harvard, $70,000; Herrin, $80,00.

$175,000 for Quincy.

Highland Park, $15,000; Hinsdale, $80,000; Jacksonville, $75,000; La Grange, $120,000; Lemont, $70,000; Libertyville, $80,000; Lombard, $75,000; Melrose Park, $90,000; Moline, $250,000; Monticello, $90,000; Morrison, $85,000; Naperville, $85,000; Normal, $75,000; North Chicago, $150,000; Park Ridge, $110,000; Quincy, $175,000; Riverside, $85,000; Rock Falls, $70,000; St. Charles, $85,000; Shelbyville, $75,000; Urbana, $80,000; Vandalia, $75,000; Villa Park, $115,000; Watseka, $75,000; West Frankfort, $100,000; Wilmette, $200,000; Winnetka, $155,000; Wood River, $70,000.

COMBAT MEDAL MEN ELECT LEON HANNA AS NEW PRESIDENT

Leon M. Hanna, holder of the distinguished service cross, has been elected president of the Combat Medal Mens association. Mr. Hanna was a member of the 131st infantry. When his platoon had suffered heavy casualties near the Bois de Chaume, France, Oct. 10, 1918, and was held up by fire from a hidden machine gun emplacement, Private Hanna advanced alone under heavy fire and charged the enemy position. He bayoneted the enemy gunner and captured two of the gun crew, enabling his platoon to resume the advance. The other officers of the association are: Edmo E. Merkel, D. S. C., vice president; John Francisco, D. S. C., secretary; Fred R. Weiss, D. S. C., treasurer, and John Miles, D. S. C., sergeant at arms.

CHICAGO MOVES FOR APPEAL ON ELEVATED FARE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Application was made to the United States Supreme court today by the city of Chicago for a writ of certiorari in an appeal from the Circuit Court of Appeals, which recently upheld the Chicago Rapid Transit lines rate of a flat ten cent fare.

The elevated lines filed an amended rate schedule in June, 1928, making a flat rate of ten cents in the city proper. The Illinois commerce commission denied this increase over the lines' former practice of selling three ride tickets for twenty-five cents.

On taking the case into the federal District court the elevated lines were granted a temporary injunction against the commission's order of denial. A special master in chancery was appointed, who found that the elevated properties were worth 125 million dollars and who ruled that the lines should receive a return of seven and one-half per cent on their investment.

In the meantime the city of Chicago had intervened in the case.

Following the findings by the master the Circuit Court of Appeals, in 1930, made the injunction permanent, thereby ruling that the ten cent fare was justified. The city now asks that the Supreme court hear the case on appeal.

Former Football Coach Held on Robbery Charges

Fred Bennett, 29 years old, former athletic instructor at Stanton park playground and once an assistant football coach at Senn High school, was held to the grand jury yesterday in $15,000 bonds on three charges of robbery. Judge Frank Padden in the Felony court had previously continued the case for a mental examination of the defendant. Yesterday it was announced that Bennett is legally sane. He was arrested after he had robbed a shoe store at 53 West Madison street on Feb. 7.

UnemploymentCommission Thanks Its Fund Raisers

The fund raising committee of the governor's commission on unemployment and relief, which on Wednesday completed the $5,000,000 quota set as the minimum needed to carry the destitute of Chicago through the winter, was given a vote of thanks yesterday by the executive committee of the commission.

Damage of about $700 was done by fire which yesterday attacked the three story apartment building at 3053 North Winchester avenue.

DUCE AGREES TO COMPROMISE ON NAVAL DEMANDS

Expected to Halt Building Race Until 1936.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 27.—Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, and A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, argued over naval figures with Premier Mussolini again today and a terse announcement at midnight indicated that they had arranged some kind of an agreement between Italy and France over the naval building programs between now and 1936, but nothing more.

Premier Mussolini has climbed down from his insistence on parity with the French navy, or at least he has consented not to argue about the question until the next naval conference in 1936.

The public is wholly in the dark about what has been going on. The importance of the agreement appears to be that England has persuaded the French and Italians not to compel her to resort to the escalator clause of the London naval limitation pact which was signed last spring.

Continue Talks at Dinner.

ROME, Feb. 27.—(AP)—With Premier Mussolini taking part, British and Italian naval experts tonight continued discussion of Italy's full adhesion to the London naval treaty. The discussions were carried on at a dinner given at the British embassy.

Although no definite announcement was made it was hoped tonight that the British delegates might return home tomorrow, as planned, with a favorable report.

Among those who gathered at the dinner, in addition to Mussolini, were Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister; Arthur Henderson; A. V. Alexander; Rear Admiral Sirianni, Italian naval minister; Senator Marconi, and other notables. The British ambassador, Sir Ronald W. Graham, was host.

Two Days of Discussion.

For two days the British and Italian naval experts have been adjusting and readjusting the tables of warships and shifting categories. They continued revamping the figures until time for the dinner.

Much progress was made in the talks, particularly after lunch at the Tivoli, when the four ministers, Grandi, Henderson, Sirianni, and Alexander, walked together in the ancient Roman resort. They gathered together the loose ends and narrowed the difficulties to a point where a decision was in sight. Prior to the dinner the duce had a long talk with Grandi and Sirianni.

DROUGHT AID LOANS WILL BE AVAILABLE SOON, HYDE DECLARES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The department of agriculture expects to be distributing loans under the $20,000,000 drought relief act within a week or ten days, a department announcement stated today.

Its issuance followed the senate's adoption of a resolution offered by Senator T. H. Caraway [Dem., Ark.] calling on Secretary Hyde to state why the $20,000,000 had not been made available for relief and asking him when he purposed to act.

The department's reply stated that the necessary forms have been drawn up and approved and will be distributed early next week. They will go to intermediate credit banks and to companies and individuals desiring to form credit organizations.

"The capital stock of the credit corporations or live stock loan companies receiving these loans must be at least $25,000," the department stated. "No definite stipulation is made in the instructions as to the extent of local participation in subscription of the capital structure, but the instructions state that sufficient local capital must be subscribed to insure local interest and good management. The instructions emphasize that 'the maximum benefit to the local community can only be realized by the largest possible contribution of local capital and the best obtainable local management.'"

The amount of individual loans will be determined on the merits of individual cases, and the notes will bear 3½ per cent interest. It is provided that loans may be renewed for a second year, depending upon conditions at the end of the first year, but in no case will an extension be granted beyond the second year.

John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, announced today that the contributions to the $10,000,000 drought relief fund now total $9,470,030.

$100,000 DAMAGE SUIT SEQUEL TO FIGHT ON TRAIN

The praecipe in a suit for $100,000 damages was filed yesterday in the Superior court against John G. Velie, 1650 Roscoe street, said to be a wealthy owner of iron mines in upper Michigan. The suit was brought by Chalmers Chappell, 29 years old, 1208 South State street, who engaged in a fist fight two weeks with Velie on a train entering Chicago.

Attorney George M. Crane, representing Chappell, said that the suit is for alienation of affections. Chappell's wife, Mrs. Dorothy Chappell, 25 years old, was with Velie, the attorney said, when the train fight took place. All three have been charged with disorderly conduct and will be arraigned next Friday in the Des Plaines street court.

JURY LOCKED UP TO DEBATE FATE OF COL. KRAFT

Unable to Agree in Four Hour Attempt.

Federal Judge Lindley ordered the jury deliberating over the guilt or innocence of Col. Charles J. Kraft, former commander of the 202d Coast artillery, locked up for the night at 5 p. m. yesterday after it had failed to reach a verdict after four hours' consideration of the case. At 11 o'clock last night it was reported the jurorsr were still arguing in an effort to reach a verdict. If a decision is reached during the night it will be sealed and read at 10 a. m. today before Federal Judge Wilkerson.

At 12:50 p. m. yesterday Judge Lindley completed reading his instructions and the jury filed out. All morning it had listened to closing arguments picturing Kraft first as a trusted military officer, and again as a faithless commander who embezzled $100,000 in government funds.

Recalls Military Service.

Attorney Philip A. Gibbons of Kraft's defense counsel presented the last view. He referred to Kraft's twenty-four years of military service during which, he said, the colonel received seven wounds in France, during the Boxer rebellion, and on the Mexican border.

He defended the juggling of funds of the Broadway armory and the discrepancies in the rate of payment to military mechanics as having eventually "worked out all right." Kraft acted for the best interests of the regiment, he said.

"If you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that Col. Kraft is a thief," Gibbons closed, "or that he ever stole one penny from the government, then it is your duty to return a verdict of guilty."

Prosecutor Gives His Side.

The latter plea was precisely that of Assistant United States Attorney James C. Leaton, the prosecutor, who asserted in his final argument that Kraft had actually embezzled $15,000 of government funds entrusted to him as head of the regiment and had profited in a large manner through the renting of circus seats, which he served privately, for athletic events staged at the armory. The battery mechanics, working on government time, set up and took down the seats, he said.

"On its face the defense has collapsed," Leaton told the jury, "and it is your duty to find him guilty on all counts of the indictment."

If he is found guilty, Kraft could be sentenced to ten years' imprisonment and fined $10,000. His indictment last year brought on a scandal in the Illinois National Guard.

ATHEISM CHARGE STIRS UP A ROW AT TORONTO U.

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Charges that students at the University of Toronto are practical atheists, published in the undergraduate newspaper Varsity, echoed today through collegiate and legislative halls.

A meeting of university officials was called to determine what disciplinary action would be taken against the editors of the paper and Harry S. Nixon, leader of the Progressives in parliament, demanded a full time minister of education to look after government institutions of learning. Premier George S. Henry holds the premier Henry flatly refused, however, to start a government inquiry. He said the university officials were competent to deal with the situation.

Police Try to Link Them with Triple Killing

MAURICE P. TENNANT.

Brags of Crimes

Held for more than 100 confessed robberies, Maurice P. Tennant, 23 years old, a former pugilist, was being investigated by detectives last night as a possible participant in the murder on Nov. 11 of three men on a farm at Boscobel, Wis., 50 miles west of Milwaukee.

Tennant was captured several days ago by Sergt. Ernest Sloey in a hideout at 3518 West Congress street. With him was Miss Celina DeClaire, 28 years old, who, police say, might have figured in the triple Wisconsin killing. Both deny having had a part in the crime. However, Tennant has been identified by Edward O'Connor, 5731 South Paulina street, as the man who stole his automobile on Nov. 5. O'Connor's car, investigators allege, was used by the slayers.

The former pugilist boasted of his exploits in crime last night, but laid his troubles to "probation liquor," his nickname for moonshine. According to police, he has been identified in scores of holdups and is wanted in Trenton, Mo., St. Joseph, Mo., Los Angeles—in the latter place for violation of parole. His partner in crime was Joseph Erwin, 35 years old, his uncle, formerly a Wisconsin contractor, who was slain on Dec. 14 when he tried to rob Policeman Michael Distledorf in the rear of the latter's home at 6007 South Laflin street.

CANADA FORBIDS IMPORT OF SOVIET COAL AND WOOD

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 27.—(AP)—An order in council today prohibited import into Canada from soviet Russia of coal, wood pulp, pulp wood, lumber and timber of all kinds, asbestos, and furs.

Official announcement of the order was made by E. B. Ryckman, minister of national revenue, after discussion at a cabinet session.

Case of Another Indiana Mob Member Goes to Jury

Marion, Ind., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The state of Indiana's case of Charles Lennon, taxicab driver, accused of being one of the leaders of a mob that lynched two Negro youths in Marion Aug. 7, went to the jury today.

TAXI SPEEDING TO DYING WOMAN HITS PEDESTRIAN

A taxicab speeding with three passengers to St. Joseph's hospital, where a relative of the three lay dying, struck and seriously injured a pedestrian late last night almost at the moment the relative died.

Shortly before midnight Mrs. Catherine Ferguson, 1444 Olive avenue, and Mrs. Mary McGurn, sisters, and Mary Murray, 14 years old, 2051 North Halsted street, their niece, received an emergency call that Mrs. Helen Murray, sister of Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. McGurn and mother of the girl, was dying at the hospital of accidental burns suffered several days ago. The sisters and the girl engaged the taxi of Lloyd Lakie, 3816 North Kedzie avenue, in an effort to reach Mrs. Murray's bedside before death.

Lakie drove south in Clark street. At Wilson avenue he sped through signal lights and struck Maurice Jacobson, 35, 4531 North Ashland avenue, fracturing his legs and causing possible internal injuries. Lakie was arrested by Policeman Richard Harridy. His passengers continued to the hospital, but arrived too late by 10 minutes.

No deaths from automobile accidents in Cook county were reported yesterday, leaving the total for the year at 208.

BELLE GUINNESS SUSPECT QUIZZED IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Possibility that Belle Guinness, long sought "murder farm" woman of La Porte, Ind., may be living in Los Angeles is the belief expressed tonight by Deputy Sheriffs C. A. Fitzgerald and Arthur Seth.

A few days ago a stranger called on Fitzgerald and Seth and inquired if the reward for Mrs. Guinness still stood. Acting on information supplied by the caller, the deputies talked with the woman. They said she is about 75, apparently wealthy, and lives in virtual seclusion.

From 1902 to 1908 fourteen persons, Belle Guinness' husband, three children, a farm hand, a mail order suitor, and eight unidentified persons met death at the Guinness farm.

For a time Mrs. Guinness was believed to have perished when her home was burned in 1908.

KIDNAPING POLICEMAN CHARGED TO ROBBER SHOT IN GUN BATTLE

Hastings, Neb., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Jim Thomas, alias Robert Hendricks, wounded in a gun fight with officers here after the $27,000 Hastings National bank robbery, today was charged with bank robbery and kidnaping a policeman. Velma Creighton, 24, who made a dash for freedom with Thomas after officers had trapped them and two bank robbers in a house here Wednesday night, also was charged with kidnaping a policeman.

Meanwhile officers continued their search for the other robbers.

Volcott Condit, an investigator for the Nebraska Bankers' association, and Thomas, were wounded in a gun battle when a group of officers attempted to enter the house and arrest the three robbers. In the dash to two waiting automobiles the three robbers forced two policemen to accompany them. Both officers later were freed.

TELLS OF BODY FOUND IN FIRED SCHROEDER CAR

Defense Contends Death Accidental.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Taking of testimony began here today in the trial of Harold Herbert Schroeder, 35, Mobile, Ala., charged with first degree murder of an unidentified man last May.

After three days of tedious questioning, a jury was obtained this morning. In its opening statement the prosecution asserted Schroeder had committed murder and then burned his victim's body. The defense, however, contended that the unknown hitch-hiker was killed in an accident and that Schroeder, fearing he would be accused of the man's death, drove back to a lonely road west of here and set fire to the car and the body.

Harvey Shipp, a former deputy sheriff, told of removing the charred torso from the smoldering automobile early the morning of last May 31. The framework of the car was red hot. About ten feet distant a coat, presumably Schroeder's, was found, Shipp said.

Details Are Barred.

When the witness started to go into detail as to the pocketbook, papers, and other things in the coat, Ira M. Holmes, defense attorney, objected and was sustained by Judge Frank P. Baker.

Miss Ruby Blue, Indianapolis, who was riding with Jack Allen, Clayton, Ind., when they saw the flaming car, was the next witness. Allen and Miss Blue picked up Schroeder about a mile from the scene and took him to Indianapolis, although at the time they were unaware he had any connection with the case.

"Were there any flames on the out side of the car?" asked the prosecutor.

"Only those coming from the inside," she replied.

Schroeder Given Lift.

The witness then told of picking up Schroeder and that he rode with them until they reached the business district.

Schroeder was captured several weeks later in a clump of weeds near his home in Mobile.

There will be no session of court tomorrow as Schroeder will be taken to the city hospital over the week-end to be examined by two alienists appointed by the court. The defense has filed a technical plea of insanity.

NAME RECEIVERS FOR $7,000,000 HAMMOND BANK

Prosecutor Prepares for Grand Jury Inquiry.

Judge Clyde Cleveland in the Lake county Superior court yesterday named A. Murray Turner and W. C. Belman as joint receivers for the seven million dollar First Trust and Savings bank of Hammond. Turner was former chairman of the board of the bank and Belman former vice president.

The bank, one of the largest in northwestern Indiana, closed its doors on Feb. 3. Its depositors number 43,000, among them the Hammond board of education, the city, and other local governmental agencies.

Following the action of the court 200 depositors of the bank, many of them women, attended a massmeeting at the Hammond High school last night, where they completed an organization to protect their interests. Edgar D. Crumpacker, real estate dealer, was named chairman of a depositors' committee. He said that the committee would coöperate as far as possible with the receivers.

Grand Jury to Hear Case.

Meanwhile County Prosecutor Robert G. Estill of Lake county was preparing plans to lay the bank's affairs before the March grand jury. The prosecutor has conferred twice with T. D. Barr, deputy Indiana bank commissioner, and is conducting an investigation to determine responsibility for the bank's condition.

Peter W. Meyn is president of the bank and his two sons, Walter and Julius, are officials, the former in charge of the note department and the latter of the insurance department. The elder Meyn has agreed to turn over to the bank his assets, appraised at approximately $500,000.

Peter and Julius Meyn appeared at the court hearing yesterday together with seven of the bank directors. The courtroom was jammed and many depositors who sought to gain entrance were turned away.

Change of Venue Is Denied.

Attorney Byron Bamber, representing a group of the depositors, filed an affidavit seeking a change of venue. This was overruled. Deputy Bank Commissioner Barr, called as a witness, testified that the bank on Feb. 2 was insolvent or imminently so and that the danger of insolvency still exists.

He said that the assets cannot be liquidated immediately because they comprise real estate and loans of a slow moving nature, but added that if the liquidation is carefully and wisely done the assets would return a fair amount to the depositors.

In naming the receivers, Judge Cleveland described the closing of the bank as "a local calamity." He emphasized the desirability of a receivership. At the same time the directors issued a statement promising that "payments to depositors will be made when and as the bank's assets are turned into money."

Highland Bank Reopened.

The Farmers and Merchants bank of Highland, which was closed three weeks ago to preserve its assets during a run following the closing of the Hammond bank, was reopened yesterday following a meeting of depositors Thursday night. At the meeting, Grover Shinn, special bank examiner, described the bank's condition as "fine and solvent." Henry Van Til is president. The bank is capitalized at $700,000.

J. P. Cotton, Stimson Aid, Reported 'Little Better'

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 27.— (AP) — Joseph P. Cotton, undersecretary of state, who has been in a critical condition for weeks following two operations, was reported "a little better" at Johns Hopkins hospital today. Mr. Cotton underwent an operation last month for infection of the spine and two weeks ago an eye was removed.

KEEPS SECRET

THE REV. EMIL SWENSON.
[Acme-P. & A. Photo.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The Rev. Emil Swenson, Lutheran minister, was fined $100 for contempt of court today by District Judge Paul W. Guilford because he refused to testify to a "confession" made to him by the defendant in a divorce suit.

A stay of 30 days was granted to permit an appeal to the state Supreme court. This is the first case of its kind in the state.

The pastor was cited for contempt when he refused to divulge details of a confidential conversation he had with Arnold C. Sundseth, a divorce defendant, on the ground that the "confession" was made to him in his official capacity as a minister by a man seeking advice and help in his troubles.

Backed by the Minneapolis Ministers' federation, Mr. Swenson today took the stand in his own defense. Mr. Swenson said both Mr. and Mrs. Sundsets had come to him for help in their marital troubles, and that he told Mrs. Sundseth the details of her husband's revelations to him. He did so, he said, at the defendant's request, believing a reconciliation could be effected.

Mrs. Mary Duke, Chicago, Sued in Alienation Case

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Ruby Millar of Los Angeles today sued Mrs. Mary Duke, said to be a wealthy Chicago woman, for $100,000 on charges of alienating the affections of Miss Millar's husband, named as Hale Hunter Huggins. Miss Millar's complaint asserts Mrs. Duke enticed Huggins to leave his wife, on promise of a life of ease, travel and other luxuries.

Douglas MacLean, Film Actor, Will Wed Actress

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Douglas MacLean, movie actor and executive, today took out a three day notice of intention to marry Mrs. Lorraine Eddy, an actress. MacLean is 37 and his fiancée 27. Both previously were divorced.

Army Aviator Uses Chute to Escape Burning Plane

Smithfield, N. C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Lieut. R. F. C. Vance of the army air service escaped unhurt from his blazing airplane by taking to his parachute at 2,500 feet over Smithfield this afternoon. The plane, a Curtiss two seater, was a total wreck.

WARNS CHICAGO AGAINST A NEW FINANCE CRISIS

Schnackenberg Tells of His Tax Bills.

State Representative Elmer Schnackenberg, sponsor of two bills to revise the taxing machinery of Cook county, stressed the necessity of reform in taxing administration in a speech yesterday before the Chicago Real Estate board. He warned against a far more serious financial crisis than that of last year if a program is not evolved at the present session of the legislature.

House bills Nos. 26 and 27, he explained, provide for the abolition of the board of assessors and township assessors and provide for the substitution of an assessor appointed by the president of the county board. They retain the board of review, under restrictions. A third bill, No. 28, which aims at the abolition of the board of review, substituting the single assessor and two reviewers to be appointed, has been tabled in committee.

Lacks Centralized Authority.

"There is serious lack of coördination among the various officials whose duty it now is to assess property for the purpose of taxation," Mr. Schnackenberg said. "The chief ground of criticism is the absence of centralized authority. There are about 30 township assessors, and five assessors on the board. In theory the township assessors are under the supervision of the board members, but in practice there is almost no supervision. Each township assessor makes his assessment independently of what is being done elsewhere. It has been charged the members of the board act as individuals, each taking care of his district.

"The bills I have offered give suggestions for changing the taxing machinery. I am not committed to any plan. Public hearings are being held on the bills. Whatever plan is adopted it is apparent that scattered responsibility has in a large measure brought on the financial crisis. Unless this is curbed, we shall face an even more serious situation."

Seek Constitutional Convention.

Another move toward mending the taxing machinery by a constitutional convention for the purpose of consolidating taxing bodies to avoid duplication in expending tax revenue is being prepared by the City club. Representative Michael L. Igoe declared that, while consolidation is desirable, it will not solve the taxing dilemma. Speaker David E. Shanahan announced that a resolution calling for the summoning of a constitutional convention on tax legislation is to be presented to the legislature.

Harry S. Cutmore, director of appraisals for the board of assessors, yesterday won his dispute with John E. Conroy, secretary of the board, on administration over the personnel of the technical staff. The board decreed that the workers be under full charge of Cutmore, ending a verbal battle of several weeks.

PAUL WHITEMAN FILES SUIT TO DIVORCE WIFE

Paul Whiteman, famous orchestra leader, filed suit for divorce in the Superior court yesterday against his wife, Vanda Hoff, dancer. In his bill, drawn by Attorney Benjamin J. Kanne, Whiteman charges desertion, alleging that his wife left him in January of 1929.

Attorney Kanne said that Mrs. Whiteman came to Chicago a week ago, at which time a divorce settlement, whereby the orchestra leader will pay his wife $600 a week alimony, was arranged. The couple were married on Nov. 4, 1922. They have one child, Paul Jr., 7 years old, who will live alternately with his father and mother, according to the settlement.

Whiteman has been twice married. In 1914 he was divorced by Nellie Stack Whiteman after six years of married life. Whiteman is at present appearing at a south side café and lives at the Flamingo hotel, 5520 South Shore drive.

MYSTERY HIDES BRITAIN'S PEACE OFFER TO GANDHI

Holy Man Silent; "War Council" in Session.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW DELHI, Feb. 27.—For three hours today Viceroy Lord Irwin discussed with Mahatma Gandhi the terms under which the British government is willing to settle with revolutionary leaders. But after four hours' further discussion with the working committee of the all-India congress, India's "holy man" was undecided as to whether the British offers would satisfy the idea of swaraj—self-government.

At 9:30 o'clock tonight the "war council" adjourned its discussions until early tomorrow without coming to any definite decision.

Though Gandhi has been made the practical dictator of the congress, he has indicated that he will abide by the verdict of his "war council" regardless of his personal convictions.

Results Remain Mystery.

Neither the government nor the Indians threw any light on what had transpired in the interview between the viceroy and the mahatma at the viceregal lodge. Gandhi was smiling as usual as he strode half naked out of the great marble palace, while the mounted guards came to attention and hundreds of government employes stretched their necks to get a glimpse of him.

He was still smiling when he reached his residence in Old Delhi, but refused to be interviewed.

"Are you satisfied with your interview?" he was asked.

"That depends," he replied.

"Depends on what?"

"I can't say."

"Are you to see the viceroy again?"

"I don't know," Gandhi replied as he disappeared into the house not to be seen again until he came out in the cool of the evening prayers.

Makes Personal Plea to Gandhi.

It is understood that the viceroy offered certain counter proposals to Gandhi's demands and personally appealed to the Indian leader to accept and pave a way for a second round table conference in India this summer at which the congress will have a chance to draft its Nationalist program into the new constitution.

The government's attitude over Gandhi's demand for an investigation into police excesses is "let bygones be forgotten," but it is prepared to release prisoners convicted of nonviolent offenses and return their fines. The government also demands some sort of a compromise on the picketing of liquor shops and foreign cloth dealers, which, Gandhi says, must cease.

Business Men Back Revolt.

The most notable feature of the revolutionary movement, aside from present negotiations, is the way big Indian business men are backing Gandhi and demanding that he hold out for complete economic and financial autonomy.

"But can you continue if peace negotiations fail, have you resources enough?" a Bombay millionaire business man was asked at Gandhi's headquarters tonight.

"Yes we can keep on until we get what we want and I have informed Gandhi that the business men of India were solidly behind him," he replied.

Youths Try to Escape from Police; One Is Shot

One of three youths who attempted to escape a police squad was shot in the right leg last night. His companions were captured. The trio, Stanley Smoluch, 17 years old, 1424 Walton street; John Pripzyk, 16, of 2627 Potomac avenue, and Henry Lukaszwski, 17, of 1312 North Artesian avenue, were riding at Western avenue and Potomac street, when Policemen Fred Suspach and James O'Connell commanded them to halt. They tried to speed away, and Policeman Suspach fired one shot, striking Smoluch.

Gets Wrong Phone Number; Shoots Down Trunk Lines

Vallejo, Cal., Feb. 27.—(AP)—C. N. Allen, contractor, tried to make a telephone call. He got the wrong number. An hour later a posse arrested him on his front porch and took his rifle away. He shot down four main trunk lines and put nine circuits out of commission.

MIX PSYCHOLOGY AND TEA

Mrs. Peter S. Clark and M. V. O'Shea, professor of psychology at University of Wisconsin, at Drake hotel gathering of mothers of Culver Military academy cadets.

TALKS TO MOTHER

Concern for the "cold indifference" of students who enter college toward things intellectual was expressed yesterday by Prof. M. V. O'Shea, educational psychologist of the University of Wisconsin. He addressed mothers of cadets attending Culver Military academy at a meeting in the Drake hotel.

"Students ought to come to college from high school full of enthusiasm, but most of them are blasé and sophisticated, are keyed up addicts of emotionalism," said the speaker. "They find the intellectual life too cold, and not exciting enough, but they hang on for social purposes.

"We've just entered a program at the University of Wisconsin to drop one-third of the students at the end of the sophomore year. These are the ones who are too sophisticated to profit by university life."

The only solution, Prof. O'Shea said, is the school which he believes will play an increasingly larger rôle in the life of the young. He said that the home which had control of the situation two decades ago is breaking, leaving only the community to exert influence over the young.

Prof. O'Shea named the automobile and the motion picture show as agents contributing to the too early maturity of youth with its resulting over excitement and instability.

INDIANA HOUSE BEATS SALES TAX ON MALT, WORT

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The Indiana house this afternoon refused to levy a sales tax of two cents a pound on malt and six cents a gallon on wort. Bakers alone would have been exempt. Numerous drys opposed the bill as well as anti-prohibitionists, the drys arguing it would technically approve home brewing.

The house refused to order out of committee a bill to substitute provisions similar to those of the Volstead act for the more drastic present Indiana bone dry law.

Speaker Walter Myers announced in the house on a question from the Republican minority that he is ready to appoint a conference committee "at any time" to consider senate amendments to the house personal income and corporation income tax bills. The senate has finally fixed a one and one-half per cent rate as its desire for a corporation net income tax.

The senate advanced to third reading the house anti-lynching bill after amending it to permit damages from the county, city, or town.

INDIANA SENATE SPEEDS INSULL BILL; NO HEARING

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The Indiana senate this afternoon advanced without hearing the bill passed by the house late yesterday, amending the state law at the request of South Shore Electric Railway company, an Insull holding company.

The measure would give utilities the right to appeal to the public service commission and thereafter to the courts to effect changes in the location of their physical property within cities wherein the city authorities do not readily grant such permission.

For more than two years the South Shore Electric line [Insull owned] has been attempting to reroute its lines in East Chicago to avoid the business area. The two councils of East Chicago have opposed the relocation to the tracks on the ground that the new route would be inconvenient for the residents of the city, who prefer to use the electric line to using a bus line provided for local traffic into Chicago.

On the refusal of the East Chicago council to agree to the relocation last fall the South Shore line withdrew its proposals. At this session of the legislature the South Shore representatives joined representatives of the Gary United railways, another Insull company, in entertaining legislators here.

UNEARTH BONES IN LINCOLN PARK, ONCE A CEMETERY

Discovery Recalls Early History of Chicago.

Workers digging in Lincoln park, north of the intersection of North avenue and Dearborn parkway, uncovered a bit of Chicago history in finding human bones in the sandy soil. The portion of the park in which the bones were found was formerly a cemetery.

In 1835 the town authorities provided for two cemeteries, one on the north side and the other on the south. No interments were made in the south side cemetery after 1842. In 1847 the city authorities reinterred the bodies in the south side cemetery at 22d street in the tract now known as Lincoln park, then Chicago cemetery.

The Chicago cemetery tract contained 3,136 burial lots and extended on either side of Clark street, north of North avenue. By a decision of the Supreme court the city lost title to the land and in 1865 the council ordered the vacation of the tract, authorizing lot holders to exchange their lots for lots in the then new cemeteries, Graceland, Oakwoods, and Rosehill. The bodies were reinterred as nearly as possible in the same order as they had been in Chicago cemetery.

In two years, at the expiration of the time limit for vacating, a council committee made selections for 200 lot holders who could not be found. The bones found yesterday are believed to have escaped the selection. At Eugenie street the mausoleum of Ira Couch, Chicago pioneer, still stands as a visible memento of the cemetery, because the council was without the funds to undertake its removal.

After a number of years of litigation the portion of the cemetery included in the present park limits passed under the control of the Lincoln park commissioners. The remainder was divided into city lots.

AUTO KILLS MOTHER OF TEN.

Duquoin, Ill., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Mrs. Milton Lively, age 54, and mother of ten children, was killed late last night while walking along state highway near her home, five miles north of Duquoin, when she was struck by an auto occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jay Dusenborg of Columbus, O., who were en route to Hot Springs, Ark. Dusenborg declared the accident was unavoidable.

BARONET SUED BY U. S. WIFE POSTS BOND; FREED FROM CUSTODY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Sir Charles L. Ross, millionaire Scotch baronet, posted $60,000 bail here today and was released after being taken into custody in a maintenance suit filed by his wife, Lady Patricia Ross.

He was arrested yesterday, but unable to furnish the high bond on short notice, spent last night under guard in a hotel.

Lady Ross, daughter of Andrew Ellizon of Louisville, Ky., and Sir Charles were maried in 1901. In 1924 he brought suit for divorce in Kentucky, but the courts there refused to entertain it. He obtained a divorce in 1928 in Mexico.

Lady Ross last year instituted divorce proceedings in the British courts, which was not ended until taken to the house of lords, where a decision favored Sir Charles.

Lady Ross in her maintenance suit said Sir Charles was a multi-millionaire. Sir Charles said he established a trust fund for his wife years ago of $5,000 a year.

PAL TO SQUEAL, ON 'YELLOW KID,' SHERIFF SAYS

Decatur, Ill., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Fred Buckminster, he of the frail limbs and co-partner of Joseph [Yellow Kid] Weil of confidence game fame, has confessed, Sheriff E. C. Wilson said here today, of aiding in the bilking of Walter Danzeisen, packing plant owner of Decatur out of $2,500.

According to Sheriff Wilson, Buckminster will turn state's evidence against his old friend "Yellow Kid." Such a turn would end a partnership of many years between the two in which scores are alleged to have been mulcted of thousands of dollars through high pressure goldbrick sales.

Meanwhile, Buckminster complained of illness but told photographers he would graciously pose for them when his old friend Joe had arrived. "Your jail is very comfortable, thanks," Buckminster replied to questioners. "But I don't know about that crate of eggs in Rockford. You'll pardon me gentlemen," he said, and the interview had ended.

Civil War Pistol Still Dangerous; Youth Is Fined

A pistol of civil war antiquity may still be a deadly weapon, Judge Leon Edelman ruled yesterday in the Town Hall court. Under his decision he fined William Priff, 21 years old, a bell hop at a loop hotel, $200 and costs for gun toting, but later suspended the penalty and placed him on probation. Priff was arrested brandishing the gun, and in court asserted it belonged to his grandfather during the civil war, and wouldn't fire even if loaded. Capt. Hugh McCarthy, who arrested the youth, asserted the pistol, a single shot weapon, was still serviceable.

TROOPS OF PERU SCATTER REBEL ARMY IN NORTH

Hunt Fleeing Insurgents; Surrender Expected.

BY C. N. GRIFFIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 27.—The political and military situation in Peru remains unsettled while parleys between army leaders and rebels continue by telegraph, wireless and airplanes.

Armed forces of the republic are scattered in barracks all over the vast extent of Peruvian territory, which is widely separated by great mountain ranges and deserts but they are maintaining contact by every facility of modern invention.

Northern Rebels in Flight.

Based on official reports, the revolt in Piura in the north came to a sudden end, when rebel forces evacuated the city on the approach of 300 loyal soldiers under the command of Lieut. Col. Santibanez. The Lima government today announced that the insurgents were expected to surrender shortly. The populace at Piutra is reported greatly aroused over the killing of several civilians during an anti-government demonstration.

A detachment of troops has been sent in pursuit of the insurgents.

Two battalions of loyal soldiers left the port of Callao today to smash rebellion in southern Peru against Provisional President Sanchez Cerro. The president addressed the departing troops before they moved out of the harbor in steamers, repeating his assertion that the rebellion had been instigated by supporters of Augusto Leguia, whom he deposed. Five thousand stood on the piers cheering.

Police Battalion to Sail.

A battalion of police was scheduled to embark for the south late tonight. Lieut. Col. Gustavos Jimenez, one of the president's stanchest supporters, will be in command of the entire expeditionary force. According to reports, Arequipa, which is held by the rebels, is in a state of virtual anarchy and that Lieut. Col. Carlos Beytia, rebel chieftain, has been replaced by a civilian.

A Peruvian artillery group is marching on the city after having recaptured the port of Mollendo without opposition after landing from a cruiser. A loyal cavalry detachment from Tacna is almost moving against the rebels from the southwest.

Several hundred troops under the command of Lieut. Col. Antonio Beingolea, minister of the interior, have arrived at the northern port of Paita, port of Piura, to reinforce Lieut. Col. Santibanez. The minister of interior's forces consist of cavalry, artillery, and infantry detachments.

In all other sections a state of tranquillity is reported.

The welfare and the security of the nation is now in the hands of army leaders. Troops are fully armed and supplied with ammunition and communistic disturbances of the last few months have been entirely swept aside.

Claims Cruiser Joined Revolt.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Feb. 27.—Col. Gonzales, commander of fourth military zone at Cuzco and one of the leaders of the rebellion in southern Peru, has informed the La Paz press that the cruiser Bolognesi, sent from Callao to block the port of Mollendo, has joined the revolutionary movement.

DISPUTES COLOR OF EYES FIGURING IN LONGLEY SUIT

But Judge Bars Story of Woman, 71.

Testimony was given yesterday by a witness in the lawsuit over the $1,000,000 estate of the late Albert W. Longley, hat manufacturer, which for a time threatened to upset the trial, now in its sixth week. The witness was Mrs. Anna Johnson, 71 years old, of Racine, formerly a servant on the manufacturer's farm near Janesville, Wis.

During the last ten days the defendant in the suit, Mrs. Caroline Longley, the manufacturer's third wife and sole heir under his will, has based her case in part on the Mendelian theory of heredity. She contends that because of this theory George Longley, the contestant for the estate, can not be the son of Longley and his first wife, as he claims, because George Longley's eyes are brown, whereas the elder Longley and his first wife both had blue eyes.

Experts summoned by Mrs. Longley have upheld the biological theory and declared that George Longley could not be the manufacturer's son because of the color of their eyes. Mrs. Johnson surprised the litigants when, in testifying in behalf of the contestant, she declared that Albert Longley had brown eyes and that his first wife had gray eyes.

Attorneys for Mrs. Longley objected that the contradictory testimony from Mrs. Johnson, who appeared suddenly as a rebuttal witness after the defense had closed its case, would make it necessary to try the case all over again. Judge Michael Feinberg ordered Mrs. Johnson's testimony stricken from the records.

Berlin Bars Outdoor Wine Party as "Too Unhealthy"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—Hygienic regulations won a new victory for Germany's "pussyfooters" today. In the famous excursion center of Werder, where Berliners imbibe barrels of fruit wine, the annual Spring festival sale from barrels under the blossoming trees has been prohibited. The wine will be dispensed only in restaurants where food is served simultaneously with liquor and where running water insures satisfactory cleansing of glasses.

SEIZE MACHADO'S OWN AID AS BOMB PLOT INSTIGATOR

Former Mayor of Havana Also Implicated.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Feb. 27.—Maj. Manuel Espinosa, who has served President Machado for five and a half years as aide de camp, was arrested today as the instigator of the plot to assassinate the president by bombing last Monday.

The motive, according to Lieut. Col. Erasmo Delgado, who unraveled the clews in the case, was to prevent Havana from becoming a federal district on Tuesday, with the consequent loss of position and elimination as a presidential possibility of the former mayor, Dr. Miguel Mariano Gomez, a relative by marriage of Maj. Espinosa.

Gomez a Foe of Machado.

Four years ago President Machado supported the candidacy of José Maria de la Cuesta against Dr. Gomez for mayor of Havana. Dr. Gomez won. Since then Dr. Gomez has been known as one of President Machado's strongest opponents.

Col. Delgado found that Maj. Espinosa, the president's aid and the head of the palace guards, had married Marina Gomez Arias, a daughter of former President José Miguel Gomez, who was also the father of former Mayor Gomez.

Col. Delgado also took into consideration the fact that congress recently had authorized the president to convert the municipality of Havana into a federal district on Feb. 24, Cuba's independence day. Friends of Dr. Gomez regarded this not as an administrative change, but as an effort at revenge for the defeat of De la Cuesta four years ago and to destroy the office and political power of a potential rival for the presidency.

Soldier Confesses Plot.

With these facts in mind, according to Col. Delgado, he questioned the soldier who had been arrested following the explosion of the bomb in the palace and eventually obtained from him a confession that on the day before Havana was due to change its status he had placed the bomb in an air vent and set it off under instructions from his commander, Maj. Espinosa. The bomb exploded, but one floor above the president's apartment, due to a change in plumbing in the vent.

At 7 o'clock tonight the soldier, whose identity has not yet been revealed, was taken into the presence of President Machado and informed the chief executive whom he had tried to assassinate, it is said, that he obtained the bomb, filled with twelve pounds of dynamite, at the home of Dr. Gomez.

It was the soldier's understanding, according to information at the palace, that Francisco Diaz, a close friend of Dr. Gomez, had made the arrangements with Maj. Espinosa. The soldier asserted that Maj. Espinosa showed him where to place the bomb.

Señor Diaz is being sought, but it is believed that he escaped to the United States by airplane yesterday. The arrest of Dr. Gomez and others is said to be imminent.

Juan Espinosa, a brother of the major and a close personal friend of the president, and Senora Espinosa called at the palace tonight to ask mercy for the major, but could not get a hearing, it is said. He and the soldier probably will be tried for their lives by a court martial.

Dog Catcher's Business on Increase as Spring Nears

The warm weather is making business pick up a bit for the dog catchers. Yesterday helpers from the municipal dog pound picked up twenty dogs during their morning round from 31st street to 63d street, and from State street to Ashland avenue. Special effort is being made to clear the streets as warm weather approaches, it was explained, for the protection of children. Dogs are caught with a wire noose, carred by wagon to the pound, where they await rescue by their owners. If no one appears to claim them, the dogs are exterminated at the end of three days.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIEGE, Belgium, Feb. 27.—A crumpled body of a man lying on the railroad tracks near the little Belgian town of Herbestal, a locked train compartment with bloodied cushions, and a mysterious golden haired woman who somehow had evaporated from a speeding express train today furnished the Belgian police today with one of the strangest mysteries they have faced in years.

The body was found by track walkers from the little station of Warremme, outside of Herbestal. It had evidently been thrown out of the Ostend-Cologne express, which had passed a short time before. An autopsy disclosed that he had been beaten to death. The only identification was a few visiting cards bearing the name of Victor Schwarz, an Hungarian business man.

Description Fits Spy.

The police, however, state that the description of the body tallies with that of a notorious international spy suspected of having purloined important secret plans of the new Belgian border defenses.

A search through the train at the frontier disclosed one locked carriage with blood soaked cushions which was evidently the scene of the murder. The murderer must have escaped through the window, as the doors were locked from the inside.

Blonde Beauty Vanishes.

The most mysterious angle of the affair is that the conductor remembered having seen the vcitim at dinner the evening before with a beautiful blonde stranger. The next morning the woman had disappeared, although no one answering her description was seen to get off the train at Liege, which wa sthe only stop.

Seize Arabian Suspect.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Police at Liege tonight arrested Benahmed Moulal, an Arabian, in connection with the killing of Victor Schwarz in the Ostend-Cologne express last night. Police were trying to connect Moulal with a similar attack on the same train on Feb. 8.

U. S. DIRIGIBLE HEADS OVER SEA ON HOME FLIGHT

HAVANA, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The navy dirigible Los Angeles droned over Havana tonight, turned her silver flanks into the glare of sweeping searchlights, circled the city for thirty minutes, and turned northward for Lakehurst, N. J.

Veteran now of a mimic war, in which she was theoretically destroyed by a make-believe enemy attacking the Panama canal, she shoved off from her mooring mast at Guantanamo this morning and covered the 700 miles to Havana in ten hours.

Ships in the harbor saluted her with whistles and picked her out with searchlights as she went four times around the city and dipped low over the capitol. At 9:15 o'clock she stepped up her speed and headed for home. She was expected to make contact with the U. S. S. Patoka, her mooring ship, somewhere between here and the coast.

3 Mexican Bandit Chiefs Executed by Firing Squad

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 27.—Three bandit chiefs, who have been directing holdups of automobiles, murders, and a general reign of terror in the state of Mexico, were executed by a firing squad at dawn today. The bandits were Jose Romero, Secundino Jaso, and Jose Flores. The trio was arrested while attending a town festival at Zumpagno two days ago.

RENEW YOUR TRIBUNE ACCIDENT INSURANCE

SEND COUPON ON PAGE 3 WITH $1.25 FOR ANOTHER YEAR'S PROTECTION.

$2,151,937.55

THE BIGGEST INSURANCE BARGAIN IN AMERICA FOR $1.25 A YEAR

NOTE this astonishing fact: Over one million one hundred thousand people were killed and injured in motor vehicle accidents in 1930! When is an accident going to overtake you? Don't let your Tribune Accident Insurance lapse!

Don't assume that because a Tribune Accident Policy costs only $1.25 a year that it hasn't much value. The gigantic sum of money paid to Tribune Accident policyholders and beneficiaries—$2,151,937.55—is powerful proof that it pays—in many cases pays for accidents not covered at all under the provisions of policies issued through other newspapers. This vast sum of money exceeds by far the payments made to holders of policies issued through any other newspaper.

Tribune Accident Insurance is the biggest insurance bargain in America—a service exclusively for Tribune readers. It has cost the Tribune $700,000.00 of its own money to date.

Don't lose this protection. Renew. If you don't remember the expiration date of your policy, send the Coupon on Page 3 with $1.25 and we will credit you for a full year's insurance beginning at the expiration date of your policy as shown on our records. Remember, the value of the specific indemnities in your policy increases 10% on renewal each year until the high value reaches $11,250.00. Don't send in your policy. A receipt will be mailed to you.

$2,000,000 FILM RACKET CHARGED TO INDICTED FIVE

Say Catholics Defrauded in Stock Sales.

New York, Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Two women and five men were indicted today by the federal grand jury for conducting a "clean" motion picture film racket through which they are alleged to have mulcted $2,000,000 from 400 priests and 6,000 Catholic laymen in New York and five other states.

The accused persons, according to Federal Attorney George Z. Medalie, were promoters who, taking advantage of the interest of Catholics in cleaner motion pictures, managed to obtain $2,000,000 in subscriptions to finance their corporation, which did not produce a single film. Of this amount $1,800,000 cash was paid in, it is charged.

The names of Cardinal Hayes, Cardinal O'Connell of Boston and Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago as well as those of prominent Catholic laymen, including former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and John J. Raskob, were used by promoters in their sales talk, the indictments alleged.

Report Priests Victimized.

None of the prelates or other prominent persons mentioned were interested in the promoters or their corporation, Mr. Medalie said the government had learned. But the accused persons are alleged to have been so convincing in their sales arguments that priests urged their friends to buy stock in the belief that they were promoting the cause of cleaner films.

The method of the promoters, according to the indictments, was to persuade pastors and church societies to call meetings where one of the group's high pressure salesmen would address the crowd and pass around subscription blanks for stock purchases.

The company in which the stock was alleged to have been sold was the National Diversified corporation which went into bankruptcy last May. It is charged in the indictments that instead of developing the company the promoters used the income from the stock sales for the benefit of Sono-Art Productions, Inc., another film company in which they were interested.

"Dividends" Are Paid.

When stock sales fell off it is alleged that the promoters boosted them by paying "dividends" out of the proceeds of the sales. During the two year period they are accused of having put up the price of the stock from $10 to $50 a share.

Those accused are Otto E. Goebel, voting trustee of the corporation; Frank J. Matre, sales manager; Thomas A. Lynn, secretary-treasurer; Elizabeth M. Flautt, assistant secretary; Irene C. Flautt, contact woman; James F. Cassidy and Jerome Klein, star salesmen. The corporation was also indicted.

Catholics were swindled in New York state, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maryland and Connecticut, according to the indictments. In Massachusetts they were told that Cardinal O'Connell would be permitted to name a Boston banker to the board of directors of the corporation, while in Maryland the story was to the effect that Archbishop Michael J. Curley would have the privilege of choosing a Baltimore financier.

POLICE PROBE TWO BOMBINGS ON SOUTH SIDE

Police last night were investigating the bombing early yesterday morning of a private residence and a saloon on the south side.

One of the blasts wrecked the front porch of William Dunworth at 9030 South May street and roused his family, including a 7 months old child. Damage was estimated at $1,000. Dunworth attributed the attack to enmity developed in the recent aldermanic campaign in the 14th ward in which his brother-in-law, Cormac McDonald, was defeated. Dunworth was McDonald's campaign manager.

The second bombing smashed two windows in the rear of the soft drink parlor at 4177 South Halsted street, owned by R. J. Morris. The loss was slight.

Morris said last night that he had been kidnaped by two men on Sunday and threatened with death unless he paid a ransom of $2,000. The men forced him into their car at 70th and Halsted streets, he said, but finally released him when he promised them $2,000.

MRS. PATRICIA SISLEY.

Mrs. Patricia Sisley, 701 Lyman avenue, Oak Park, an artist, won a divorce yesterday from Raymond Sisley of New York, also an artist. The decree was granted by Superior Judge Lewis on grounds of desertion. Mrs. Sisley testified that they were married on March 21, 1920, at Hampshire, Ill., and that her husband left her in December, 1928. She was represented by Attorney Wiley K. Galloway.

MATERNITY BILL PASSED BY HOUSE; MAKES CHANGES

Alterations May Delay Senate Approval.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The Jones-Cooper bill providing for federal and state cooperation in maternity and child welfare work was passed by the house late today after prolonged debate. As approved, the measure was amended so radically over the form in which it passed the senate that it was doubtful tonight whether the houses would be able to iron out the differences in time to send an approved bill to the President this session.

Under the house amendment a board composed of the surgeon general of the United States, the chief of the children's bureau of the department of labor, and the commissioner of education of the interior department is created to establish in all states a sytsem of instruction in maternity and child welfare.

The announced purpose of the bill is to carry to the rural districts, with the cooperation of state agencies, full instructions in maternity work in the hope of reducing abnormal infant mortality and maternity death rates.

Initial Budget of Million.

An initial authorization of $1,000,000 is authorized for the first year. This is to be increased annually until it reaches $3,000,000 at the end of the fifth year. Thereafter the annual appropriation is to be $3,000,000, which is to be apportioned among the states on a rural population basis. The effect of the legislation, according to those who opposed it, is to set up a new Sheppard-Towner maternity law and make it permanent.

The house acted after prolonged debate, during which opponents of the bill charged that it represented another invasion of state rights and a new move to add to federal bureaucracy at Washington. Representative George R. Stobbs [Rep., Mass.], asserted the measure represented an invasion of state rights.

"Meddle with States."

"We are passing so many bills of this nature," he asserted, "that states are ceasing to be political units and becoming nothing more than geographical units. Why should the federal government meddle in the state's maternity problem?"

"We are now asked," Representative James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.] stated in a minority report, "to make a permanent provision which will authorize the government to tell the

LEO V. BROTHERS' DEFENSE OFFERS 7 NEW PETITIONS

State to Answer Pleas in Court Today.

Defense attorneys for Leo V. Brothers, awaiting trial for the murder of Alfred Lingle, yesterday appeared before Judge Joseph Sabath in the Criminal court seeking to file petitions bearing on the case.

The petitions alleged that Brothers was the victim of a conspiracy participated in by the police department, the state's attorney's office, and THE TRIBUNE, and that these agencies had spent large sums of THE TRIBUNE'S money to frame up a false case against Brothers.

Reply to Be Made in Court.

Charles F. Rathbun, special assistant state's attorney in charge of the prosecution, was asked to reply to the charges. He said:

"I will answer the statements made in the petitions filed by the defense attorneys at the proper time, which is tomorrow morning, in open court.

"The petitions are not on file, and it is evident that they were presented only for purposes of propaganda, and to bring a wrongful influence to bear upon the public generally, and particularly upon the prospective jurors who will try Brothers for the murder of Lingle."

Judge Postpones Filing.

Judge Sabath, after examining the petitions, announced that he would not permit them to be filed until the state has an opportunity to argue on them this morning.

The petitions were seven in number. One of them sought the removal of Rathbun and James E. McShane, the special prosecutors, on the ground that they represented THE TRIBUNE, a private interest. A similar petition was denied by Judge John Prystalski.

Another petition sought a complete list of the state's witnesses. A third asked the court to summon Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, to produce records showing the nature of THE TRIBUNE'S expenditures in the investigation.

Would Subpoena Hotel Men.

Other petitions besought the court to issue subpoenas duces tecum requiring officials of the Congress and Del Prado hotels, in which Brothers was held prisoner temporarily, to show the amounts of money spent by the investigators in those hotels, and for what and by whom it was spent.

One petition asked that the agents for the Temple building be required to show how much rental was paid for the offices which have served as the headquarters of the investigation. The seventh petition asked the court to require Rathbun and McShane to disclose the nature of all the expenditures in the investigation.

6 NEGROES DIE IN S. CAROLINA ELECTRIC CHAIR

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Six Negroes were electrocuted in the South Carolina penitentiary early today for the murder of two Lexington county white men. They went to their deaths calmly and with prayers on their lips.

Almost two hours were required for the executions, each of which was watched by 16 persons in addition to newspaper men, physicians, and penitentiary officials.

Tillman Poozer died as the confessed murderer of C. D. Mills, Gayce night watchman. The motive was robbery.

The other five, Robert "Greasy" Eldredge, Lindsey Cantrell, alias John Ackwright; James "Snow" Hickman, George Bird, and Ernest "Tee" Thomason, were convicted of the murder of B. W. Hendrix, Lexington county merchant, who was shot in an attempted holdup.

Electrocution of six men at one time set a record for South Carolina, the greatest number previously being five in 1916.

Four women were admitted as spectators. One was the widow of Hendrix. She showed no emotion as Cantrell, her husband's slayer, died. Two others, daughters of Mills, saw their father's slayer executed. They were Mrs. D. J. Vargeson and Mrs. E. E. Nason. The fourth woman was Mrs. Gray Raines of Hartsville, who saw George Bird executed.

POLICEMAN WOUNDS HIMSELF.

ATTORNEY FOR SLAIN WOMAN IN N. Y. VICE INQUIRY IS ARRESTED

New York, Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Although two arrests had been made, police admitted tonight they had not found the slayer of Vivian Gordon, whose body was found early yesterday in Van Cortlandt park, a few days after she had given information to vice investigators.

Both of the prisoners, John A. Radeloff, an attorney, and Sam Cohen, were held in $50,000 bail as material witnesses. Radeloff was mentioned in a letter left by Miss Gordon, in which she expressed fear of him, although he was her counsel. Cohen was also named in the letter as one who might cause harm to come to her.

Another man questioned during the day was the woman's estranged husband, John Bischoff, business manager of the federal reformatory at Lorton, Va. Recently, the woman had written him a letter, telling him she expected to "squeal" to the vice investigators and warning him that her story would expose the alleged "framing" of a vice case against her. Bischoff said he knew nothing that would throw any light on the murder.

The police also are awaiting the return from Bermuda of Patrolman Andrew J. McLaughlin, a member of the vice squad, upon whose testimony Miss Gordon was convicted in a vice case some time ago. Miss Gordon blamed McLaughlin for some of her troubles, and her conferences with the vice investigators, working under Referee Samuel Seabury, furnishes a possible motive for the slaying.

THE BONUS AND WHY.

After a war a nation may demobilize, but it does not devitalize the surviving soldiers. They are disintegrated as a war organization, but after a few years they are integrated again as a civilian, and for some purposes political, organization on a ground of common experiences and desires. If a war is fought by a small professional army it buries its dead, takes its promotions, its disability allowances and pensions, if any, and continues as it was before without disturbing the nation and generally without being much considered by it. When an army comes out of the body politic that is another matter.

English infantry, pike or musket, recruited by the press gang from negligible men, could be kicked out, wooden legs or not, as indifferently as it was coerced into being. Continental mercenaries had their quittance if they were paid on the nail; sold troops had theirs if their sovereign got his price. An unpaid soldiery could be worse than a disciplined enemy. Charles I. lost his head, parliament its life and the Presbyterian church its autocracy as the established church when the new model army found that it was to be disbanded without pay and then hounded out of its meeting houses with a price on the head of its independent clergy. Egregious folly never went further with a formidable army than that, nor did folly ever produce a greater convulsion.

Washington said that patriotism might recruit an army in its first flush, but the reliable factor was self-interest. That was human nature and war was full of it. The dependable citizen would be better for seeing an advantage and a desirable reward. A country with new lands into which an expanding population can go has land grants with which it can reward veterans, speculators frequently getting their claims. The time has gone when soldiers will shake their pikes at parliament, but in a democracy they will take their votes to congress.

The shadow of Pride's Purge has never left the legislative door. The colonel and his implacable detail did their work and passed on, but the shadow was left behind and now it is more eloquent than Mr. Mellon. He might as well talk financial policy to the north wind.

The soldiers' point of view in this bonus legislation can be easily understood. They have in their hands collateral given them by the government in accord with a traditional procedure. Some of them are in hard times and they want to use that collateral now when they think they need it more than they will fourteen, fifteen or more years from now. They see that the government has found half a billion dollars for the grain and cotton raisers, upwards of two hundred millions for California water works [with twenty millions for grapes], more millions for Alabama water power and nearly seventy millions for Arkansas, Kentucky and other southern cotton and corn farmers. And there are other millions and other millions. Subsidy, loan and gift knocked at every door, and none in vain. There had been no extreme of economic folly or of sectional self-seeking checked in a congress pliable to political winds and sucked in by every demagogic vacuum.

Furthermore, the veterans knew that there was respected financial opinion that Mr. Mellon was probably too preoccupied with the record of debt retirement in times not easy on the taxpayer and, last of all, they knew that the record of congress was its own vulnerability.

They were not asking that congress put new sluices into the treasury, create new subsidies, enter new business enterprises, take over new projects of an alien nature, make a new kind of loving gift or distribute new alms and doles. What congress had to offer them was a record of doing all these things. Even if Mr. Mellon's preview of the consequences undershot the probability and Mr. Hoover's sense of calamity was not sensitive enough, congress had prepared for itself just one line of action. That was to take to the treetops. Back to a state of nature, throwing down the cocoanuts.

IF THE MILITARY ACADEMY MOVES.

Gov. Emmerson has done well to advance the claims of Illinois for the United States Military academy in case that institution is removed from its site upon the Hudson. Conditions at West Point are not favorable to the expansion of the academy's facilities, and these facilities are needed under modern conditions of training. In the army, therefore, although there is a strong and natural sentiment for the historic place, there has been in recent years some serious discussion of removal to some more commodious site. If this is decided upon we think the west should be seriously considered, and it is not altogether local pride or selfish interest which would emphasize the advantages of some location in Illinois.

The region about the second city of the country in the population center of the nation. There are sites obtainable at a moderate cost which are much more suitable for the purposes of military training than West Point. There are political reasons of no small weight for the location of the national military institution in the heart of the country. The climate is good and both physical and social environment favorable.

At any rate, Gov. Emmerson's suggestions point in the right direction as to the considerations which should govern the selection of any new site for the academy.

UNCLE SAM AS SPECULATOR.

The Grain Stabilization corporation has announced its determination to sell up to 35,000,000 bushels of wheat which it holds at Atlantic, Pacific and gulf ports. It will sell this grain to Europe and Asia in competition with the wheat of other exporting countries. The storage facilities in our ports are filled to overflowing, the corporation announces, and it must dispose of some of its holdings if the new crop is to be accommodated.

The Grain Stabilization corporation is the farm board's agency in wheat purchases. The farm board has bought wheat with the money of the taxpayers. No precise statement can be made of the loss which the taxpayers will suffer in consequence of the farm board's speculations until the price which the wheat fetches in Europe and Asia is known; but it is obvious that the losses will be heavy. The farm board bought wheat from $1.25 a bushel down to the 76 cents at which wheat was pegged in December. It has paid heavy charges for storage and insurance. Perhaps the wheat, when sold, will bring as much as 60 cents a bushel. The taxpayers will suffer a minimum loss of about 15 cents a bushel even if world prices do not decline as a consequence of the farm board's announcement that it has wheat for sale; and on some of the wheat to be exported the loss can hardly be less than 65 cents a bushel and probably will be much more.

The losses in all probability will not end with the removal of the 35,000,000 bushels now to be sold. The government has bought more than a hundred million bushels in addition which it still holds and which will have to be sold sooner or later. Only a calamity to the 1931 crop can save the taxpayers from further losses in wheat, and so far as cotton is concerned the situation is quite as menacing.

All of these speculative ventures by the government were undertaken in good faith in the interest of the farmers. The experiment was tried under most favorable circumstances. It is doubtful if more conscientious management could have been found. Nevertheless the failure to date has been striking and the farm board has only begun to liquidate. No more impressive demonstration of the inability of the government to engage in business could be imagined.

The money which has been lost and will be lost will have been well spent if, as a result of this venture, congress and the American people come to a firm realization of the limits of governmental action. Despite its enormous financial resources and its power to supervise and coerce conduct, not even the United States government can overcome the forces of supply and demand. The experiment of our government in seeking to control the price of wheat has failed as signally as the experiments of the British government in seeking to stabilize the price of rubber and of the Brazilian government in its valorizing of coffee.

The fault was not Mr. Legge's. He did at least as well as could be expected of him. It is doubtful if any private enterprise of equal magnitude could have been conducted with less scandal. Inherent, however, in the situation was this fact: the speculations in wheat were conducted with other people's money. It was precisely because the farm board was created with the large and admirable purpose of helping the farmers that the taxpayers' money was employed injudiciously. Gambling with another man's chips is a pleasant diversion, and in this instance it had moral sanction as well. That situation will apply in any future efforts to put the government in business.

The lesson is plain. But has it been learned?

THE SPEAKEASY.

Samuel Seabury, referee in the New York magistrates' inquiry, estimates that the illicit liquor traffic in that city spends from twenty to twenty-eight million dollars a year for the protection of speakeasies. Such an estimate must be a very rough approximation, but the true sum unquestionably is enormous. When to it is added the cost of attempted enforcement, direct and indirect, the total swells.

Thus the effort to impose total abstinence upon that community not only fails of its object but adds a new burden to the taxpayer and at the same time deprives the government of a large tax revenue while turning a huge sum into the pockets of lawbreakers.

A more inefficient and costly method of dealing with the liquor traffic could not be devised, yet we are invited after ten years of trial to wait for some indefinite time longer to see if it works. We know how it works now. The speakeasy is not confined to New York nor to the great cities. It is all over the country. We are exhorted not to repeal prohibition lest the saloon come back, but the saloon is back in the worst form. Unenforceable laws did not and cannot abolish the saloon. Enforceable laws will.

Editorial of the Day

THE ANIMAL WORLD IN A MODERN CITY.

[New York Times.]

Because one out of every four school children in Los Angeles has never seen a cow, the board of education has decided to apply laboratory methods to a new problem. Every day a motor truck conveys a cow and her two calves on a tour of the public schools. The Associated Press dispatch does not make the specific statement, but we presume that the children go outside to inspect their bovine visitors.

It is not altogether to the credit of Los Angeles that it should have developed a tenement population so large as would be indicated by the fact that one child in every four has never been out in the open country long enough to have seen a cow; or, having developed a tenement population, that it should not have developed summer outing and fresh air facilities for its poorer children. Only in their readers and Mother Goose books do the little ones encounter the domestic animals.

As a result there are children in Los Angeles—and every other big American city—who know about cows that jump over the moon, and cows with crumpled horns, and other temperamental cows, but have never actually seen a cow in a barn. They know all about the sheep that Bo-Peep lost and the lamb that Mary couldn't lose, but they have still to make the acquaintance of a flock of sheep in a meadow. In New York City there must be scores of thousands of children who have stood face to face with tigers and boa constrictors and armadillos—in the Central Park zoo—but have never seen a cow.

DEFEATING DIPHTHERIA.

THERE is a good chance that diphtheria will make a bow and retire from the stage within the lifetime of people now living. It has had a decreasing prevalence for a generation and, at the present time, is of small public health importance. The Metropolitan Life Insurance company bulletin says of diphtheria: "The death rate has declined to a point where the disease may no longer be ranked as a scourge of childhood."

This statement is based upon a country-wide study of the vital statistics for 1930. The report says further: "The diphtheria death rate in the brief space of three years has been practically cut in half. In a single year it has been reduced more than one-third, and since 1911 the rate has dropped four-fifths. We may confidently look forward a relatively few years when diphtheria will be a negligible factor in our mortality. Deaths from diphtheria today are due almost altogether to ignorance or carelessness on the part of parents. When they will immunize their children through inoculation diphtheria will be out of the picture of children's afflictions."

In New York City in ten years the annual number of cases of diphtheria fell from 15,110 to 3,794, and the deaths fell still faster. Dr. James Roberts, health officer of Hamilton, Ont., writes: "During the last three years we have averaged thirteen cases of diphtheria with less than two deaths per year. We venture to hope, then, that with a still further increase in immunization, particularly among pre-school children, the disease will be eradicated."

In Hamilton they make exceptional efforts to get all the children of school age and pre-school age vaccinated against diphtheria. They succeed in vaccinating over ten per cent of the school children every year. Since protection lasts several years they figure that over 80 per cent of their school children are immune. They also try to immunize babies. They estimate that they immunize 76 per cent of the babies during the first year of life. In consequence of these successes, diphtheria has ceased to be a disease of childhood. Such cases as they have are principally among people sixteen years of age and older.

The decline in the importance of diphtheria, from the public health standpoint, is due in part to the wide use of antitoxin, to better methods of diagnosis and treatment, and to better health service; but far more of it is due to the use of vaccination, in the opinion of Dr. Roberts and of other health officers of large experience.

Dr. Roberts uses toxoids as a vaccine material. Many health officials use toxin antitoxin. Both are good. Dr. Kegel is doing some promising experimentation with Lowenstein's salve as a vaccine.

INFLAMMATION OF VEINS.

H. Y. S. writes: What causes inflammation of the veins? Is there any cure for it? If so, what is it? Is it very serious?

REPLY.

The probability is that phlebitis, or inflammation of a vein, is the result of infection by some disease producing microbe. The microbe is liable to be in the blood. It is apt to be a serious condition, principally because of complications such as blood clots. Many cases of milk leg are cases of phlebitis. There are forms of phlebitis that are more serious than milk leg.

TUBERCULOSIS GERMS.

W. W. writes: 1. In tuberculosis, if the patient uses handkerchiefs, boils them for twenty minutes in sal soda and washing powder and, when nearly dry, irons them, does that destroy any germs that may have been coughed into them. 2. Also, using a cuspidor having a solution of sal soda and cleaning same, using boiling water?

REPLY.

Yes to both questions.

BORROWS ON HIS CAR.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I wonder if you can tell me the rate of interest that can be charged a person for a loan of $50 on a car for six months payable monthly. Is it legal to charge $22 plus 7 per cent? S. G.

The maximum that can be stipulated for by contract is 7 per cent per annum in ordinary cases. In absence of agreement as to interest 5 per cent is allowed after due on notes or other instruments in writing, on money loaned, on accounts settled, on money received to use of another and retained without owner's knowledge, on money witheld by an unreasonable and vexatious delay, and on judgments. Pawnbrokers may charge 3 per cent per month and licensees of state board of trade and commerce may charge three and one-half per cent per month on loans of $300 or less. An agreement to pay more than the legal rate is usurious and only the principal can be collected. Under 1929 statute the 7 per cent limit does not apply to collateral loans exceeding $5,000.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ON ADOPTING A CHILD.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I want to ask some questions in connection with adopting a child. 1. Must I own my own home? 2. Must I employ an attorney?

The father of the child is dead and the mother is giving her consent to the adoption. I am employed as an engineer and am well able to take care of the child. O. L. H.

1. The law does not so require, but the judge could insist upon being satisfied that you were prepared to offer the proper kind of home.

2. The law does not so require but it is ordinarily advisable.

BORROWED ON FURNITURE.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband and I borrowed some money on our furniture which was not paid for. The lender knew this. Due to present conditions we are forced to send back the furniture, as we are unable to pay for it. Is this permissible if the loan is only half paid? Can the loan company prosecute us? M. M.

If your papers contained a representation that the title was clear, it might be difficult for you to satisfy a court that the lender knew that the purchase price was not been paid. You do not state whether the original seller took security.

GREATNESS AND DRY SOCKS.

Dame Rachel Crowdy of England in lecturing in Chicago on her experience in the late guerre says that none of the great really remains great at close range and cites as an instance seeing Marshal Joffre dashing into a war hut at 4 o'clock in the morning and demanding a pair of dry socks. We believe we could have gazed upon this demoralizing spectacle and still have thought that Marshal Joffre was a fairly great man.

Would Dame Crowdy have us believe that we would have thought less of the ability of Napoleon if he had dashed into a war hut at 4 o'clock in the morning demanding a pair of dry socks? No, not even if he had come in at 3 o'clock. Would we have decided that Gen. Grant was not a great man if we had seen him after he lost his false teeth in the Tennessee River? Would we have considered that George Washington had no claims to greatness if we had seen him trying to eat an orange without squirting the juice in his eye?

Our answer is, no! We could even have gazed upon Julius Cæsar rushing in at 4 o'clock in the morning and asking for a pair of dry socks without thinking any the less of him. Or William the Conqueror or the Duke of Wellington. True greatness is not impaired by demanding a pair of dry socks at 4 o'clock in the morning or even at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. But if we had ever seen even Alexander the Great, or Christopher Columbus, or Gen. Robert E. Lee sitting around in the road with a pair of wet socks on when they might have got a warm dry pair by asking for them, we would have thought their greatness was greatly overestimated and that they were what you might call plain boobs.

HOME AT LAST.

I'm surely glad I wasn't born
A kangaroo or unicorn.
I'm certain I'd dislike to be
A flea, a gnat, or bumble-bee.
(If you don't like that "be" and "bee,"
It makes no difference to me.)
But back now to our theme again:
It certainly must be a pain
(In such a place, the word "again"
Should be pronounced as if in "rain").
As I was saying, I would find
It hard to have a pair of hind
Legs or limbs like dogs and cats
Or funny wings like birds and bats.
An octopus must find a rub
In having scores of toes to stub.
Or if he hasn't any toes—
(Has he any toes—who knows?)
I'm sure 'twould get me quite as sore
To stub my fingers on the floor.
I think I'd make an awful fuss
Were I a big rhinoceros.
The reason: (What a reason this is!)
I couldn't then enjoy your kisses.
But then again, were I a cow

ALION HARTLEY.

THE DRY SLEUTH who directed the raid on the swank Philadelphia club said: "On shelves in this room were cocktail shakers, ice scoops, and other utensils evidently used in mixing drinks." Why, the very idea! The members of the Philadelphia club should hasten to assure him that cocktail shakers and ice scoops are used in the making of rye bread, chocolate ice cream, and wheat cakes.

AND, AFTER ALL, the farm board is going to sell thirty-five million bushels of its hoarded wheat in the markets of Europe for about half what it cost. And thus, dear children, we are called upon to see another noble experiment get a swift kick in the pants.

"WHAT," whatted we to a sad eyed veteran selling apples on the corner yesterday, "will be the first thing you do after you get your bonus money?" "The very first thing?" asked he. "The very first thing," said we. "I will take the money the government gives me, or rather loans me," said he, "and I shall go out and buy me an old apple orchard. Then I will buy me a nice new ax. And then the way I will cut down them damn apple trees will certainly be nobody's business."

MR. ALPHONSE CAPONE was requested by a federal judge in Chicago yesterday not to go galloping off to Miami, but to remain within his home town for six months at least. It would be a great help to our World's Fair in 1933 if Mr. Capone could be prevailed upon by one of our various judicial bodies to tarry with us until our great Exposition of Progress is over. While he would not necessarily be on exposition, the mere fact that he was remaining in Chicago would, no doubt, be of great interest.

WISDOM.

I went down to market to buy a dream or two,
One wrapped in red paper, one tied up with blue.
I had saved my Aprils, never bought a June,
I went down to market, shopping for a moon.

"Wrap it in lace paper, like a valentine,
So I gave my orders. . . . "Make the package gay,

I walked gayly homeward, smiled and hummed a tune,
Even stars can tarnish . . . now I'm wise I hope,
The next time I go shopping maybe I'll buy soap.

HELEN WELSHIMER.

LAGNIAPPE.

AND ONE PLACE that Mr. Capone will not be so ill that he cannot attend is the county jail.

PRETTY GOOD FOR A POOR OLD CRIPPLE

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 28, 1915.

LONDON.—Forty warships, twelve of them of the pre-dreadnaught type, making up the allied fleet, have forced their way fourteen miles past the outer forts of the Dardanelles and are now pounding to dust the inner Turkish defenses. As a result there is panic in Constantinople, and the sultan is said to be ready to flee.

PARIS.—An official war statement says: "Our artillery in the Argonne exploded an ammunition depot near St. Hubert. In the wood near Melincourt, between the Argonne and the Meuse, the enemy again sprayed one of our advanced trenches with burning liquid, necessitating the abandonment of the trench, the occupants of which were seriously burned. A counter attack immediately checked the Germans, who suffered losses, including a number of prisoners. We made fresh progress to the west of Perthes and to the north of Beausejour."

PETROGRAD.—The German forces are being thrust back across the Niemen river in northern Poland with heavy losses. Farther to the south the Russians have recaptured Przasnysz, which the Germans occupied two days ago.

TOLEDO, O.—Clarence R. Featherstone, 22, found his mother after a separation of years. He was about to marry her when he made the discovery of the relationship.

NEW YORK.—Five liners sailed from New York, braving the possibilities of the war zone ordered by Germany around the British isles. They were the Lusitania of the Cunard line, the St. Paul of the American line, the Touraine of the French line, the Rotterdam of the Holland-America line, and the Cymric of the White Star line.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 28, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Joseph Goldstein, a junk dealer, was arrested on the charge of being the man who paid 11 cents for a quantity of rags in which $3,670 had been concealed by Mrs. Thomas Connoly, 4013 Armour avenue. Goldstein denied he was the man and says he did not receive the money.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In the senate tonight the Cuban statement of policy and the Spooner resolution providing for a civil government for the Philippines were both passed by overwhelming majorities. The Cuban statement was adopted by a vote of 43 to 20. Thus congress has decided the conditions on which the President is authorized to withdraw the troops from Cuba. Until those conditions are met the Cuban republic will not be recognized by the United States or any other country. The Spooner bill providing for a temporary civil government in the Philippines went through the senate by a vote of 45 to 27.

NEW YORK.—The National league baseball magnates meeting here adopted a rule which does away with the intentional "fouling off" of pitched balls by a batsman. The first and second foul balls hit by the batsman, unless two strikes already have been called against him, shall henceforth be counted as strikes.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 28, 1881.

SCRANTON, Pa.—Seventeen inmates of St. Patrick's Orphan asylum of Hyde Park, comprising fourteen boys and three girls, ranging in age from 6 to 12 years, were suffocated by an unexplained fire. The children were found huddled together beneath their cots, all having been smothered.

CHICAGO.—William Holbrook, long a well known citizen of Chicago, is dead. He was born in Manchester, England, in 1803. In association with Gen. Stewart, Dr. Dyer, J. Young Scammon, H. K. Swift, and others, Mr. Holbrook built the first piece of plank road running out of Chicago.

NEWCASTLE, Natal.—A severe engagement took place today between the Boers and Gen. Colley's force, and the latter was driven from its position at Spitzkop. There was great loss on both sides. Many British officers were killed and wounded. A later telegram from Colley's camp says all the wounded coming in agree in reporting that Gen. Colley has been killed and only 100 British escaped. The Boers charged up the hill four times, and were about retreating, when the British were forced to retire because their ammunition had not been taken to the extreme summit.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

DENEEN'S WORK.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Well, I hope Lame Duck Deneen is satisfied now. At the time of the attempted Republican coalition the old political war horse was unable to dominate, and the idea of merely coöperating was too repugnant to one of his ilk, so the consequence was that the nomination of Thompson was assured. Undoubtedly Albert is a good man, but the time was not ripe, and any sensible person could sense the political atmosphere and realize that Albert's candidacy only took a sufficiently substantial number of votes away from Lyle and permitted the incumbent to be nominated again. DAVID KRUEGER.

THIRD PARTIES.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Please try to use your influence to stop Dr. Bundesen from running. It will only result in Thompson again. No third party has ever won, not even Theodore Roosevelt. MRS. T. N. LOFGREN.

NO MORE CANDIDATES.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—The Republican voters of Chicago have disgraced themselves beyond pardon. Let us and all good men stick unswervingly to Cermak and avoid all division of votes by a third candidate, however good.

JOHN T. CROFTS.

A VISION OF SANTA CLAUS.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—I used to think THE TRIBUNE was a great newspaper, but since you pulled this dirty mud slinging primary election I know now that it is the world's greatest nuisance. Wake up and see Santa Claus. You can't fool the people all the time; they don't believe your bunk any more. Their votes at the polls show that you help elect your opponents by your slanderous lies about them. Take my tip and get on the winner, for Big Bill Thompson will be our next mayor.

EDWARD J. SINARD.

THE LESSON.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Let us trust that Dr. Bundesen or overenthusiastic friends of his will profit by the lesson taught all intelligent voters in the late primary. A splendid public spirited man, held in high repute by his intelligent fellow men, put Thompson in as candidate for mayor by not gracefully retiring weeks ago when he saw the writing on the wall. For once let the decent voter, irrespective of party, show his strength at the coming election by having but one decent, honorable man as our choice against Thompson. Dr. Bundesen is loved by many, but will be eulogized by all if he will sit still, remain where he is and thus help Chicago more than any one else to get rid of Thompson. M. A. R.

SLOGANS.

DISCOURAGED.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 25.—My present home is in Harrisburg, Pa. My firm has given me the choice of moving to Chicago or Cincinnati. I have been waiting for the primary election to see what happened. Apparently Chicago not only is content with the mire but wants to sink lower. I have decided to live here. Even though it means less money, it's halfway decent. J. W. WHITE.

PINS AND BUTTONS.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—The laundries deliver clothes stuck full of pins and with the buttons of the shirts and other buttoned garments buttoned from top to bottom. This adds an unnecessary and irritating task to the already long enough list of motions and maneuvers required in getting ready for the day.

I patronize the Chinese laundry now because the Chinaman inserts no pins and buttons no buttons. The shirt comes out of the package ready to put on. The oriental has a superior intelligence. There is no other explanation.

CHARLES GRANT.

FARM NEWS.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—I wish to express the appreciation of the Illinois Agricultural association for the accurate and sympathetic manner in which your representative, Mr. Paul Potter, handled the news of our recent annual meeting at Springfield. A large number of our members, particularly those in the northern half of Illinois, read your paper regularly. You are doing them a service in reporting news about their organization, along with news of general agricultural interest. GEORGE THIEM, Director, Department of Information, Illinois Agricultural Association.

FROM MR. SOELKE.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—A letter appearing in the Voice of the People section of THE TRIBUNE under date of Feb. 27, 1931, purporting to have come from me, states:

In the sanitary district alone it costs hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash and equipment to break in new men every time new trustees are elected.

Why not talk about civil service for the sanitary district?

This communication was not written by me nor with my consent or knowledge, and does not express my opinion of the service of the sanitary district. On the contrary, my experience as engineer of substation operation justifies me in unqualifiedly stating that the operating service of the electrical department stands well above the average, and not one experienced man in this department has been removed from the service in the past four years, either during a change of administration or at any other time.

It is common knowledge that at the last session of the legislature the sanitary district asked that a civil service law be passed for sanitary district employés, and the present record of the district indicates that the present session also is to be asked to pass a civil service law for the sanitary district.

ROBERT H. SOELKE, Engineer of Substation Operation.

FAMILY PRIDE.

Hammond, Ind., Feb. 22.—I wish to thank you very cordially for your editorial relative to the qualities of George Washington. He had them all and more, too. ELWOOD WASHINGTON.

SPARKS FLYING IN IOWA QUIZ ON UNIVERSITY

Student Paper Editorial Charges Politics.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—While the legislative investigating committee prodded exhaustively today into details of alleged petty graft, irregularities and waste in the expansion building program of the University of Iowa, the factional struggle underlying the investigation, on which hinges future control of the university, blazed out in new directions.

The Daily Iowan, student publication at Iowa City, came out with a stinging editorial, supposedly with the approval of the university authorities, in which it asks:

"Is the University of Iowa an editorial institution or a political football? It is in the latter capacity that the university has been treated as legislative investigation progresses. A political faction for which Verne Marshall has been the spokesman is out to get administration men who have brought the university to high educational levels.

See Factional Control.

"To date that faction apparently controls or influences Gov. Dan Turner, Attorney General John Fletcher, the Iowa house of representatives and four of the six legislators on the investigation committee."

The first reaction to this was the sending of a notice to the Daily Iowan by Mr. Marshall, Cedar Rapids publisher, the prosecuting witness, demanding a retraction. This is preliminary to a libel suit under the Iowa laws. The student paper has been carrying pages of testimony daily.

Late this afternoon, when most of the members of the house had departed for the ten day recess, Representative Byron G. Allen of Pocahontas, a country newspaper editor and member of the investigating committee who has voted against the wishes of the university attorney, presented a resolution denying that the committee had been influenced by enemies of the university.

"This inquiry was decided upon by the general assembly after attention had been directed to details of administration which seemed to wararnt investigation for the good of Iowa's educational institutions," he said.

Sees Hostility to Committee.

"Since this inquiry opened, it has been apparent to members of the committee that hostility to the investigation existed in certain circles and among certain members of the Iowa press.

"The so-called university lobby has been in evidence about the state house and in the committee sessions since the investigation was requested by Gov. Dan Turner and since the inquiry formally opened.

John H. Coster, director of the Master Builders' association of Iowa, was a prosecution witness today. This association, he said, had been interested for a long time in the action of the university in taking bids away from contractors and doing the work under John Fisk, superintendent of buildings.

Much building work, the records have shown, was done under the direction of Fisk, after bids had been asked but ignored.

Worked on Homes, He Says.

Ralph Crawford, graduate of the university in 1926, now superintendent of schools in Conesville, Ia., was on the stand for hours today under examination as to his story that while he was working his way at day labor jobs through the university and during summers there, he was put at work on private homes owned by Fisk. This work, he said, was in grading and landscaping the property and he was paid by the state, not by Fisk.

HOOVER A SURE 1932 CONTENDER, BINGHAM SAYS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—The prediction that President Hoover will run for reelection was made in the senate today by Senator Bingham, in praising the President's "courage for vetoing the veterans' loan bill."

The senator said he had not talked with Mr. Hoover about a second term. "But I presume he will seek reelection," he said.

LAW FRAMED TO BRING CHICAGO STATE ROAD AID

Is Backed by Highway Chiefs at Meeting.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The Illinois Association of County Superintendents of Highways, in its annual meeting here today, ratified a legislative program and a statement of highway policies prepared by a committee headed by Eugene L. Gates, Du Page county highway superintendent.

The legislative program includes a bill, to be introduced at Springfield within a couple of weeks, that will authorize the counties to build, reconstruct or improve extensions of state aid roads into, through or around municipalities regardless of population. This would permit the Illinois highway department, which pays 50 per cent of the cost of state aid construction, to spend its first dollar within the corporate limits of Chicago, where the automobile owners pay almost half the state's total road expenditures.

Paving Bill Pending.

Under house bill 270, introduced two weeks ago by Representative Hunter, the Illinois highway department is authorized to build, reconstruct or improve extensions within municipalities of state bond issue and federal aid roads. At Chicago, as at other municipalities, the highway department, under the present laws, does not lay pavement within the corporate limits.

The most important change in highway policy recommended by the county superintendents has to do with the acquisition of right of way for state highways. The state now follows an old policy of requiring local authorities to furnish the right of way. The superintendents would have the state continue this policy in building new roads, but would require the state to buy its own right of way in improving existing state pavements with widening, realignment or grade separations.

Purpose Behind Policy.

"A new road," said R. L. Schoenberger of Bureau county, president of the association, "is a boon to abutting property today, as it has always been. The improvement of an existing pavement is for the benefit of the motoring public and not for the benefit of abutting property. Since it is not a local improvement, the right of way should not be acquired by local authorities, but by the state with funds from the motoring public that wants the increased traffic facilities."

CHARGE LAWYER WITH RECEIVING STOLEN BONDS

Attorney Julius Reznik, who was recently barred from practice in the Criminal courts because of improper filing of a habeas corpus petition, was charged yesterday with receiving stolen property. He will be arraigned in the Felony court today. He refused to discuss with Assistant State's Attorney Daniel Covelli the manner in which he came into possession of $5,000 worth of stolen bonds.

Attorney Stephen J. Sullivan, 33 South Clark street, and Attorney H. Kay George, 3259 Lawrence avenue, were exonerated by the assistant prosecutor from any criminal knowledge in the transaction.

The bonds were stolen six months ago from a client of Attorney Robert C. Baumgartner. It was recently discovered that Policeman Frank Freemuth of the detective bureau was trying to sell them. He was trapped on Thursday at a brokerage office and said that he was acting only in a friendly capacity for Attorney Sullivan. He convinced the authorities of his innocence. Attorney Sullivan said the bonds had been given to him by Attorney Reznik to be sold and that they had been accompanied by a bill of sale purporting to have been attested by Attorney George as notary public. The latter denied that he had attested the supposed bill of sale.

JAZZ CRAZE GRIPS IRELAND; CHURCH VOICES PROTEST

Fears Young Generation Is Going to Ruin.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Feb. 27.—Jazz dancing has taken such a hold on the young people of Ireland that half the population is engaged in this form of amusement. In Dublin alone half a dozen fashionable dance halls, as well as five times that number of halls in the working class district, are crowded every night. Never before has the craze risen to such a degree, never has so much money been spent on it, and never have such violent protests been made against the drinking and immorality consequent on these dances.

Right into the center of the rural areas jazz has penetrated. The gramaphone, the radio, and the movies have brought home to every household the latest productions in rhythm, and the films have familiarized even the most backward with what passes as life in high quarters.

Drinking on Increase.

The young girls of only 10 years ago would blush to show an ankle. Today the same type apes the latest Paris models, is bobbed or shingled, smokes a cigaret, and is not averse to rouge. Ten years ago at the annual soirée in the village she danced the old Irish dances, step-dances, or square dances, but not the "round" dances, like waltzes, which were held to be indelicate.

Today it is all jazz, once a week, at least, and often more frequently. Moreover, the drink habit is steadily displacing the voluntary teetotalism which every girl was wont to observe. The soft drinks have given way to the city girl's glass of port, and now the whisky and soda for the girl of the world is not unknown.

Church Is Worried.

To the local Catholic clergy—95 per cent of the Irish Free State is Catholic—the matter is causing anxiety. The bishops continually urge more and more control of dance halls. In their lenten pastoral addressed to their flocks the bishops referred to the new situation, urging the clergy to offset as far as possible the trend toward jazz by amusement of a more elevating or less demoralizing type. Ordinarily the youths of the country are loyally responsive to the voices of their pastors, but the temptations to boisterous entertainment are hard to resist.

And it is not the cities and towns which present the most difficult problem, the priests say. In the remote rural parts it is not uncommon for boys and girls to go many miles across country to attend a dance. Usually it is an all night affair, and not infrequently the illicit whisky—called poteen—made in the mountain caves, is circulated freely. The effect of this fiery "hooch" is oftentimes deadly and occasionally fights between rival swains lead to savage assaults and even murder.

Emigration Is Dropping.

Moreover, there is very little emigration, and the young and virile manhood and womanhood which in bygone years concentrated on a career in America are now forced to find an outlet for their energies at home. While they work on their parents' farmsteads in the daytime, they will not be denied their recreation in the evening. And so the problem for the clergy grows daily.

One aspect of this riot of expensive living cannot be overlooked. Experts claim it is costing far more than the community can afford. The obvious thing, they say, is to cut extravagance. But this is what the rising generation refuses to do. Money must be found for dancing, horse racing, football matches; even the small farmer has to run an automobile or his neighbors will rank him a down and out. He must have a radio and a gramaphone or a piano, even if none of the family can play it.

In face of the dire warnings of economists, there is a marked feeling of optimism and a universal tendency to assert that all will come right when the new season comes along. In this no doubt the people are encouraged by the stability of the Irish Free State government.

BOOKS

David Burnham Makes a Hit in His First Book

"This, Our Exile" Likely to Stir Controversy.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"This, Our Exile," by David Burnham [Scribners].

A remarkable new novelist has sprung up in our town, a boy of twenty-four whose name is David Burnham. "This Our Exile," his first novel, is one which no one can pass without interest. Many will, after a few chapters, perhaps, leave it because the subject matter is too intense or too drab or too something or other, or because the technique disturbs them or the style does not interest them. But even those will probably not forget the few chapters which they have read.

In other words, they may actively dislike it—if they don't like it—but they certainly will not be indifferent to it. And when you think of the countless novels issued each year that leave you flatly indifferent to them or their authors, which evaporate from your mind the way an alcohol rub's warmth cools on the instant, you thank God for a book that actively affects you one way or another.

To me there is nothing but excitement in the reading of "This, Our Exile," but I can understand a lay reader's feeling that it is too terrible the way that death stalks for pages and pages and that the unceasing minutiæ of detail may eventually drive one mad. But to any one who must look into the machinery of novel making there is a great thrill in the absolute sureness of the author in setting down that detail that's the driving force of his technique.

"This, Our Exile" is the record of a year or so in the life of a family, happy, wealthy, sure of themselves at the beginning, but finally torn spiritually and physically from their roots by the sudden illness and eventual death of the head of the family. It is told in the first person by the second son, a boy in college. The oldest son is married and living in Paris, just about to start a radical magazine. The youngest son still is in preparatory school. The mother is in the beginning a gay, young chum for her sons, in the end a nervous liability, obsessed with the idea that she must administer her husband's fortune with a stern and ungenerous hand.

The method which young Mr. Burnham uses is that of Marcel Proust. He puts down every minute detail of every thing that happens. Where he differs from Proust is that while Proust is concerned with the inner psychoses, he is concerned with the events which cause those psychoses. One might say the method is Ernest Hemingway's crossed with Proust's. But that doesn't exactly describe the method either. It is one which is strangely the author's own. One suspects that the book is autobiographical to a degree. Not otherwise could it be so intensely intimate. But it is remarkable that any one should have retained so vividly the impressions which he sets down. That is almost more remarkable than if they had been observations rather than personal reactions, for one's own emotions often cloud one's keenness of perception. Mr. Burnham's observations are as cold and unemotional as though they were made on creatures under a microscope by a seeing, but not feeling eye. And yet the book has a strange emotional power.

Read it yourselves and disagree with me if you like. It is certain that you will do either that or as completely agree with me. "This, Our Exile" is one of those inspiriting books that simply demand being talked about.

Something New on Kant; His Lectures on Ethics

"Lectures on Ethics," by Immanuel Kant [Century], presents for the first time a series of important lectures by the great German philosopher-teacher. The manuscript was discovered only a short time ago among the notes taken down by a student at Konigsberg university some time during the years 1775-1781. The lectures were delivered during the period in which the problems of Kant's "Critique of Pure Reason" were being worked out.

"The Education of a Princess," by the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia; "Grand Hotel," by Vicki Baum, and A. P. Herbert's "Water Gypsies" will be reviewed by Ethel M. Colson Brazelton at the Irving Park Woman's club on Monday, and on Tuesday at the Nineteenth Century club, Oak Park.

On Thursday at the South Shore Country club Mrs. Brazelton will discuss Arnold Bennett's "Imperial Palace," "Grand Hotel," and "The Island of Penguins," by Cherry Keaton.

Dr. Ben Reitman, author of "Second Oldest Profession," will lecture on his book on Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Café Royal and Sunday evening at 9 at the Dill Pickle club, on Monday at 11 p. m. at the Elks' club.

DAVID BURNHAM.

MRS. HELEN THOMAS WRITES SECOND BOOK ABOUT HER HUSBAND

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.] — A curious and interesting book is being published here in a few days under the title of "Grave Fairy Tale." As far as I can tell, it is a sort of interweaving of the life stories of Beethoven and Hans Andersen; but I am sure the author would not wish to be held bound by such literal reading of her sources.

MRS. HELEN THOMAS.

Let us say that she has two heroes, one who writes noble symphonies, and one who writes simple stories for children and those who never grow out of their childish love of stories. And the scene is Germany. The author is Mrs. Esther Meynell, who wrote that little volume about Magdalena Bach which was published a few years ago.

Some years ago Mrs. Helen Thomas wrote—using her initials only—a small autobiographical volume in memory of her husband, Edward. It was called "As It Was," and the style and charm of this book was immediately acclaimed. The authorship became known. Thus, in writing a sequel under the title "World Without End," Mrs. Thomas has allowed her own name to appear in full.

Ponies Heroes of Two Books for Children

Both Well Told for Lovers of Animals.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

Among the recent books for young people are two stories which one can recommend without hesitancy to lovers of "Black Beauty," for both "Moorland Mousie," by Golden Gorse [Scribner's] and "Jerry," by Eleanor E. Helm and Nance Paul [Scribner's] are first rate stories for the lover of horses.

Both are written about the wild ponies of Exmoor and each tells the story of a child's pet pony. In the first, "Moorland Mousie" tells the story of his own life, and a very interesting story it is. His first home was a very happy one, but one day Moorland Mousie became excited when he was out for a canter, and gave his little mistress a fall. This resulted in his being sold, and then began a life that was not so happy. When after some years his little mistress meets him and buys him back again he is a sadder and a wiser pony. Young readers will rejoice in the story of how the little work-wearied pony made good upon his return to the children and achieved the desire of every pony's heart by winning the place of honor when his young master rode to the hunt. It is a delightful story, beautifully told.

"Jerry" is also a story of a wild Exmoor pony who became a boy's pet and carried off the prize in a pony meet. This story tells of the family life into which the pet pony goes, and of his part in it. Both of the books give good pictures of English country life and the part horses play in the life of the upper middle class children.

Another story of English children and their outdoor life is Arthur Ransome's "Swallows and Amazons." This is a story for those who love make-believe adventure. The Swallows and the Amazons were two groups of children spending their summer at the seaside, who turned their boats into pirate ships, their island into a mystery land, and set out to conquer each other. There is a mystery and a buried treasure and the summer days pass all too quickly.

Good Pirate Story About Days of the Revolution

"Captain Nemesis," by Van Wyck Mason [Putnam], is the sanguinary story of a superpirate of revolutionary days. A cashiered colonial officer in the English navy escapes from a prison ship, turns pirate, but battles only other buccaneers. He saves his sweetheart from another sea robber, and later, when war breaks, hoists the American flag and smashes up the villain, then captain on an English frigate. A rip snorting sea tale.

SMALL TOWN GIRL MEETS ADVENTURES AFTER WAR EFFORTS

"The Indiscreet Years," by Larry Barretto [Farrar & Rinehart], tells the story of a woman whose life was molded by the war into something completely remote from what would have seemed inevitable in the days when she was growing up in a smallish town. She then was spending part of each year with an invalid aunt in New York and being suppressed all over the place. Her metamorphosis started in Rouen in 1918. Then and there as a war worker so much prettier than any of the others, as well as the only American in a group of stolid English, she met her first alluring Irishman.

LARRY BARRETTO.

If, as has been observed pungently, a woman's first Englishman goes completely to her head, a woman's first Irishman, with all of the English trappings, is sheer dynamite. Helena Fane emerged from the detonation with only the greater portion of her spirit shot to shreds. There still was enough to get her to England to await the birth of her child. There she met an Englishman of another type who nurtured her, helped her through her despair, sent her to his charming country house for her trial and eventually came himself to live with her there. She left him after she discovered that he was more than a little mad over the occult.

Her next indiscretion was in Paris. There she became the mistress in name only of a famous man about town. When she discovered that he wanted everything from her but love and was using her to kill his reputation of abnormality she left him. Next there was an artist on the Basque coast whom she gave to his possessive little cousin from America who was determined to marry him.

And finally, in Florence the miracle of love really happened to her. It was a mere boy and she sent him [unintentionally] to his death, because she loved him too much to risk marrying him. One indiscretion after another, never thinking of herself, never really thinking about anything until the boy's love woke her to the tragedy of life. And then her aunt's death and poverty facing her, with no training in either life or work, and she committed her last indiscretion. That wouldn't be fair to disclose.

MANGA REVA
The FORGOTTEN ISLANDS
With an introduction by EUNICE TIETJENS

THOUGH but tiny specks in the vast blue desert of ocean, the islands of the Gambier archipelago, of which Manga Reva is the largest, offer the very essence of the South Seas, heady with color and romance.

With the eye of an artist, the imagination of a poet, and the curiosity of a scientist, Mr. Eskridge has caught their strange spirit.

In ravishing beauty of color he writes of the people and their customs, and the manifestations of the supernatural on Manga Reva; of Père Laval, who tried to build a great city with Polynesian labor; of the old Cannibal Kings, and how he found the tomb of one of them; of the possibility of a great Pacific continent, now submerged.

The Best Seller of 1931

a princess was swept into revolution and exile. A dramatic adventure has become an engrossing book, which in turn, has become an instantaneous and overwhelming best-seller. Its author, Marie, Grand Duchess of Russia and one of the last of the Romanovs, writes as intensely as she lived. Through her experiences—experiences which are a part of living history—one witnesses the death of a dynasty. She has written the almost incredible story of her transition from a guarded existence to the chaos of war and revolution. Illustrated. $3.50

"I find in it the qualities which have always seemed to me to belong to the great Russian novelists."—André Maurois, N. Y. Herald Tribune.

"Nothing could be conjured up out of the imagination half so full of romance and excitement and wild, fantastic improbability as this true story, a deeply moving and a gallant book."—Alexander Woollcott.

"It is a moving story of a courageous and brilliant woman."—Mazo de la Roche.

Grand Duchess Tells Calmly of Russ Debacle

Sees Humor Mixed with Own Suffering.

"When we were going through Kansas the other day on our way to Emporia I kept my eyes glued to the glass. It made me homesick. That flat country was so much like my Russia," said Marie, grand duchess of Russia, whose "Education of a Princess" is one of the most popular books of nonfiction of many a day. "I shook hands with 1,500 people after my lecture. I love it that people like my book."

She was across the luncheon table, looking like a smart New Yorker, which she is these days, talking with a pleasant but not a disconcerting accent, and laughing, really laughing, from the toes up, whenever anything amusing was said, the way that really nice people all over the world appreciate charming little jokes.

It was obvious that not only did the 1,500 enthusiasts like her book, but they most unquestionably must have liked her. Nobody could help it. That human, real quality which makes "Education of a Princess" a remarkable human document makes her the easiest person in the world to talk to.

How impressively real "Education of a Princess" is no one can tell you as well as reading the book for yourself. The actual facts which it contains are as startling in their lights and shades as those on the life of any woman extant, and the character which those circumstances produced shines from its pages.

The author has come to see life as a whole. Ironic as the title is—so ill prepared was she for what life offered her—there is no satire in the book. Neither is there—what might so easily have been there—any sentimentality.

There are probably few well born women in the world who have suffered the actual physical and mental anguish which she suffered during the years when not only her own life and the lives of those she loved were in danger, but when there actually was nothing to eat. The description of the first real meal which she and her husband had after their escape from Russia is heartbreaking, although as she tells it the incident has humor.

There were two intense passions in her life, her love for her brother (and her father) and her love for her country. She is never sloppy about either of them, but they fill her life. She is most restrained about the incident of the murder of Rasputin, which was the patriotic work of her brother, Dmitri, and a companion. She says her brother took an oath never to tell the details of the killing and he never has broken his word—but all that that meant to her family and her country is inherent in the pages.

She tells nothing about the murder of her cousin, the czar, and his family—at that time she was a nurse, not a figurehead but an actual everyday bandaging and head holding and anesthetic administering overworked woman trying to patch up bodies.

What the coming of communism and bolshevism meant to her and to those two passions of hers she tells only as factual events, not as emotional history. It takes character to keep from high sentimental writing in such cases.

"Education of a Princess" is a real contribution to autobiography, not only for the facts which it contains—many of them intimate as well as historically important—but for its chronicle of the building of human character.

And she is human enough (and young enough, too) to be thrilled with the reception which her book and her lectures are having. When I told her, as I shook hands in leaving, that my number ought to be 1501 because I, too, was from Kansas, she acted as if that prairie were indeed our joint homeland. She will return to Chicago and will autograph copies of "Education of a Princess" in the book section of Marshall Field & Co. on the morning of March 7. F. B.

Nansen's Trip Into Russia Describes Land and Its People

"Through the Caucasus to the Volga" [Norton] is a translation of the last book of the great explorer, Fridtjof Nansen.

As every one knows, his organization of the relief work among the suffering populations of the near east was superb. It was responsible for a book called "Armenia and the Near East." Following those months Dr. Nansen made a journey (in the summer of 1925) through the Caucasus and up the Volga. He set down his impressions of the scenery and the people, both fascinating to him.

His skilled and intense observations come to us now for the first time in translation.

The authorized biography of Nansen is in preparation in Norway by Jon Sorenson and will be published some time this year by W. W. Norton.

Some Explanatory Reading for the Gang Story Fans

"The Mind of the Murderer," by Harold Dearden [Sears], is one of those strange, gripping books which analyzes strange mental states. The author first of all sets down his principles about the mental states which lead to murder. Then he tells the facts of a series of famous murders and analyzes those specific cases. The book "explains murder" to the general reader.

Dobie, Rancher, Braves Crowd at Tea Party

Tells of Researches for Buried Treasure.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—J. Frank Dobie, author of "Coronado's Children," is both a rancher and a college professor. With his experience punching cows and handling undergrads, Mr. Dobie is not one to be stampeded by the tea parties, newspaper interviews, and radio broadcasts to which New York subjects visiting celebrities.

J. F. DOBIE.

His present visit here was limited to five high pressure days, and it wasn't until Friday that we caught up with him, guest of honoring at Mrs. John Leckie's high, wide and handsome afternoon affair.

With a hundred or so people milling around, Mr. Doble took it all in his stride; never a hint of speeding up his soft Texan draw; never a nervous tug at his forelock of iron gray hair. He looks not unlike Will Rogers; has the same swinging walk and, too, the same easy comradeship with all the world.

It was all of ten years ago, Mr. Doble says, that he started collecting the legends of lost mines and buried treasure which he records in "Coronado's Children." There was considerable research in the archives of Texas involved, for his history covers four centuries. But many and many of the tales were told him round the campfire by ranchers, Mexicans, and Indians whose forbears had been involved in a search for gold. Some of the stories came first hand from actual treasure hunters, of whom, it seems, there are still a goodly number digging holes in the southwest.

It was also on Friday afternoon that Mr. and Mrs. Cass Canfield set forth tea cups and tall thin glasses in honor of J. B. Priestley, author of "The Good Companions" and "Angel Pavement," who arrived from England a fortnight ago. He is giving a few lectures in New York and vicinity, but early in March proceeds to San Francisco, whence he embarks for a holiday in Tahiti. This is Mr. Priestley's first visit to America, and he's rather a restive and self-conscious literary lion, not quite ready to admit it's fun being stared at and poked with questions.

Former Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver was the centripetal force responsible for the informal gathering in the Liveright offices at the tea hour last Tuesday. His autobiography, "The Dangerous Life," had reached the galley proof stage when he rushed to town to tuck in an epilogue setting forth his recent Bishop Manning controversy. Judge Lindsey isn't a tall man; the years have abstracted a bit of his hair, touched the rest with gray, but he's brimful of energy and even at a tea party gives the impression of riding high seas of excitement.

Scientific Stars Convey Solar System to Laity

"Splendor of the Heavens," edited by the Rev. T. E. R. Phillips, secretary of the Royal Astronomical society, and Dr. W. H. Steavenson [McBride], is a huge outline of astronomy, composed of papers from leading astronomers, all of them with F. R. A. S. and assorted other impressive initials after their names, and filled with the most entrancing illustrations, which are a boon to the slightly muddle-headed. It is done for the layman, and actually does disclose to him the splendor of the heavens.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS

FICTION.

Old New Orleans, by Frances Tinker and Edward Larocque Tinker [Appleton], are four little tales of the old southern city, the second in the series which began with Edith Wharton's "Old New York."

Gardener of Evil, by Pierre Loving [Brewer and Warren] is a biography-novel of Baudelaire.

The Light That Never Was, by Katherine Fullerton Gerould [Scribners] is a poignant story of young love.

My Uncle Oswald, by Roy L. McCardell [Farrar and Rinehart] is more about the Crutch family by the author of "My Aunt Angie."

The Name of Action, by Graham Greene [Doubleday Doran] is a brilliant psychological melodrama, with a bored young English millionaire as hero, by the author of "The Man Within."

Peregrine, by Dyke-Acland [McBride] is an intensely British story of an Englishman from early boyhood to the late thirties.

The Democrat at the Supper Table, by Emanuel Furth [Nicholas L. Brown] is a pleasant story of life in the Quaker City in the latter half of the 19th century.

East Is Always East, by Pamela Wynne [Doubleday Doran] is a triple romance of India telling the love stories of two sisters and their mother.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

My Life Story from Archduke to Grover, by Leopold Wolfin [Dutton], records the true adventures which happened to the ex-Archduke Leopold of Tuscany.

St. Loe Strachey, by Amy Strachey [Brewer and Warren], is a sketch and intimate account of the owner and editor of the London Spectator by his wife.

World Without End, by Helen Thomas [Harpers], is the love story of Helen Thomas, the wife of the English poet, Edward Thomas, who was killed at Gallipoli.

Bliss Carman, by James Cappon [Louis Carrier and Alan Isles], tells of the literary current and influence of that poet's time.

J. C. Penney, by Robert W. Bruere [Harpers], is an autobiography of the founder of a chain of stores.

NONFICTION.

Trade-Marks, by Clarence P. Hornung [Caxton Press], is a signed and limited edition containing reproductions of fifty-three trade-marks designed by him.

An Introduction to Persian Art, by Arthur Upham Pope [Peter Davies], is an invaluable volume of information and especially timely with the remarkable Persian exhibition in London capturing the modern world. It discusses and illustrates all branches of Persian arts and crafts.

The One Way Ride, by Walter Noble Burns [Doubleday Doran] is "the red trail of Chicago gangland," by the author of "The Saga of Billy the Kid."

The World Crisis, by Winston S. Churchill [Scribners] is a new edition in one volume of that classic.

Rainbow Fragments, by J. Marion Shull [Doubleday Doran] is a handsomely illustrated book on the iris for garden lovers.

Eat and Grow Thin, by Vance Thompson [Dutton] is a new revised edition of the first famous book on reducing.

Lo! by Charles Fort [Claude Kendall] is like the author's previous fascinating volume, "The Book of the Damned," about staggeringly strange marvels.

Wit and Wisdom of Morocco, by Edward Westermarck [Liveright] is an important study of proverbs and customs of the Moors by a very well known anthropologist.

The Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, chronicles the industrial development in the south.

A Biographical History of the French Revolution, by J. Mills Whitham [Viking] tells the story of the stormiest period in French history through biographies of its principal participants.

The Course of Empire, edited by Valeska Bari [Coward McCann], is an exciting account of the gold rush of '49.

Thirty Years War for Wild Life, by William T. Hornaday [Scribners] is a saga of fights and victories in the defense of game and legitimate sport during the author's years as director of the New York zoölogical parks.

Do women chase after show boys the way men chase after show girls? Read this former show boy's novel about the backstage love racket among the lowly hoofers, a show boy's story that was never told before.
The unseen lives and loves of the chorus, the exploitation of woman's beauty, the offstage whoopee that starts at midnight, the enthralling glamour of the theatre, the foot-blistering ordeals of rehearsal—all the gayety and heartbreak, all the passion and the drama that theatregoers never suspect behind the grease paint, the dancing feet, the songs, and the spotlight embraces.

A. B. GARRETSON, RAILWAY LABOR MAN, DIES AT 75

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Funeral services for Albert Bruce Garretson, 75, former president of the order of railroad conductors, will be held Sunday. Mr. Garretson died today after an illness of several weeks of heart disease. He had not been active in the brotherhood since 1916, when he retired. Mr. Garretson was accredited with being largely responsible for averting a nation-wide strike of 400,000 railroad men in 1916. Garretson's stand was largely instrumental in getting congress to pass the Adamson eight hour bill. He was president of the conductors for ten years.

LILA JIMERSON MURDER CASE GOES TO JURY

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 27.—(AP)—A Supreme court jury late today was asked to decide the guilt or innocence of Lila Jimerson, "Red Lilac" of the Cayugas Indians, in the killing of Mrs. Henri Marchand in March last year. The charge is first degree murder.

At midnight the jury had failed to agree and was locked up for the night.

It was the second time that the Indian woman had been placed on trial for killing of the wife of the artist for whom she used to pose. The first trial ended when she collapsed in court as the case was about to be given to the jury.

Honor Chicago Boy, First American Killed in War

PARIS, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Members of the American colony, headed by officials of the Trench and Air association of former American soldiers in the French army today commemorated the 16th anniversary of the death of Edward Mandell Stone, the first American volunteer killed during the world war. Stone was born in Chicago, but enlisted in the French army at the outbreak of the war from New Bedford, Mass. A wreath was deposited to his memory at the foot of the monument to American volunteers killed in France in the Place des Etats Unis.

Belle Livingston Must Pay Claire Briggs Estate $5,500

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A judgment for $5,500 against Belle Livingstone, night club hostess, sentenced recently to 30 days in jail for contempt of court as a result of a liquor law violation, was granted the estate of the late Clare Briggs, newspaper cartoonist, today. Henry A. Thelusson, administrator of the estate, charged Miss Livingstone had given Briggs a bad check for $2,000 in 1928 and the estate also had been unable to collect on a note for $3,300 given to the cartoonist by Miss Livingstone in 1928.

Four Indicted in Ohio for Slaying Chicagoan

Elyria, O., Feb. 27.—(AP)—First degree murder indictments in the slaying of Jan. 28 of Norman White, 60, a salesman and former member of the Chicago Board of Trade, were returned by the Lorain county grand jury against four men here today. They are Spener Stevens, 23; Edward P. Nolan, 28; Morris Rice, and Arthur Wallace, all of Lorain.

Daisy De Boe Loses New Round in Appeals Court

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Daisy De Boe lost another fight for freedom today when the District Court of Appeals denied an original application for release on bail. Miss De Boe is serving a term of eighteen months in the county jail for the theft of $825 from Clara Bow.

In Which a Moonlight Bath Is Found Not Bad at All

Miss Ruby Anderson, 18 years old, is not an inmate of a disorderly house nor is her mother the owner of such a house, just because Ruby decided during a party to take a bath in the moonlight and nothing else. Judge Ross C. Hall in the Criminal court so ruled yesterday when he found Miss Anderson and her mother not guilty of the charges made by Sergt. Edward Feldman of Maywood. The case went to the Criminal court on an appeal from a $50 fine imposed by Justice of the Peace Richard Betts of Maywood.

John C. Sullivan, Railway Veteran, Will Be Buried

John C. Sullivan, chief operator of the telegraph department of the Chicago and North Western railroad, who died on Thursday, will be buried today at Rosehill cemetery after services at 9:30 o'clock at St. Mary and Margaret church, 2200 Chase avenue. He had served in the telegraph department of the road for 44 years, and had lived in Chicago since 1895. He came here from Milwaukee. Surviving Mr. Sullivan are his widow, Sadie, and three children, John D., Florence, and Ruth.

Winnetka Wife, Mourning Loss of Husband, Is Dead

Heart disease, apparently caused by grief over the death of her husband five days ago, caused the death yesterday of Mrs. Jane Regan, 74 years old, at her home at 1040 Tower road, Hubbard Woods. Her husband, William E. Regan, also 74 years old, died of heart failure in a Milwaukee sanitarium last Monday. Following his burial Mrs. Regan became ill and succumbed. They had been married 46 years. Mrs. Regan will be buried at Brighton, Wis.

David P. Roy, Importer, Falls Dead at Des Plaines

David P. Roy, 51 years old, 1634 Henry avenue, Des Plaines, an importer of seeds, plants and bulbs, fell dead, presumably of heart disease, last night as he entered his home after a business trip to Chicago. He is survived by his widow, Margaret, and one daughter, Mrs. Mary Weideman of Moline, Ill. Funeral services will be held at Des Plaines on Monday afternoon.

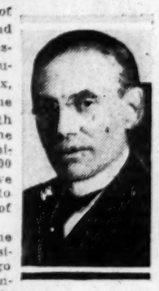
W. D. M'ILVAINE, RESIDENT HERE 70 YEARS, DIES



W. D. McILVAINE.

William Dickson McIlvaine, for years president of the National Safeguard company of New York and Chicago, died yesterday of pneumonia at Phoenix, Ariz. He had gone to Arizona with Mrs. McIlvaine from their Chicago home at 1100 Lake Shore drive last month to spend the rest of the winter.

Mr. McIlvaine had been a resident of Chicago for 70 years, coming here at the age of seven with his parents from Albany, Ill. His father, John D. McIlvaine, had settled there with his wife, Catherine Slaymaker McIlvaine, in 1843, engaging in the warehouse business.

William McIlvaine attended old Newberry school and later Central High school. At the age of 14 he got a job in the clothing store of Baker & Gifford on Lake street. He was later associated with the J. V. Farwell company, and in 1899 founded the McIlvaine Adjustment company. Mr. McIlvaine later became president of the National Safeguard company and treasurer of the Penn Mining company of Calaveras county, California. He married Catherine Harmon, daughter of John K. Harmon, a partner in the Farwell company, in 1889.

Funeral services will be held here on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Fourth Presbyterian church. He is survived by his widow, and a son, John.

Mrs. Gladys H. Bewms Tells Daily How to Guide Children

THE SIXTH JOURNEY

BY ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

SYNOPSIS.

John Falconer, a successful architect, returning home to England from Cape Town, is annoyed to find Hilary Revel, the author of travel books, in the space he'd reserved on deck. They both desired seclusion. Hilary had just lost her invalid brother, Hugh. John, while a soldier, had an affair with a young café singer, who bore him a daughter out of wedlock. John's wife, Sylvia, adopted the child. John adored Sylvia and was desolate when she died. Her sister then took charge of Judith.

INSTALLMENT VI.

AMIABLE WRANGLING.

"Surely, I was never as pompous as all that," said an uneasy voice beside her.

Turning her head, Hilary found Falconer watching her with a puzzled, rather forlorn air, and out of her own depression her aloofness melted and she smiled.

"But why pompous?"

"Isn't it pompous to want to travel incognito? Surely."

"Well, I certainly seem to have succeeded in doing that," retorted Falconer; and Hilary leaned back in her chair and laughed.

There was something so frank and friendly in the sound that he found his own laughter joining in with an ease that surprised him. His experience had made him afraid of women; they had perhaps managed and mothered him too much, to his own undoing; but this pale, tired looking girl beside him, with her quick wit and straight glance, belonged to no category of women that he knew.

"You know," she said, looking at him reflectively, "I should love to know how you escaped a fanfare of trumpets at the wharf."

"Perhaps," he suggested, "the public were too kind to show their relief at my departure so openly. People have been extraordinarily kind to me, and I am not as ungrateful as I may seem, but the South African summer rather knocked me out, and this voyage is the only holiday I shall get. It was the thought of traveling with a crowd of acquaintances and having to be sociable that made me run. Officially, I was called home on urgent business."

"Then this is where I relapse into my promised silence, I suppose," agreed Hilary, demurely.

"Great heavens, you don't imagine you are being sociable, do you? I've never met any one who quarreled with greater ease."

"You're not telling me you wrote the Revel guides?"

"O, then we continue to brawl? But it is at your own risk, remember. I thought perhaps you were traveling by the Pericles for reasons of sentiment—classical sentiment, of course. You are an authority on the glory that was Greece, I know."

"Nothing of the kind, and I'm not going to be baited for the sins of the council. Having designed their library, I could not very well refuse to read a paper when they asked me," said Falconer, indignantly. "They glanced at about three lines of it, then christened it to their own taste, but the subject was the history of architecture—the only one I know anything about—very badly delivered, as you will agree."

"I am afraid I left after the third line," she admitted.

"I don't blame you."

Hilary regarded him wickedly for a moment and then, as the gong rang for luncheon, gathered her things together.

"After all, it's only fair you should know the name of your adversary," she said. "I am Hilary Revel."

"How do you do, Miss Revel," he returned, with a bow.

"No, no, that is your cue for a guilty start," she told him, laughing, and went off down the deck.

So he did not, after all, connect her with the Revel guides; had not, apparently, even heard of her from Mrs. Casaylis? Hilary, thinking it over at luncheon, remembered what Hugh had said: "The old girl keeps her pets in watertight compartments, and in your way you are attractive." But was she? Hugh saw so much, and he had been right about Mrs. Casaylis. Was she, Hilary, then still dangerous in such a woman's eyes? The idea filled her with such bewildered surprise that when the meal was over she went down to her cabin and stared at herself in the glass. Her obvious ineligibility while she traveled the world with Hugh had put any thoughts of marriage out of her mind. To this, perhaps, in part was due the frank friendliness which Falconer had found so attractive in her, but she was unaware of this. Like most habitual wanderers, she talked easily when she chose to talk at all, but now she realized for the first time she was alone and free and that she had spent the entire morning wrangling amiably with a strange young man.

When resolutely she returned to the deck Falconer was smoking a pipe, but rose to put it out as he saw her approach.

"Please don't," she said. "I'm going to have a cigaret myself, and then I shall go to sleep."

"Then you had better have this 'round you, hadn't you?" he said. "I suppose this sleep is going to be a refresher for the next round?"

"O, dear, haven't we finished the battle yet?" she protested.

"Finished?" he echoed, in a tone of outrage. "You leave me like a serial story, at the crucial moment, and then ask if we haven't finished. What is all this about a guilty start? I have a good memory for faces and I'm sure I've never seen you before, Miss Revel."

"Ever hear of the Revel guides, Mr. Falconer?"

"Of course. . . . Why, are you one of those Revels? That's jolly interesting. I have a couple of the books in my bag at this moment, as a matter of fact."

"Misquote them? Now what have I done?"

"'I will ask you to accompany me this afternoon to ancient Athens,'" mocked Hilary. "'not in the somewhat tawdry manner in which we are too prone to conduct our travel nowadays, with our Revel guides in our hands!' Well, are you surprised I left after the third line?"

"But you didn't imagine I meant to suggest the guides were tawdry? They're some of the most useful little books I know."

"No good, Mr. Falconer; you see before you an outraged parent. I very nearly had you up for libel."

"You're not telling me you wrote the Revel guides?"

"Certainly I did."

"But, great heavens, you must have begun in the cradle."

"No, flattery won't help you . . . unless you mean because they are so childish," said Hilary, suspiciously.

"I mean nothing of the kind. I have always supposed H. C. Revel was a man, and I am stunned with admiration," declared Falconer. "As for libel, if you had stayed to hear the lecture through you would have been able to add larceny to my other crimes. I lifted no end of your book on Greece."

He looked so earnest and bashful that Hilary's sense of humor overcame her.

"Then don't do it again," she said, with a twinkle in her eye, "because I was only there three weeks and the book was probably all wrong."

Two promenading women stared at them in passing and then exchanged a significant smile.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

There's nothing very new about this one—but it's interesting. As far as that's concerned there's nothing very new about the sun, the moon, and the stars.

"Dance, Fools, Dance" is built on a yarn written with frequent reference to newspaper files. Prominent among its episodes are a gang massacre and the murder of a newspaper reporter. It is chock-full of inside dope relative to what makes the wheels of gangland go round, and Joan Crawford is here, there, and everywhere, crying, laughing, reporting for a newspaper, dancing in a cabaret, and finding fond dreams come true just in time for a H. E.

Bonnie is a society girl whose wealthy father loses all he has and dies, leaving his daughter and his son Rodney to shift for themselves. Their furniture is all sold at auction. Their friends prove the fair weather kind. Bonnie, undeterred by the writhings of fell circumstance, hies herself forth and gets a "man sized job" on a newspaper. (I gather she had met the editor in happier days, for as a rule the fourth estate doesn't clasp tyros to its bosom with such thundering speed.)

Well, the girl is good. She can't type very fast and gets dizzy when confronted by the question of how many "I's" in "parallel"; but she learns. AND, when the genial reporter who has held down the desk next to her is killed—why right away the managing editor and publisher think they'd better send Bonnie out to locate the murderer. SO—Bonnie becomes a dancer in the cabaret which cloaks other activities of one Jake Luva—head of a gang of hijackers.

Now, what do you suppose Bonnie's brother has been doing all this time? It's a sad, sad story. He's been working for Jake. And—but tears blind my eyes! I can go no further . . .!

I pull myself together long enough to inform you that Bonnie, with breaking heart, does her duty . . .!

The work is full of folks who understand perfectly why Douglas Fairbanks Jr. married Miss Joan Crawford. I'm one of them. She's a lovable creature and becomes a better actress with each performance. There's something genuine about her that gets you. She gives an honest and appealing portrayal of Bonnie. Can't say much for the young man known as Bob, who loves her and is her Big Moment. Wooden. All others in the cast play up in good shape and the film has been nicely produced and smartly directed.

"ALOHA."
Directed by Al Rogell.
Presented at the Castle theater.
THE CAST.

"Aloha," means—"Farewell," in the language of the South Seas.

Those three words—farewell—South Seas—will tip off the seasoned fan as to what this movie's about. Right away he'll sense the fact that it's an "East is East and West is West, and Never the Twain Shall Meet" production, and he could tell you with his eyes closed that the heroine's a half caste who weds a white man and makes herself plenty miserable by so doing.

The late Thomas Ince is responsible for the story of "Aloha," from which he produced a silent film—along in 1914, I believe. Don't remember my reactions to that one, but found the version at the Castle only moderately entertaining. The plot's so perfectly obvious, the lines are so trite and "expected," the situations are so old-fashionedly melodramatic.

O, well—the acting's creditable. Raquel Torres is appealing as the half caste. Ben Lyon is nice and manly as the youth who loves her and tries his best to educate and cause his family to accept her. Other players do all they could be expected to do with their rôles. Technically "Aloha" is all right.

If you don't demand too much originality from your photoplays this one will probably please you.

Hinsdale Girl Wins Honor Key at Goucher College

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 27.—Miss Ruth Steele Buffington of Hinsdale, Ill., is one of the twenty-two Goucher college students who have been elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Dr. Allen Robertson, president of the college, announced that today.

WEDS TODAY

[Moffett Photo.]

The marriage of Miss Celia Field West, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William K. West of Hinsdale, to Bernhart Haugen, son of Mrs. Ida Haugen of 2017 Jarvis avenue, Chicago, will take place this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in Hinsdale. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Wilfred Rowell of the Union church. After a wedding trip through the south Mr. Haugen and his bride will be at home at 7301 Hillidale avenue, Chicago.

Einstein Quits California for Trip to Berlin

Takes Back New Ideas; Leaves Problems.

The work he leaves here includes problems of observation for the Mount Wilson Carnegie institution of Washington astronomers, in the field of island universes and likewise the sun, and also for the California Institute of Technology's theoretical physicists and mathematicians, in the realm of the missing links between quantum mechanics and classical laws of physics.

The work he takes with him includes the Mount Wilson discoveries of island universes speeding from the earth region at 660,000 miles a minute, and of peculiar actions in the rotation of the sun's atmosphere, for which he will try to find expression in equations that will fit into his latest theory.

Close contact will be maintained by Dr. Walter S. Adams, Dr. Edwin Hubble, Dr. Charles E St. John, and other noted astronomers of Mount Wilson with Einstein.

Dr. St. John soon will be on his way to Europe for an international conference on the sun. He will do further work with Einstein at Oxford within two months or so.

Frau Elsa Einstein confided there really is one note of good-by in their leave taking, that being to the inquisitive newspaper men, of whom, she said, so many knew so little about the processes of Einstein's thoughts.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF SHERIDAN'S BIRTH WILL BE CELEBRATED

Admirers of Gen. Philip H. Sheridan will celebrate the 100th anniversary of his birth, which occurred in Albany, N. Y. on March 6, 1831, next Friday at a luncheon. There also will be exercises at the statue of the famous cavalry leader which stands where Sheridan road enters Lincoln park from the north. The Chicago ceremonies will be supplementary to those held in New York.

In New York Sheridan will be honored as a native son of the state. In Chicago his memory will be revered not only as a great general, but also as a man who was intimately connected with the early history of Chicago. He was stationed here for years when as lieutenant general he commanded the western troops of the regular army. He was in command when the Chicago fire occurred in 1871 and directed not only the relief work but helped check the fire by blowing up buildings in its path. He was the founder and first president of the Washington Park club, under the auspices of which the American Derby was run, and he was popular in the social life of the city.

The celebration next Friday will be held under the auspices of the Gen. Philip H. Sheridan centenary committee composed largely of descendants of men who were friends of Sheridan at the time he was in Chicago. The officers of the committee are:

Chairman—John F. Bolton.
Vice-Chairmen—Leo J. Doyle, James C. Russell and Francis D. Hanna.
Secretary—Malachy M. Foley.
Treasurer—Michael J. Howlett.

Among the members of the committee are:

Edward F. Dunne	Edward N. Hurley
Rev. Robert M. Kelly, S. J.	Richard J. Collins
Dr. John J. Killeen	Dr. Thomas P. Foley
P. J. Flannery	Frank O'Neil
Thomas W. Flynn	Rostius H. Sullivan
Judge J. P. McGoorty	Edward J. Kelly
Fred V. Maguire	Michael L. Igoe
Judge Philip Sullivan	Judge J. J. Sullivan
John P. Hardiman	Judge Joseph Burke
Judge J. M. O'Connor	Theodore E. Cornell
Thomas D. Griffin	Judge P. J. Finnegan
Martin J. McNally	Judge D. J. Normoyle
Judge D. E. Sullivan	Judge J. J. Kelly
W. L. O'Connell	Robert M. Sweitzer
Albert J. Horan	Judge Henry Horner
Harold E. Reading	Daniel E. Dever
Joseph W. Cremin	John J. O'Brien
Thomas J. McNulty	Martin V. Kennelley
Daniel Ryan	Edward J. Hughes

The committee has selected Judge John P. McGoorty to deliver the principal address at the Friday luncheon. Other arrangements will be announced later.

Hergesheimer Plans Book About Gen. Phil Sheridan.

Paalm Beach, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Joseph Hergesheimer, plying a busy pen at the famous "Little House in Major Alley" here, says he thinks the outlook in serious fiction is "stupid and uninteresting."

Hergesheimer is working on a biography of Gen. Philip Sheridan. He said Sheridan had been neglected.

Telephone Sally If Home Needs Spring Painting and Cleaning

Not a few families in Chicago tomorrow will look out of cleanly washed windows, and not a few housewives today will make their houses spotless. Moreover, many of them are undertaking the repapering and general freshening up of their homes.

All these evidences of spring mean jobs to men and women who otherwise will be thrown on charity or suffer from want. Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE suggested to housewives that now that spring seems to be here they begin their housecleaning and they are doing it.

All jobs offered by readers of THE TRIBUNE are turned over by Miss Brown to the Illinois free employment service, 116 North Dearborn street.

Among the large number of offers for window washers yesterday were those made by C. L., in the 5200 block on Winthrop avenue; F. K., on East Superior street; Mrs. T. D., in the 3400 block on Elaine place; E. B., in the 500 block on Roscoe street; Mrs. J. N., in the 800 block on Oakdale avenue, and E. H. M., in the 6900 block on Crandon avenue. All offered 50 cents an hour except E. H. M., who offered 15 cents a window.

Another sign of spring was the job the E. H. family in the 2300 block on Sheffield avenue had to offer. The family is moving and they want a man to help them for 50 cents an hour.

In the E. P. Q. home in the 6500 block on Kenwood avenue the dust will fly today. Mrs. Q. asked for a cleaning woman to help her at 50 cents an hour.

The D. family on the south side has invested in new carpets and Mr. D. wants a man to come in to work for two days laying carpets. He will pay him union wages and wants an experienced carpet layer. It isn't every day in the year that the D. family or any other family has new carpets to lay.

A week's work is in store for an unemployed carpenter. Mrs. G., in the 1100 block on East 63d street, finds she can put one to work for that period.

Al Smith Visiting Raskob; Will Speak in the South

Centreville, Md., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York and Mrs. Smith arrived here tonight for a week-end visit at the home of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith arrived at Wilmington late today in Mr. Raskob's private railroad car, the Skipaway, and were met there by Miss Betty Raskob, the Democratic chairman's daughter.

Ex-Gov. Smith on Monday afternoon is to address a joint session of both branches of the North Carolina legislature at Raleigh. He has been invited also to address the Georgia general assembly before its adjournment, expected in a few days.

Man This Spring Supposed to Resemble Rainbow

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—If your tailor insists that you don a green suit for business, midnight blue for evening wear, and a garnet cashmere jacket with red and white striped trousers for sports, don't let it upset you.

Fashion dictates such garments for the well dressed man. The nine tailors who make a man look snappier along 5th and Park avenues met tonight and agreed on the 1931 spring and summer styles.

Y.M.C.A. World Conference to Be Held in Cleveland

GENEVA, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Final arrangements for three world conferences to be held under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian association in the United States and Canada this summer were completed at a meeting of the executive committee of the World Alliance of Young Men's Christian Associations today. The sessions will be in Cleveland, O., from Aug. 4 to Aug. 9.

Chaplin Upsets Her Routine in Candy Shop

London Woman Thinks He's Holdup Man.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The constant pursuit of Charlie Chaplin by London street crowds led to his being mistaken for a holdup man.

He was walking down Westminster bridge road with two companions, revisiting the scenes of his impoverished youth, when some one spotted him and a crowd gathered. Chaplin and his companions, anxious, to escape, ducked into a candy shop.

Mrs. Powell, the elderly proprietor, was having a "dish" of tea in the back room when she saw the trio rush in and close the door. She feared they intended a holdup and rushed out, insisting that the door be opened.

"I was almost hysterical," she said, "but when the little man asked for some nougat I wrapped up a shilling's worth. He paid me and walked quietly out. As the three left one of them said, 'You have lost a big order.'

"Then I saw the crowd outside and some one told me that the little man was Charlie Chaplin. I have sent him him a letter of apology."

While Chaplin was one of the most popular men in England today, his personal representative, Carlyle Robinson, probably was the most unpopular, for the time at least.

What Charlie had planned as a private party for thirty guests after the opening of his new picture, "City Lights," tonight has grown to 200, as society, including peers, have made an unprecedented scramble for invitations. It is Robinson's job to determine who will be invited.

The comedian came early and when he appeared the crowd burst into cheers, surged through a line of bobbies and galloped for the entrance. The police checked the rush with no little difficulty just at the door, and Chaplin, waving his hat and stick, went inside.

Just before the picture started he appeared on a balcony over the entrance and the crowd rushed for him again. When the show ended they were still there in the downpour eager for one more glimpse.

In the dress circle, occupied mostly by invited guests in full evening dress, the people stood on their seats as Chaplin walked down the aisle to his place. The picture was given an ovation. After the show Chaplin was host to a number of friends at a cabaret. The party lasted until nearly dawn.

The movement started in the London press and among the public to get a knighthood for Chaplin was doomed to disappointment under any circumstances, it was learned today.

$338 MORE RAISED FOR GOOD FELLOWS' FUND TO AID NEEDY

Gifts and pledges amounting to $338 reached THE TRIBUNE Good Fellow fund yesterday, and those at headquarters who have been watching the fund grow since last October began speculating as to how soon the fund will go over the $100,000 mark. Yesterday the total stood at $98,257.

The support of 305 families by Good Fellows takes some of the burden from the recognized charities, allowing the use of money by these agencies to care for other families. All the Good Fellow families, however, have been investigated as to their worthiness by the United Charities, Central Charities bureau [Catholic], Salvation Army, and Jewish Social Service bureau. The expense of administering the Good Fellow fund is borne by THE TRIBUNE.

Sarah S. Wood, J. R. Addington Are Engaged

BY THALIA

GENERAL and Mrs. Robert E. Wood of 162 Laurel avenue, Highland Park, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sarah Stires Wood, to James Roland Addington, son of the late Keene Harwood Addington and Mrs. Addington of 242 East Walton place and Lake Forest.

Miss Wood was graduated from the Mary Lyon school at Swarthmore, Pa., attended Miss Risser's in Rome last year, and made her debut last fall at a tea at the Wood residence.

Mr. Addington is a graduate of the Westminster school at Simsbury, Conn., and attended Wesleyan university of Middletown, Conn. No date has been set for the wedding, but it probably will take place in June, and there's no party to announce the exciting news, because so many of Miss Wood's and Mr. Addington's friends are away now.

Like her older sister, the former Anne Wood, who was married to Edwin E. Tullis the year of her debut a few seasons ago, Miss Sarah is the first of the year's debutantes to become engaged, and probably will be the first bride among this year's debutantes, with the exception of Corinne Brewer McLaughlin, who was to have made her debut last winter, but chose to be a bride instead.

Another engagement announcement of interest is that made by Mr. and Mrs. George Hugh Murphy of Riverside of their daughter, Elaine Marjorie, to John Longstaff Jr. of Huron, S. D., brother of Ralph Longstaff of Lake Forest. Miss Murphy attended National Park seminary and was graduated from the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Longstaff also is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh Are Visiting in Washington.

Points east, west, and south . . . Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh are in Washington, D. C., visiting some friends there, and are planning to go south later, to be gone about three weeks. . . . Mrs. William W. Gurley and Miss Helen Gurley sailed on Tuesday on the steamship Statendam for a West Indies cruise. . . . Mrs. Russell Lord, with Betty and Kathleen, sailed yesterday on the Conte Biancamano for Europe. . . . Mrs. Philip F. W. Peck and her two youngsters are taking the Chief this morning for Castle Hot Springs, and the William J. Blacks of Lake Forest are sailing today for Honolulu. . . . The Jimmy Simpsons Jr. have arrived in Miami and went to the races at Hialeah Park one day this week. . . . The Daniel Winters of Lake Forest and Edwin W. Winter II. were in Belleair, Fla., this week, as also were Mrs. John G. Shedd and her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe. . . . The Tiffany Blakes sailed from New Orleans yesterday with the Laird Bells for Antigua, the old capital of Guatemala, where there are a lot of interesting old ruins. . . . The Harry B. Clows of Lake Forest and their daughters, Miss Marion and Miss Helen, sail today from Vancouver on the steamship Empress of Japan for a fortnight holiday in Honolulu.

The marriage of Miss Mary Adelaide Harding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor M. Harding of Hubbard Woods, to Albert Carleton Simonds Jr., son of Mrs. A. C. Simonds of Alexandria, La., is to take place at 8:30 o'clock this evening at the Fortnightly, followed by a reception. The Rev. Ormal Miller is to read the ceremony. Mrs. John Walker Thompson is to be matron of honor and Miss Jane De Blois Harding will be the maid of honor. Dr. Noel Thomas Simmonds is best man for his brother, and the wedding party includes, besides eight bridesmaids, two flower girls and ten ushers.

College Club's Calendar Includes Talk by Author.

Announcements department . . . The College club's March calendar has lots of nice things on it, amongst them a luncheon next Wednesday for Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, after which she is to tell how and why she started to write; a play reading by the South Side Quadrangle players, arranged by Mrs. William A. Nitze, for Friday evening next; "Pictures of North Africa," with an informal lecture by Miss Ellen Holt and Mrs. Elizabeth Webster, on Tuesday the 10th, in the evening; and an author's tea, with Harriet Monroe, Marion Strobel Mitchell, June Provines, Dorothy Aldis, and Helena Carus as guests of honor and the library committee as hostesses, on Friday, the 20th. . . . There's to be a Woman's Athletic club morning lecture next Thursday, with David Seabury telling about "The Sense and Nonsense of Character Analysis" [fascinating subject, isn't it?] . . . The Arts club is having an illustrated lecture on "Skyscrapers" by Claude Bragdon next Thursday morning.

Continuing . . . The junior auxiliary of the Children's Memorial hospital is to run a spring hat sale at the White Elephant Rummage shop next Thursday, Mrs. Francis Keirnan in charge [this reminds me of the old story that went the rounds about the Children's Memorial board meeting, when one of the prominent matrons of town said to another one: "My hat is very becoming to you—you got it at the Rummage, I suppose?"] . . . The Winnetka Music club is sponsoring a benefit concert for the unemployment fund, with Albert Spaulding, the violinist, giving the program, at the New Trier auditorium on March 14. (The committee selling the tickets includes Mrs. Roland Whitman, Mrs. Sidney Bartlett, Mrs. Dwight Orcutt, Mrs. Louis Schmid, Mrs. George Frazer, and Mrs. Everett L. Harris.)

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Harold S. Vanderbilt has returned from Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Chadbourne are in Havana.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. McAlpin Jr. will leave on Saturday on the Morro Castle for Havana and will be absent several weeks.

Mrs. Frederic W. Rhinelander gave a tea and bridge today.

Mrs. Marshall Russell and her son, Thomas Shevlin, will start on March 19 for Aiken.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Timmerman, who were married yesterday, sailed for South America today on the Furness Prince liner Northern Prince. Mrs. Timmerman was Miss Bessie Morgan Belmont, daughter of the late August Belmont Jr. and of the late Mrs. John D. Wing.

Doctor Needs to Develop Technique in Treating Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Doctors—most of them—come to know human nature pretty well. Many of them, those who have sympathy and imagination, learn to handle skillfully people's minds and emotions as well as their bodies.

It is especially necessary for the doctor who treats children to do this—to do more than examine, diagnose, and prescribe. He needs to have an understanding of children and their reactions in order to help them best and to help their mothers too. The background that he needs was suggested yesterday.

Now, to start at the beginning. Nobody likes to go to the doctor. And this includes children. At first somebody may tend to refute this statement. Ordinarily we say that if a parent starts early in taking a child to the doctor for periodical examinations the visits become routine things and the child may even like going. That is true.

But, if a child has had to be hurt by a doctor—if he has had a serious illness—that is, if he comes to associate a doctor with pain or sickness, then he's not going to like going to him. It's quite natural.

So, a doctor needs to develop a real technique for handling children. You may think all doctors have this sort of tact—but they haven't. For one thing, a doctor should have a friendly, cheerful, interested way when he meets children and during the examination.

He should avoid elaborate or detailed discussions of a child's ailments before him. Otherwise a sensitive child will come to think too much, and perhaps fearfully, about his body.

A doctor should make no alarming statements and no pronouncements that could hold any shock for his young patient.

The less a child dreads the doctor, the happier for him, and the better the results.

Lent Day by Day

PLEASING ONE'S SELF

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes.

[Chicago Area Methodist Episcopal Church.]

There is a peculiar word written by the Apostle concerning our Lord, "Even Christ pleased not himself." The implications are several: That Christ, if anybody, had a right to "please himself"; that we are in the habit of thinking of Him as moving always under a law of deeper pleasure; and that the drama, that leads on to Easter day, was a drama of necessity rather than of choice.

Perhaps they are not wholly just to our period who say that people today are bent on pleasing themselves. Some are; and others are not. But there is no doubt that many of us must guard against the tendency. Dean Inge hints in his latest book that men and women should seek opportunities for making their pleasure yield to their kindness. If we can keep such a habit from becoming artificial, the process is good and leads toward God.

As we should carefully avoid the temptation by which we construe our preferences into convictions. So often, when we do not want to do good things, we exalt our negative desire into the form of duty. This is altogether bad.

Let us do good; and, as John Wesley said long ago, "Let us trample under foot that enthusiastic doctrine that we are not to do good unless we are free to do it."

PRAYER.

O God, who are the author of peace and lover of concord, in knowledge of whom standeth our eternal life, whose service is perfect freedom; defend us thy humble servants in all assaults of our enemies; that we, surely trusting in thy defense, may not fear the power of any adversary, through the might of Jesus Christ, our Lord.

PALM BEACH SOCIETY

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Charles S. Dewey, former financial adviser to the Polish government, and Mrs. Dewey were honor guests today at a tea given by Bishop and Mrs. Nathaniel Seymour Thomas at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Dewey are the house guests of Mrs. B. Walker Peterson. They were given a dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Small Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. Volney Foster of Chicago joined Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock at the latter's home, Casa Alexandro, today. The McKinlock house party also includes Mrs. Sydney A. Cloman of Washington, D. C.

Vincent Bendix, who has been here for several weeks, is leaving for New York tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. McDougall of Chicago have arrived at the Poinciana.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Donahue gave a dinner tonight at their home in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury.

Three Soloists Appear with Stock Orchestra

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Eric De Lamarter conducted the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday afternoon, and Jane Anderson, pianist; Mischa Mischakoff, violinist, and Daniel Saidenberg, cellist, were the trio of soloists.

All had something out of the ordinary. Mr. De Lamarter directed a first hearing of a suite from one of his recent compositions, a suite from the dance drama called "The Dance of Life" for which Mark Turbyfill has provided the as yet unseen choreographic scenes. It ought to be a distinctive work when fully performed. Certainly Mr. De Lamarter has done his part of it with inspired acumen. He has written a score which is not only good music, but which ought to lend itself accurately to the dance, and particularly to the fantastic dance drama of Mr. Turbyfill's devising.

He presented another first performance as well, his own rescoring of a suite from Rameau's "Dardanus," and this also was uncommonly agreeable. Other numbers on the program were the overture to Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," and Georg Schumann's Variations and Gigue on a theme by Handel. With so fine a performance it was unfortunate that the piece should work out like so many of its kind, the variations not as good as the theme, which, in this case, is the tune generally called, or miscalled, "The Harmonious Blacksmith."

The three soloists appeared in Beethoven's triple concerto for the three instruments. Once again there was a performance of exceeding delicacy, accuracy and charm, and once again there was reason to regret that the piece was not up to the work that had been put on it. Mr. De Lamarter believes with much justification that it has been greatly improved by the liberal cuts he made in the score. But it is not the best Beethoven.

"The Flying Dutchman," second of the German Grand Opera company's presentations at the Civic Opera house last night, also was the second to display Richard Wagner's knowledge of seamanship. In "Tristan and Isolde" the steersman sits behind Isolde's cabin where he cannot possibly see what impends on the course. Meanwhile it takes three sailors properly to coil a slender cord. In "The Flying Dutchman" the crew heaves heartily at a rope to make the ship fast to the rocks of the Norwegian coast in stormy weather.

But this is no mood in which to contemplate grandeur. "The Flying Dutchman" is deep dyed Byronism in Teutonic terms, with music that is sometimes first class and sometimes abysmally dull. So details of seamanship or other matters of staging should not be allowed to interfere. Those who went to the opera house last night discovered a fine men's chorus of seamen, and a better women's chorus of spinners, this by far the most attractive musical number in the score.

They also discovered in Max Roth a hero as gloomy as the gloomiest with an excellent voice; in Laurenz Pierot a Daland whose singing came as near as humanly possible to making the character sympathetic; in Max Adrian—not Carl Hartmann, as the program had it—another character really sympathetic; in Margarethe Baumer a Senta of great competence and through knowledge; in Dr. Max von Schillings a conductor with insight and personality. Little more could have been demanded.

Live Simply to Live Long, Says Mrs. Green at 98

Mrs. Christiana Green of 718 Grand avenue, Waukegan, mother of Elmer J. Green, former sheriff of Lake county and former warden of the state prison at Joliet, celebrated her 98th birthday yesterday. She remarked that the modern girl is somewhat lacking in the simplicity and decorum of the girl of other years.

Drinking and smoking have tended to destroy to some degree the morals of the present younger feminine generation, she said. The fast age, she asserted, would not encourage longevity.

A simple life and clean living contribute to old age, said Mrs. Green.

Printed Chiffon Adds Flower Trimmed Scarf.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Printed chiffons have been among fashion's first favorites for southern evening gowns at Palm Beach and the Riviera and that means, of course, that they'll be worn next summer, too, for the south is a sort of sartorial mirage of the north, enabling you to see a season's styles long before you come to it.

Bordered chiffons are beautiful newcomers among the prints and, I think, we shall see more of them as the warm weather approaches.

Molyneux uses it for the evening frock sketched above, which I saw at the Casino in Cannes charmingly worn by a slender blonde. It is leaf-hue to vivid emerald green. The deep flowers in the border are much more distinctly printed than the paler ones above.

Molyneux makes the most of these borders in a two tier skirt which, by the way, is being favored by a number of the leading couturiers and their smart clients. The upper tier is mounted on a snug hip yoke in shirred scallops. The bodice is perfectly simple. The tailored belt is of green suede.

Molyneux is making flower trimmed evening scarfs to match all his latest evening frocks. He crushes the scarf into a bouquet or wreathe of flowers. The flowers are worn at the left side of the neck and the two ends are allowed to trail over the shoulders. The border print ends make this one unusually effective. The flowers are made of the printed chiffon to match

Atomizer Is Great Aid in Applying Perfume Discreetly

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It's not long since ninety per cent of our women were accused of using perfume in just one way—straight from the bottle on a handkerchief. A little later these same women began putting dabs behind their ears. Until comparatively recently that was the popular way of applying perfume.

Now every well dressed dressing table has its atomizer. And it is the atomizer that is put to work to give that veiled, discreet and teasing lure for which a perfume is bought originally.

We've learned from the Frenchwoman that an atomizer used following the bath, and applied over the whole body area, is an excellent foundation base for the tantalizing charm of a well perfumed person. After donning lingerie, the perfume may be turned on again lightly with the atomizer with the assurance that there will be no excess scent to assault a sensitive nose. These after-bath applications give time enough for a certain amount of evaporation to take place so that when the dressed is donned there is just the proper scent left.

At any rate, what is not done any more in good perfume circles is to turn the bottle over and indent a blot of perfume directly on a dress or on and underpiece.

For dancing girls—and we hope you're all that, since rhythm is so valuable to lean, young grace—a perfuming trick is to "atomize" a blow of perfume into the chiffon stockings and around the hem of the dancing frock. A famous French perfume maker I talked with at Grasse, the noted perfume center, made this suggestion for dancers: Rub perfume under the upper part of the arm.

V. H. Z.: YOU MAY MASSAGE the lines under the eyes with cold cream on the finger tips. Beginning from the nose and working outward, then upward toward the temples. Massage gently.

M. W.: YOU MAY MAKE A stronger solution for bleaching the hair on your lip if you will add a few drops of household ammonia to a teaspoonful of peroxide.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This modish peplum dress of flat silk crêpe favors the youthful plaits across the front of the skirt. They are stitched to a depth just above the knees so as to keep the silhouette slender. The cowl drapery of the bodice is soft and pretty, and the long sleeves are given a soft touch through a frill below the elbow.

The pattern, No. 3005, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Easy Request to Fill.

"My husband and I are elderly people who are having a hard time getting along. He needs underwear, size 40, and we cannot buy it. Do you think you could get some for him?

"MRS. D. O."

Here's a simple request which many of you who wear this size may be able to fill.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Taking the Initiative.

It was at a student convention in a big midwestern city. The hall was large and warm, and the voice of the speaker seemed like a far away drone which lulled me off. I awoke startled to find that I had fallen asleep with my head resting cozily on the shoulder of the strange young man who sat next to me. Every one around us was hugely enjoying my predicament. Needless to say I was embarrassed then and even though the strange young man and I have been happily married for six years, I am still embarrassed whenever he begins his favorite story with, "Did you ever hear the story of how I met my wife?" D. P.

Lonely Girl Wonders Where She Can Find Congenial Friends

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Contrary to the usual story, I am not talented, I am not beautiful, nor blond. I have only average intelligence, but the problem is the same. I shall not bother to describe my looks, but just say that I am 22 and spend all day, from nine to five, in a small office. I do not belong to clubs or societies of any kind. I go out some with boys who are misfits, somehow. It seems impossible to find any men who like to swim, take long walks, play golf, discuss books and dream of a home with an open fireplace. I smoke but do not drink.

"I'm not writing with the expectation of your telling me what is wrong and how to correct it. I'm just wondering if there are any men who would care for an ordinary person and the doing of ordinary things. I do not want to be married for several years to come, in spite of the fireplace dreams, but I would like to spend those several years in the company of boys and girls who like the same things.—B. C."

There are any number of men who care for an ordinary person and the doing of ordinary things! In fact, they exceed in numbers the class that goes in for bright lights and giddy adventures. BUT—if any one desires the company of persons who like to swim, they go where swimming is done. If they want the company of people who like to walk, they must go where they'll meet people with the same healthy taste in diversion.

They go where there are swimming pools, or they go to beach resorts. They join hiking clubs, of which we have a number in existence, well operated and well patronized. They join a golf club to meet people who play golf, or they get out early, mornings, on the public links and make their acquaintances in the round of play. They join literary clubs or student body classes where books come in for discussion.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Let Him Call.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend lives out of town and hasn't any convenient way of coming to see me. I have a car. Can I go to see him?

"BROKEN HEARTED."

It would not be fitting for you to do the calling, dear.

No Serious Intentions.

"Dear Miss Blake: I do not care to get serious. Shall I tell my girl friend that? J. B."

Tell her you don't wish to become involved in any serious love affair for some time. She'll understand.

Food Talk.

When I suggest baked apples for Monday's breakfast I have in mind a dozen ways of doing the baking. The fruit may be baked whole with the cores. This is an excellent method because the core contributes flavor. Apples may be cored and the holes may be stuffed with raisins, dates, figs, prunes, or sausages. All of these fillings contribute fine flavor and many calories. The peelings may be left on, or they may be entirely or partly removed. A way that I like especially is to core the apples and remove an inch or two of peeling at the top. Then add orange juice or bottled cider to the baking pan instead of the water which is usually added. Both orange juice and cider add a pleasing flavor and increase the food value.

If a crusty carmelized top on the apple is desired, remove apples from the oven when done, sprinkle over the peeled portion a little granulated sugar. Then slip the apples under the broiling flame to toast to the desired color.

If you like macaroni as Italians cook it, drop it into vigorously boiling salted water and keep it boiling violently until done. And the time required for boiling is about ten minutes. The American method of cooking is to drop the macaroni into boiling salted water and boil at a moderate rate of speed for about twenty minutes. Then it is drained, cold water is run through it to make it firm and prevent its sticking together. It should then be reheated in the mushroom sauce.

BROWN MUSHROOM SAUCE.

3 tablespoons butter
Few drops onion juice
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup cream
½ pound mushrooms, sliced
1 teaspoon beef extract
Salt and paprika.

Brown butter slightly, add onion juice and flour. Brown. Pour on cream gradually while stirring constantly. Add mushrooms, fried [sauteed] in butter. Season with beef extract [a bouillon cube would do], salt and paprika.

COFFEE SPANISH CREAM.

⅝ cup scalded milk
¾ cup hot coffee
1 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
¼ teaspoon salt
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla

Soften gelatin in cold water for two or three minutes, then add to hot milk and coffee, stirring until dissolved. Add sugar to the well beaten egg yolks, then add the coffee-milk-gelatin mixture, stirring vigorously to keep smooth. Cook over hot water for two minutes, beating constantly. Beat the egg whites until stiff. Add salt, then fold into the hot custard. Add the vanilla and turn into molds or dessert glasses. Chill until firm. Serve with sweetened whipped cream or coffee cream sauce or coffee cream sauce.

Yield: 4 servings.

COFFEE CREAM SAUCE.

Put ½ cup strong coffee and 1 cup sugar in a saucepan and cook to a stiff ball or 244 degrees F. Then add ½ cup cream and a few grains of salt. Serve hot or cold on ice cream or other desserts.

Eddie Stundl of Chicago, 17 year old North American and Canadian intermediate outdoor champion, broke the United States indoor record of 1:25 2-5 by two seconds last night in a half mile heat of the intermediate race at the North American indoor ice skating championship races at the Chicago Stadium.

Stundl Beaten in Final.

In the intermediate half mile final Richard Smythe of Detroit won in 124 3-5. Wilbur Marks of Chicago placed second and Al Krux, New York, was third. The crowd expected Stundl to better his record, but Eddie was exhausted and dropped out of the race from fourth position. Smythe's time also bettered the old record.

Another upset came when Frank Stack of Chicago defeated Percy Johnston of Toronto, defending North American senior champion, in the 440 yard dash. Stack won by 15 feet in 39 1-5 seconds.

Stack thrilled the crowd in winning the three-quarter mile semi-finals by jumping from seventh place to first with the field half a lap from the finish line. Stack won the final by a good margin in 2:21 1-5.

Miss Franey Easy Winner.

Dorothy Franey of St. Paul was an easy winner of the half mile race for senior girls. Elizabeth Dubois, Chicago, was second, and Helen Bina, Chicago, third. The time was 1:36. Elsie Muller of New York, who was skating in second place, fell 15 feet from the finish. Leila Brooks Potter of Toronto was an also ran.

Miss Muller established a United States indoor record of 2:26 3-5 in winning the senior girls' three-quarter mile event. The old time was 2:27 2-5. Elizabeth Dubois fell while she was skating. The mishap occurred 40 feet from the finish line, but Miss Dubois got up and came in third.

Summaries:

SENIOR MEN, 440 YARDS—Won by Frank Stack, Chicago; Percy Johnston Jr., Toronto, second; Eddie Schroeder, Chicago, third. Time, :39 1-5.

TWO MILE SENIOR MEN—Won by Mel Johnston of Detroit; Alex Hurd, Toronto, second; Herb Taylor, New York, third. Time: 4:45 3-5.

INDIANA TRACK MEN CAPTURE PURPLE MEET

Table of Points

Indiana	50¾	Northwestern	23½
Minnesota	29	Purdue	16¾

Indiana piled up a total of 50¾ points to win the quadrangular track and field meet at Patten gym last night. The Hoosiers scored points in all 11 events, winning five first places and tying for first in another.

Minnesota was second with 29 points. Northwestern trailed third with 23½ points and Purdue brought up last place with 16¾.

Scoring honors for the meet went to James Hatfield, Hoosier hurdler, who was an easy winner in both the low and high hurdles. John Hass, Minnesota, won the 40 yard dash and also ran on the Gophers' winning sprint relay team.

Tom Warne, Northwestern national collegiate pole vault champion, demonstrated that he was far from top form when he failed to clear 12 feet 9 inches in three efforts.

Warne tied for first place with Beecher, Indiana, at 12 feet 6 inches. The Purple star showed the effects of the broken ankle sustained last summer.

ONE MILE RELAY — Won by Indiana [Streicher, Menaurh, Parks, Bates]; Northwestern, second; Purdue, third; Minnesota, fourth. Time, 3:30.4.

TWO MILE RUN—Leas and Watson [Indiana] tied for first; Kemp [Indiana], third; Carroll [Minnesota], fourth. Time, 9:44.

POLE VAULT—Warne [Northwestern] and Beecher [Indiana] tied for first; Brown [Indiana], third; Lundberg [Northwestern], fourth. Height, 12 feet 6 inches.

SHOT PUT—Won by Munn [Minnesota]; Biddinger [Indiana], second; Yunevich [Purdue], third; Harkonen [Northwestern], fourth. Distance, 45 feet ¼ inch.

880 YARD RUN—Won by Doyle [Purdue]; Seller [Minnesota], second; Brown [Indiana], third; Brocksmith [Indiana], fourth. Time, 2:02.6.

40 YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Hatfield [Indiana]; Scheifley [Minnesota], second; Bardach [Purdue], third; Dixon [Northwestern], fourth. Time, :05.1.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Hackle [Minnesota]; Hall [Northwestern], second; Beecher [Indiana], Johnson and Mandelbaum [Northwestern], and Hollingsworth [Purdue] tied for third. Height, 6 feet.

Sox Batterymen Jog in Rain; Cubs Play Tag on Bases

Catalina Drill Brings Sad Memories of Carelessness.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 27.—Our Cubs spent most of their time today practicing on how to hold men on base, and for the life of us we couldn't tell who the practice was for—the pitchers or the base runners.

There would be a bunch of guys around the bases and a pitcher in his regular position on the mound. The fellows on the bases would take a big lead and the pitcher would look out of the corner of his eye and then throw to one of the bases. The fellow who was "it" would scamper back to base.

The thing that made this mode of practice so incomprehensible to us, who traveled with the Cubs last September, was that the base runners actually were obliged to run bases clockwise instead of counter clockwise.

Recalls Weird Base Running.

This was the very thing the Cubs were doing last September without any practice. While Cincinnati and several other teams were proceeding around the bases in the orthodox rotation the Cubs invariably would be running the bases in the wrong direction, bringing about great confusion in the minds of the spectators, and, as it turned out, great chagrin in the heart of Mr. William Wrigley.

In addition to the practice for holding men on bases there was a protracted session of the two ring batting carnival introduced yesterday when Manager Hornsby caused two batting cages to be erected on the practice acreage. There was a change in the plan today, the alteration being due to the location of fences.

Left handed hitters were moved over to the regular plate and some of the right handed sluggers were transferred to the second ring, or cage, which is located on the foul line in right field. This move not only saved baseballs, but it also made the practice grounds a safer place in which to keep on living and breathing.

Hornsby Busy Training.

Manager Hornsby is himself in the throes of conditioning and therefore is not able to watch the talents of his young men with the eagle eye with which he pursued the efforts of the pitchers and catchers before the infielders and outfielders arrived.

Among the fellows that Hornsby hasn't studied as carefully as he will is this Vincent Barton, who hit .342 in the International league last year and who has been doing a sight of socking during the hitting drills.

Hose Hurlers Run as They Eat; Don't Relish It.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 27.—White Sox training affairs got all tangled up with the weather today and, as usual, the weather won. A drizzle followed an early morning rain, but rather than let the day be a total loss, Manager Donie Bush told his men to go out and get wet by chasing themselves around the cinder track at the conditioning field.

The order wasn't acceptable to most of the fellows because of a fear that wet feet might do them more harm than the prescribed exercise could do them good. But they all went out and ran nevertheless. That is, all of them ran with the exception of Pitcher Hal McKain and Catcher Frank Grube, who engaged in a noon game of pocket billiards and thus escaped on the excuse that they were going by Coach Mike Kelly's instructions instead of those from the manager.

Cissell Hobbles Along.

With running in the rain the only exercise, there naturally was little to arouse the interest of the gentlemen seeking news for an anxious public. There is nothing inspiring about seeing a flock of pitchers try to run. Most of them run as they bat. However, Infielder Bill Cissell, who was running with them, brought on a little amusement. He found that carrying 182 pounds at higher than a walking speed was no easy task.

The day's addition to the squad was no more and no less than Robert E. Lee Goff, whose name is sufficient proof that he is a southern product. He read where some of the other infielders had reported ahead of time, so decided he might as well do the same. Young Goff is more or less of a midget and this, combined with his youth and limited experience, may mean that he will not be present for long.

Faber Favors Conversation.

Bush's insistence that running a mile or so every day is an important training item is causing some of the pitchers considerable concern. Red Faber doesn't favor it in the least. He has been using his legs for so long that he goes in for conversation in a big way. Tommy Thomas also regards it as needless exercise. However, he obeys orders.

The remainder of the infielders and outfielders are due here Sunday, but nothing will be said to anybody who shows up Monday morning in time to take part in the drill of that day.

PATENT LEATHER KID IS IDOL OF DAVENPORT FANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Davenport, Ia., Feb. 26.—The Patent Leather Kid, better known as Willie Guide, welterweight, is Davenport's big favorite in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Golden Gloves tournament. A two-fisted puncher, with a knockout wallop in either mitt, Guide stole honors in The Daily Times tournament here three weeks ago and hundreds of fans are backing him to slug his way to the 147 pound championship.

Guide has been in the ring only six times but he never has failed to finish his man before the three round limit. He is 19 years of age and is employed as a bootblack in a Moline, Ill., shining parlor. For eight months he worked in a gym to get himself in the best of condition for this year's Golden Gloves tournament.

Two Blows in First Battle.

Last November Willie made his first appearance in a Moline amateur show. He knocked out his opponent with two punches, a left and a right to the chin. Two weeks later he went to Rock Island for a fight but this time his foe back pedaled for two rounds before getting in the path of Guide's right, which ended his second engagement.

Early in January the boy was called upon again to meet Davenport's best welter. He was ready for the emergency and the Iowan was on the floor six times before his seconds threw in the towel.

Then came the Times tournament and Willie's big chance. His first foe was a green youngster from Geneseo, Ill. That bout lasted just long enough for Bill to shoot a left hook to his opponent's chin and he advanced to the second round.

Puts Kane Out in First.

Al Kane, former Chicago amateur residing in Davenport, drew Guide in the semi-finals after his second round foe had run out of the fight rather than take one on the chin. Kane was down twice from left hooks and then took a right on the button before the first round ended. They carried him to his corner.

With the final bout came Billy Mason, football captain at Augustana college, who had been boxing for three years. Mason was the welterweight favorite and fans expected a great fight.

It was great—while it lasted. Mason drove his left to Guide's body three times in a row before Guide learned how to cover his midriff. Just as the bell sounded to end the first Mason caught a right to the jaw and went down.

He came back for the second, still groggy, and Guide shot over a left hook and followed with a straight right that sent Billy into dreamland. Mason's jaw was fractured. Guide was unmarked.

Boxing's biggest show—the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions—begins at the Coliseum Monday night and continues Tuesday and Wednesday.

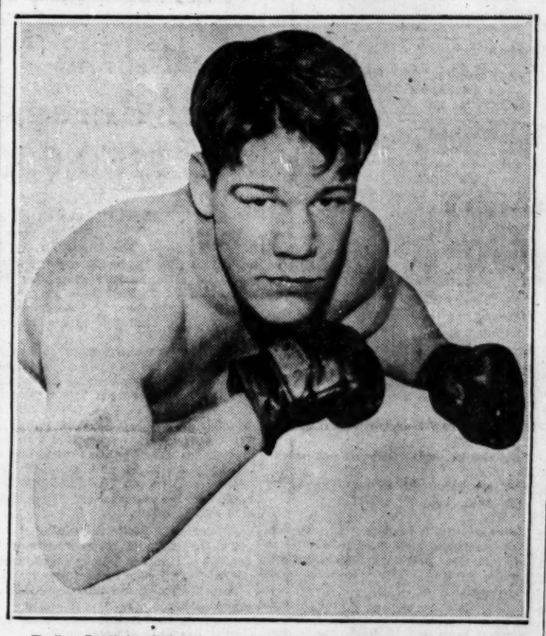
There's still time to get in on this boxing bargain. Tickets for the tournaments at the Coliseum and the Stadium are now on sale at The Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street. Tickets for the final battles at the Stadium also can be obtained by mail. Mail orders should be accompanied by a certified check or money order and should be addressed to the Ticket Manager, Golden Gloves Tournament, The Tribune, Chicago.

Tickets for the Coliseum show are $1, $1.50, or $2. You can see the Stadium show on March 11 for $1, $2, or $3.

GETS READY FOR THE KING



Tuffy Griffith, Chicago heavyweight, will start intensive training today for his bout next Friday at the Chicago Stadium with King Levinsky, the Maxwell street fish peddling puncher. Tuffy has been taking things easy for the last few days, while the King has been working furiously to round into shape for their "grudge fight."

MATCH SCOZZA AND BOZO FOR STADIUM CARD

Lou Scozza of Buffalo and Battling Bozo, conqueror of Maxie Rosenbloom, were matched yesterday to fight the semi-windup to the Tuffy Griffith-King Levinsky bout at the Chicago Stadium next Friday.

In selectin Scozza Matchmaker Nate Lewis dealt himself more trouble with Ray Alvis, Levinsky's manager, who extracted from the Stadium a promise that he be allowed to approve the supporting card. Alvis claimed the west side matchmaking department was not giving him proper cooperation, charging Lewis with filling in under the windup with a "lot af palookas because the Levinsky thing looks good."

The Stadium's stinginess, he alleged, was lessening his chances of drawing the $25,000 guarantee he offered Griffiths for the Levinsky fight. He wanted Bozo on the card, but he wanted some one easier for him than Scozza.

Scozza has been west only once. On that occasion he flattened Tait Littman in one of the cleanest knockouts on record. After battling the Milwaukee blonde for ten rounds, he landed a punch to Littman's chin in the waning seconds.

Bozo, like Scozza, has fought the best in the division. He has beaten punchers and boxers alike. He holds one decision over Rosenbloom and in another bout with the champion earned a draw. He has had two fights in Chicago.

Griffith expects to return to work today after a two days' layoff, while Levinsky continued to belt spar boys at Mullen's gym. Griffith limited his drill to road work, but with only a week to go he mapped out an extensive program yesterday, which includes boxing and road work for every day this week.

HAWKS' PROTEST OF RANGER GAME IS NOT ALLOWED

President Frank Calder of the National Hockey league, yesterday disallowed the protest of the Chicago Blackhawks against the New York Rangers on the grounds he had no authority under the rules and constitution of the league to interfere with a decision of a referee.

The protest was made by the Blackhawks after the referee of the game of Feb. 15, which the Hawks lost by a score of 2 to 1, ruled against a goal scored by the Chicago team because of interference, but did not penalize the interferer.

The ruling of President Calder was made following a receipt of the answer to the protest by the New York team, upholding the referee's decision. Maj F W. McLaughlin, president of the Blackhawks, indicated he would file an appeal to the ruling within the next two weeks.

FLOORS RIVAL FOUR TIMES IN FOUR ROUNDS

Purses of Fighters Are Held Up.

Fight Decisions

At Melbourne, Fla.—Spike Webb, Miami, knocked out Maxie Feiz, Portland, Ore. [2].
At St. Paul, Minn.—Norman Brown, Chicago, won on a foul from Frank Battaglia, Winnipeg [4].
At Clinton, Ia.—Lefty Martleo, Moline, Ill., knocked out Hard Oil Lehr, Waterloo [1].
At Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Bobby O'Dowd, Cedar Rapids, beat Bud Dempsey, Moline, Ill. [8].

New York, Feb. 27.— [Special.] —Billy Petrolle, veteran Fargo, N. D., lightweight, scored his greatest ring victory tonight in Madison Square Garden. The lad, who a few months ago upset the dope by beating Jimmy McLarnin to a decision, knocked out King Tut, Minneapolis welterweight, in the fourth round of what was to have been the feature event of ten rounds on a card which drew a crowd of about 15,000 fight fans to the Garden.

In battering Tut into submission, the North Dakotan came back to stop the lad who three weeks ago knocked him out in 24 seconds of a bout in St. Paul.

The finish came in 2 minutes 9 seconds of the fourth session. Tut collapsed under a right to the jaw which stretched him cold on his back near a neutral corner. The Minneapolis boxer was counted out by Referee Johnny McAvoy while struggling instinctively to regain his feet, and then had to be assisted to his corner.

That finishing crash to the canvas was the second knockdown Tut suffered in the fourth round and the fourth such experience he had in the abbreviated bout.

Purses Held Up.

But, robbing Petrolle's great victory of some of its radiance, came an order from the state athletic commission, issued by Brig. Gen. John J. Phelan in the absence of Chairman James A. Farley, withholding the purses of the two boxers pending an investigation of the bout. Gen. Phelan said he desired to conduct an investigation because of his indecision as to whether the bout's action and the knockout were genuine.

By some this proposed investigation was welcomed; by others it was received as an unfortunate commentary detracting from a spectacular battle.

Tut ruled a favorite at odds of 8 to 5 until a short time before the rivals entered the ring, when the betting shifted suddenly and Petrolle went into the ring a favorite to win at odds of 7 to 5. This circumstance, together with the reversal of form flashed by Petrolle, doubtless led to the skepticism among some fight followers, and a storm of jeers which sent Tut out of the ring showed that the crowd was out of patience with the vanquished Minnesotan.

Bout Seems Genuine.

The bout itself appeared to hold no cause for question as to its genuineness and the contest seemed to be fought on its merits.

The fight was a torrid affair while it lasted. Tut, charging out at the starting gong like a mad young bull, battered Petrolle before him in a savage opening fire which was sustained through the first round and found Petrolle rocking and shaken under staggering rights and lefts to the jaw.

The second saw the pendulum of victory swing heavily in the opposite direction when Petrolle, after a succession of left and right digs to the body, suddenly cracked a wicked right to the jaw and sent Tut down for a count of nine. Arising, Tut faced a storm of rights and lefts to the head and face, but recovered quickly and rallied, driving several jarring rights and lefts to Petrolle's jaw as Billy rushed in, intent upon accomplishing the finish of his rival.

Right to Jaw Ends Fight.

The third was another spectacular round and saw Tut hit the canvas for the second time. After about a minute of the fourth round Petrolle crashed a solid right to the jaw which made Tut's knees bend under him, and before Petrolle could land another punch Tut went down for a count of nine. When he arose the Minnesotan was battered pitilessly until Petrolle, in an exchange in mid-ring, crashed over the right to the jaw which sent Tut down cold on his back and out.

Name McClelland Referee of Maloney-Carnera Bout

Miami, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP)—The Miami boxing commission today announced the appointment of Elmer [Slim] McClelland, Detroit, to referee the ten round fight between Primo Canero and Jimmy Maloney here on March 5. McClelland was picked over Johnny Martin, Boston, whose selection was advocated by Dan Carroll, Maloney's manager.

Pasquale Natalie, northern sectional pocket billiard champion, overwhelmed Maj. White of Chicago, 128 to 8, in 26 innings, to take a 628 to 432 lead yesterday at the end of the sixth block in their 750 point match at the Woods Billiard academy. Natalie had a high run of 65.

GOLDEN GLOVES LIVELY TOPIC ON PURDUE CAMPUS

Three Boilermakers on Lafayette Team.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 27.—The boys on the campus at Purdue are talking Golden Gloves these days, for three Boilermakers are on the team which Lafayette will send to the tournament of champions at the Chicago Coliseum on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

The college youths congregate of an evening over at Harry Shipley's lunch counter, where anything and everything can be discussed while swoping down a cup of coffee and a hamburger sandwich. The boys are not attracted merely by the fact that Mr. Shipley is one of Purdue's most celebrated rooters.

There's another attraction. For on many occasions the hamburgers are flopped over and dished up by none other than Lionel Harvey, the young man who holds the middleweight job on the Lafayette Golden Gloves team.

Also Excels at Football.

Lionel is working at the lunch counter during an intermission in his education. Last year he was a freshman at Purdue and intends to go back next fall as a sophomore in the college of engineering. And in addition to being a boxer he's a football player, having earned a steady job at half back on the freshman eleven.

The other Boilermakers are Leo Bermen and Jack McClary, a bantam and a featherweight, respectively. Bermen served notice that he means business by stepping into the ring last Friday night to win the Purdue championship and coming back on Tuesday to take the Lafayette Golden Gloves title.

The other boys on the team are Wilbert Murphy, formerly of the United States navy; William Sallack of Wabash college; Randall Clore, a former Crawfordsville High school athlete, and Charles Clark.

Crowds Turned Away.

These lads won their titles in a tournament which drew capacity houses for three nights and set all Lafayette cheering. By erecting temporary seats, 3,000 were accommodated on the final evening and crowds were turned away. The tournament was conducted under the supervision of the Lafayette Journal-Courier.

In addition to the Lafayette boxers the meet attracted many farmer boys who had never been in a ring, and they belted each other soundly. On the first night there was a lad who took a clip on the chin which pitched him through the ropes and down into the aisle. He somersaulted so as to land on his feet and kept right on going. Straight out the door he flashed in his trunks and boxing gloves and has not been heard from since.

Doesn't Want Sweater.

Another boy paused in the middle of the first round, having remembered an important engagement. He climbed right up the ropes as if they were the rungs of a ladder, hopped down on the other side, and landed in the arms of his second.

"Boss, if Ah goes back into dat ring Ah ain't gonna need no sweatha. Ah's gonna need a wooden kimona."

But they didn't all climb out over the ropes, and there were plenty of tough ones who stuck it out to the last gong. The latter are the ones who will be seen at the Coliseum next week, and the Chicago fellows will have to slug if they expect to send them home licked.

REACH MILWAUKEE FINALS

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 27.—The St. Augustine A. C. arena reverberated tonight with cheers for Golden Gloves boxers. The second night of Milwaukee qualifying trials brought action which had the crowd applauding uproariously for the lads fighting for a berth on the team which will compete in the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Coliseum Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Tonight's enthusiasm and increased attendance, despite the rainy weather and competition with a popular priced professional show, indicated the caliber of the matches. Without a pause, these boys plugged steadily to earn official approval, a decision which would send them into the final fights tomorrow night. Golden Gloves were one incentive, but the belief they can show the central states that Wisconsin leads in amateur boxing also was a basis for the furious struggles.

Stage Wild Battle.

Jimmy Lund of Eau Claire, Wis., and Leo Schneider of Milwaukee started tonight's preliminaries with a walloping three round welterweight struggle. For nine minutes these boys banged away at body and head with scarcely a thought for defense. While Lund failed to get the decision, he won the hearts of the fans. In the first round Jimmy cut loose with a series of right hand punches to the jaw and Schneider sagged to the lower ropes. Lund, through inexperience perhaps, stepped back when one more clout would have won the battle then and there.

But Schneider rallied and carried the fight at a faster pace in the next round, jabbing effectively with a left to batter Jimmy's face. The last round brought continuous action, each striving for the edge. The fight might have been declared a draw out for the Milwaukee boy's last minute spurt.

Knauer Displays Wallop.

Despite Schneider's punching ability, he must whip Wisconsin's best welterweight before he can earn a Golden Gloves trophy. He is Frank Knauer, from Eagle River. Knauer is speedy and has a right hand which produces knockouts.

Knauer met Jack Lane tonight. Lane kept Frank busy, weaving and dodging in the first round, and had an even division of honors. But the second reund! Knauer raced across the ring and unleashed a furious attack to the body. Then he stepped back a pace, sent a jab to the face and followed with a terrific clout to the jaw. Lane toppled to the floor and was counted out.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: "Long John" Wentworth was first elected mayor of Chicago in 1857 and reëlected in 1860. He died Oct. 16, 1888. One of his last characteristic acts was the designing of his own tombstone.

This tombstone bore no inscription. When asked why he wished his monument to give no clew to the stranger of the identity of the person whose grave it marked Long John replied: "If there is no inscription on the monument people will ask whose monument it is. Being informed that it's John Wentworth's monument, they will ransack old records or visit libraries to find out who John Wentworth was. When they have found out they will remember."

"Long John" Wentworth was buried in Rosehill. F. R.

In 1865 a man wanted a five year lease on a house in Madison street, near Franklin. The landlord replied, "Don't you know Madison will be a business street in a few years?" Shortly afterward J. V. Farwell, who had two story frame buildings on Madison, west of Clark, tore out the fronts of both buildings and renewed them with brick store fronts. The property above mentioned wanted for lease was 75 feet front and 180 feet deep. It was valued at $16,000. At the same time an acre at Madison and Western avenue was for sale at $1,000.

The Magic Realm.

There is a realm where toil submits to magic
And those who bear the weight of woe or pain
Gain respite 'neath its spell and ministration

No recompense is asked. The heart alone
Is amply paid in having the assurance
Of the weal of others treasured as its own.

It may abide within the stately mansion,
A hovel, busy mart, through loss or gain.
Its dwelling place is always aptly chosen
And it blesses all who live in its domain.

The angels' song finds sweetest consolation

Another Drydenism.

Still another Dryden story has been forwarded to The Wake by a Helper. In the later years of his writing career Charlie disdained spring training trips because they called him too early from his cherished fishing and his "shack," as he called it, at Gulfport, Miss. So he usually reported on the opening day of the season. One year he appeared a few days early, and, when asked why, he replied: "I didn't know just how to estimate my time. You see, I came to Chicago by way of the coast to Spokane and Seattle, and across the Canadian Pacific and down to Chicago from Minneapolis. I wanted at least one long railroad ride this year without having to sit and talk to a lot of ball players."

MICHIGAN TANK TEAM SWAMPS PURPLE, 53 TO 22

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Michigan's swimming team scored an easy victory over Northwestern, 53 to 22, here tonight. The Wolverines annexed first place in every event except the 100 yard free style, which Troup of the Wildcat team won from Smith by a close margin.

Following the meet, Northwestern defeated Michigan, 8 to 5, in a water polo contest. The victory gave Michigan six wins in seven starts against the Purple.

Hawthorne Turf Purses Are $150,000

BY FRENCH LANE.

Nearly $150,000 will be distributed in added money for stake events to be run at Hawthorne during the summer and autumn turf meetings this year, it was decided yesterday at a meeting of the board of directors of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association.

There will be two $25,000 events on the program, the Hawthorne Handicap at a mile and a furlong to be run on Aug. 8, and the Hawthorne Gold Cup at a mile and a quarter, which will be decided at the autumn meeting on Oct. 10. The Hawthorne Gold Cup has brought so many stars into action in recent years it is now generally accepted as one of the championship races of the season for three year olds and upward.

Here's Stake Schedule.

The schedule of stake events to be decided during the 18 day summer season at Hawthorne is as follows:

Aug. 3—Inaugural handicap; six furlongs, $5,000.

Aug. 8—Hawthorne handicap, mile and a furlong, $25,000.

Aug. 15—Illinois owned handicap, mile and a sixteenth, $10,000.

Aug. 15—Fort Dearborn handicap, 3 year olds, mile and sixteenth, $5,000.

Aug. 22—Chicago Juvenile handicap, six furlongs, $10,000.

Aug. 22—Great Lakes handicap, mile and a sixteenth, $5,000.

Except for the Hawthorne Gold Cup the schedule of stake events to be run during the autumn season was not completed. But it will be endowed just as heavily with added money as the old fixtures to be renewed in August, it was announced.

Entries Close July 11.

John C. Schank, president of the Hawthorne association, announced that entries for the various stake events to be run in August would be closed on July 11, while the season at Arlington Park is under way.

Joseph A. Murphy, general manager of the Hawthorne track, here for yesterday's meeting, leaves today for San Francisco, where he is carrying on a revival of racing at the Tanforan track across the bay from Frisco in Oakland.

Laporte Wins Northern Indiana Prep Cage Title

Gary, Ind., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—La Porte High school won the northern Indiana high school conference basketball championship tonight by defeating Washington of East Chicago, 28 to 24. La Porte, playing on the Washington court, trailed until the last minute, when two goals gave it the game and altie. Horace Mann of Gary wound up its regular season at home with a 23 to 8 victory over Roosevelt of East Chicago.

COMPARE FARM BOARD PLAN TO RUSS DUMPING

Foreign Grain Men Eye U. S. Selling.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 27.—A feeling closely akin to consternation developed in the second European grain conference today when it learned that the United States farm board had decided to sell 35,000,000 bushels of wheat in continental markets at a price considerably below that maintained at home.

When the heads of the various delegations had partly recovered from their astonishment keen interest was the reaction to the move, characterized as "American dumping" on a scale comparable with that of Russia.

Some of the delegates hesitated to believe the American government would consent to a scheme which, according to today's reports, does not greatly differ from the soviet selling methods, which are widely denounced in the United States. Others recalled that Canada and Argentina were conducting intensive selling campaigns throughout Europe, in which the diplomatic representatives of the two nations were actively engaged.

Cause of Resentment.

Because of the high prices fixed by the farm board, Canada and Argentina have been able to obtain much business which had previously gone to the United States. With the farm board apparently determined to overcome this handicap, the question has naturally arisen here as to whether American diplomats will now become wheat salesmen.

The delegates' resentment was caused by the fact that United States competition would further depress the European wheat market. The only definite thing which the present conference accomplished was recognition of the fact that the European grain crisis could not be solved without the collaboration of the great wheat producing countries overseas. Francois Poncet, as president of the conference, suggested a world grain agreement.

The delegates who accepted the reported decision of the farm board as a fact stressed that a world grain accord was imperative now. Unless such an understanding can be reached, these experts believe, the European agricultural situation, especially in Rumania, Poland, Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria and Hungary, will go from bad to worse with Russia and the United States dumping huge quantities of wheat, further depressing prices and demoralizing markets.

There was much speculation among grain experts as to the price which the farm board would fix for its European shipments. Russian high protein wheat is sold for about 10 cents a bushel under the price of the best Canadian product. If the American board desires to compete with the Russians it will have to undersell Canada.

Viewpoint of Observers.

Assuming the figure of 35,000,000 bu to be accurate, observers here explain, it represents about half of the total amount of wheat which the Russians dumped on the European market from Aug. 1, 1930, to Feb. 19, last. The farm board is understood to control 140,000,000 bu. According to the estimates of French grain brokers, Europe must import about 320,000,000 bu of wheat each year.

The board's plan will be awaited with no little anxiety, especially since the grain conferences have been unable to advance very little the solution of Europe's agricultural troubles. The first conference, which dealt with last year's surpluses, failed to achieve practical results because of the manifold business obstacles in the way, and the present meeting, which concludes tomorrow morning, will have to adjourn with its problem of future surpluses no farther along the road to solution.

St. Louis Live Stock Men to Ask Restraining Order

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 27.—(AP)—A temporary restraining order will be sought early next week by forty St. Louis livestock commission men and order buyers, ordered suspended Tuesday by the department of agriculture for their refusal to do business with cooperatives sponsored by the federal farm board, it was announced today.

W. M. Borders Jr., Kansas City, attorney for the livestock men, will present the application for a temporary restraining order in federal court at East St. Louis, Ill. The suspension of the forty livestock men is to become effective twenty days from the date of the department of agriculture's order, unless delayed by court action.

Some Purchasing Follows Activity in Packer Hides

Recent activity in domestic packer hides in the west has been followed by some further purchasing, and it is felt in some quarters that the prolonged decline in prices may be nearing its end, Dun's review of the hide market says. It is said that sellers, being well booked, are in an improved position, but the future of the market naturally depends upon the course of the leather trade and general business. So far as dealings in leather are concerned, not much in the way of betterment was developed, gains in buying being sporadic.

Commercial Investment Trust to Reduce Stock

The New York stock exchange has received notice from the Commercial Investment Trust corporation of a proposed decrease in authorized capital stock by 25,000 shares of 6¼ per cent preferred stock, 20,800 shares of 7 per cent first preferred stock, 73,497 shares of convertible preference stock, and 125,000 shares of common stock.

Sell Assets of Closed Bank to Pay Dividend

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Sale of the assets of the National Bank of Kentucky, which closed last Nov. 17, to the First National bank here, was announced today by Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson.

The sale will enable the First National bank to pay depositors of the closed bank a 67 per cent dividend promptly, the court announced. The remaining assets will be liquidated. The disbursement, which will be made through the First National bank, amounts to about $15,000,000. The sale, accomplishing the same object as a proposed new bank, to make funds immediately available, dispensed with the new bank plan.

Officers of the First National Bank of Kentucky; Paul C. Keyes, receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky; members of the citizens' committee who had been working on the new bank plan, and Robert H. Neill, chief national bank examiner for this federal reserve district, agreed on the terms of the sale late Thursday.

Approve Sale Contract.

Judge Dawson and Robert P. Barse, assistant to John W. Pole, controller of the currency, who came here from Washington as the negotiations neared a conclusion, approved the sale contract.

Closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, which advertised its resources at $54,000,000, is under investigation by both the federal and state grand juries. They are also inquiring into the closing of nine other financial institutions in this county during November. In all 25 banking institutions closed in the state but six have been reopened or merged.

Officers Are Indicted.

James B. Brown, president of the National Bank of Kentucky and former president of the Bancokentucky, and W. T. Zurschmiede, secretary-treasurer of Bancokentucky, were indicted on charges of embezzlement by the Jefferson county grand jury today.

Charles F. Jones, cashier of the National Bank of Kentucky, also was indicted on an embezzlement charge. Brown was charged with embezzling $2,000,000 of Bancokentucky funds.

The indictments against Brown charged that he "did unlawfully, willfully, and feloniously with intent to commit a fraud, embezzle and fraudulently convert to his own use and the use of A. E. Latta, trading and doing business in Louisville as Wakefield & Co., and whatever persons, if any, whose names are unkown to the grand jurors, associated with said Latta or owning an interest in said business known as Wakefield & Co., $2,000,000 of the money of the bancokentucky company."

PHILADELPHIA, CALIFORNIA GAS ISSUES OFFERED

Apparently encouraged by the reception accorded the $8,000,000 Pere Marquette 4½ per cent issue, offering syndicates for $15,000,000 city of Philadelphia 4s and 4¼s, and $12,500,000 Southern California Gas company 4½s marketed the two issues yesterday.

Although the Consolidated Gas company has made no formal announcement of its financing program, 4½ per cent debentures and 5 per cent preferred stock of the company were traded in on the Produce exchange on a when issued basis today. According to rumors in investment circles the company will issue $40,000,000 debentures and the same amount of preferred stock. The bond issue is subject to the approval of the public service commission, and is not expected to be marketed for at least two weeks.

PREDICT AUTO SALES WILL BE AHEAD OF 1930

Forecast Output of Over 4,000,000.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Along with the recent pickup in the automobile business, there is a good deal of guessing these days on how many motor vehicles will be produced this year. It is the consensus that 1931 will prove a better year than 1930 but forecasts of output run all the way from 4,000,000 to 4,500,000 units, compared with about 3,500,000 last year.

"Manufacturers of automotive parts and accessories for original equipment have had to speed up production to take care of heavier demands and nice gains in business were reported for both January and February," the Motor and Equipment association says. "With this group of suppliers leading the way in the current improvement in the parts industry, manufacturers of shop equipment and tools also have enjoyed increased business."

Comments on Forecasts.

Current forecasts that production may reach 4,500,000 units this year, instead of the 4,000,000 predicted at the beginning of the year, are discussed by Poor's Manual Service. It suggests that output for the first quarter of this year may fall 300,000 units below the same period last year but that an increase of 800,000 could be made in the rest of this year, compared with 1930, by bringing production up to 1928 levels. Moreover, production in the second half of 1930 was at the lowest level in eight years.

The Studebaker corporation will show about 4,000 cars sold this month, Vice President H. S. Vance said yesterday, and plans to increase output next month by 50 per cent, or to 6,000 cars. He said there has been a "gratifying increase" in retail sales on which the new schedule for March is based. The improved demand has resulted in no increase in dealers' stocks.

The building construction industry also is the subject of considerable guessing. The Construction Daily reports that engineering construction projects this week totaled $96,257,000, excluding highways, and marked the largest total for any week thus far this year. The total for last week was $39,875,000 and for a year ago $141,194,000.

Building Contracts.

On the other hand, the F. W. Dodge corporation estimated the daily average of building contracts at $8,350,733 for the week ended Feb. 21, which marked a decline of about $2,800,000 from the daily average for the first two weeks of February. However, it is likely that the full month will show about the normal seasonal increase of 16 per cent over January.

This week has brought little change in the general situation of trade and industry, according to the weekly mercantile reviews.

"While a slight forward movement in the volume of wholesale and jobbing trade, as a whole, is visible in a summary of the week's reports," Bradstreet's review says, "there are still a number of cities reporting that gains for spring or beyond are more largely in sentiment than in actual turnover."

"Two months of the new year have not been marked by any widespread rise in the level of commercial activity, yet the number of encouraging auguries has increased," Dun's Review says.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL JANUARY INCOME TOTALS $404,795

Burlington and Rock Island Show Gains.

The Illinois Central system last night reported January net operating income of $404,795, a decline of $1,092,906 from the corresponding month of 1929. Railway operating revenues for the month totaled $10,279,469, off $3,361,457 from January, 1929.

Roads reporting January results yesterday continued to show approximately the same rate of decline in net operating income. The Burlington and Rock Island, however, were notable exceptions. The Burlington reported net operating income for the month of $2,109,978, an increase of $20,462 over the same month last year.

January of last year was an extremely poor month in net earnings for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific and so net operating income last month was over three times as large as a year ago, being $1,039,216 as against $320,003. Gross was off 15 per cent. Net after charges was $2,259, against a deficit of $624,728 in 1930.

Chicago & North Western helped to offset a decline of 19 per cent in gross operating revenue with a cut of 20.4 per cent in operating expenses last month. Net operating income of $506,788 came through about 18 per cent less than a year ago.

The first fifty railroads to report January earnings had net operating income of $2,550,000, a decrease of 37 per cent from $35,807,000 reported by the same carriers in January, 1930.

Palmolive Not Purchasing Cadum Soap, Pearce States

Charles S. Pearce, president of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company, said yesterday that contrary to reports "we are not buying the Cadum Soap Company of France."

Chicago Stock Liquidation Slows Up Pace of Trading

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Sporadic liquidation brought irregularity to an aspiring Chicago stock market yesterday. Trading slowed up as the bullish enthusiasm waned. A resumption of the selling in the utility stocks about erased the gains which were recorded for these issues on the previous day.

The realizing reached its greatest intensity in the final minutes of trading when many issues which weathered the earlier profit taking were brought within close range of their previous closing prices.

The sharpest break of the day occurred in North American Car, which tumbled 4⅞ points to a new minimum price for the year of 21⅛. Its recent movement has been counter to the general trend.

Annual Report Due Soon.

The annual report of the company is expected to be made public in the next ten days and the selling in the issue has led to speculation over the results the company will show. Since the first of the year the stock has sold up to 31.

Grigsby-Grunow and Majestic followed up Thursday's advance and showed further improvement on a heavy volume of trading. Each issue moved above 6 as time grew closer when final action will be taken on the consolidation and refinancing scheme. Stockholders are expected to put their stamp of approval on the proposals at a special meeting on March 10. Effective support enabled both stocks to hold most of their early gains.

In both the utility and motor accessory shares the price changes were largely fractional. Borg-Warner surrendered most of its gain but closed above its previous price. Bendix was off slightly when the day ended.

Directors of Borg-Warner, meeting late yesterday afternoon, declared the regular quarterly dividend on the preferred shares and a quarterly dividend of 25c on the common stock. The payment authorized on common is the same as was paid in the last quarter.

Super Maid Reports Income.

Super Maid corporation's annual statement issued late yesterday showed that the company had a poor year in 1930. The firm incurred a net loss of $234,778 during the period as compared with a net profit in the preceding year of $1,218,194 or $8.12 a share on the common stock then outstanding. Sales, less returns and allowances, amounted to $2,982,754, against $5,783,774 in 1929. Operating loss on sales for 1930 was $135,652.

The balance sheet as of Dec. 21 showed current assets of $1,945,779 with inventories of $452,678 carried at cost. Current liabilities amounted to $363,817. At the close of 1929 the company had current assets of $2,956,808 and current liabilities of $801,196.

SAY EASTERN RY. MERGERS MIGHT HURT CHICAGO

Chicago's economic losses from the proposed eastern railroad mergers may run well into the millions annually, according to an article published in Commerce, official organ of the Chicago Association of Commerce. This article is credited to the president of a carrier operating out of the city.

Transfer of railroad shops from the middle west to eastern cities, new systems whereby purchases, formerly made here, will probably go to eastern suppliers and cuts in local pay rolls are said to threaten a loss to Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City. The author states that lost activity in the middle west on curtailed repair and purchase budgets by the merged lines would cost this territory at least $10,000,000 a year.

Two of the roads mentioned in the consolidations, the Chicago and Eastern Illinois and the Alton, now spend from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 annually in Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana and Wisconsin. This business would probably go to New York, Baltimore and Cleveland under the merger, the author declares.

UNITED BISCUIT SHOWS $2,005,061 PROFIT FOR 1930

United Biscuit company of America and subsidiaries for the year ended Dec. 31, 1930, report net profit of $2,005,061, after all charges, including depreciation, interest, and federal taxes, equal after preferred dividends to $4.01 a share earned on 570,766 shares of common stock outstanding.

This compares with net profit of $2,254,097, or $4.39 a share earned on 484,438 common shares in 1929. The 1929 earnings included $93,795 earnings of properties acquired during 1929. Excluding subsidiaries' earnings prior to acquisition, the 1929 net profit was $2,160,302, or $4.19 a common share.

Coffee Future at Lowest Level Since November, 1908

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Another low record was added to the books of the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange today when the quoted price of Rio coffee for March delivery dropped to the lowest level since November, 1908. The future dropped from 5.04 cents a pound at the close yesterday to 4.97 cents.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

As of Jan. 1, 15,000,000 American homes were equipped with radio sets of all types, Radio Retailing reports in its annual survey. Retail sales of radio equipment for home use last year reached a total value of $500,951,000, against an aggregate of $842,548,000 for 1929, the peak year in the industry.

Effective March 1, National Cash Register plants will be placed on a four day week, supplanting the present three day schedule. Improvement in general business andthe necessity to build up an inventory for the spring sales campaign are said to be the reasons for the increased rate.

Stone & Webster Engineering corporation has received a contract from the Southern California Edison company to design and construct a 94,000 kilowatt addition to the Edison company's steam plant at Long Beach, Cal. The work amounts to approximately $7,000,000.

A contract calling for deliveries to Kentucky-West Virginia Gas company of 2,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas per day for the remainder of the present winter and of 5,000,000 feet daily next winter, has been entered into by Wayne United Gas company.

The New York Telephone company has added $3,492,295 to its budget for new construction, it was announced by the company today, making the total appropriations for the first two months of the year $9,215,385.

Total volume of life insurance in force at the end of 1930 was estimated at $108,500,000,000, or an increase of 5 per cent during the year, and 100 per cent above the volume in force at the end of 1922, according to the Wells Fargo Bank and Union Trust company.

Wall street hears that Proctor & Gamble company has about completed negotiations for acquisition of the Portsmouth Cotton Oil Refining company, which manufactures a cooking fats refined from cottonseed oil. The purchase will mark the first step Proctor & Gamble has made to increase its sales outlet for its cottonseed cooking oil division.

Gov. Young of the Federal Reserve bank of Boston says that the bottom of the depression has been reached and general business is due for an upward swing. The textile industry shows signs of renewed activity, he states.

The Inland Steel company plans to blow in an additional blast furnace next week, making three of the company's furnaces active. At present Inland is operating at between 55 and 56 per cent of capacity.

PRUDENTIAL HAS PEAK YEAR FOR NEW BUSINESS

Surpassing all of its own records for new paid for business in a single year, the Prudential Insurance Company of America shows a gain or more than 4¾ per cent above the figures reported for the year 1929. The company ended the year 1930 with a total amount of insurance in force of $15,300,000,000, an increase during 1930 of $990,680,000.

Edward D. Duffield, president of the Prudential, in commenting on the 1930 record, said today:

"We realize that the year under review was a difficult one for many of our policy holders and that they have necessarily had to make sacrifices to meet their premium payments. During this period the hundreds of millions of dollars we delivered as claim settlements reached many homes where death had come at a time of unusual want.

"Fortunately, the number of persons gainfully employed is many times the number temporarily unemployed, and it should encourage all concerned to know that in a year when conditions generally were unfavorable we were able to be useful and to lay the foundation for even greater service in the years ahead."

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, Feb. 27.—The bears got after the stock market again today, but no great harm was done. The close found leading shares off 1 to 2 points as a rule, but the rank and file were no worse than irregular, with enough important gains to balance the few sharp setbacks to be found recorded here and there throughout the list.

The chief losers were issues which have been most active on the current rise. Some measure of the reaction was no doubt due to profit taking, but evidences of selling pressure were conspicuous against various key issues such as Radio corporation, Westinghouse, and General Electric, and at times against the whole list in an effort to bring about a real break.

Resistance Begins at Noon.

The first of a series of selling attacks developed in the first hour and threatened for a spell to unsettle the situation generally. Toward noon, however, resistance began to tighten and from then on up to the last hour, when selling gained the upper hand, price movements see-sawed about uncertainly as the advantage veered first to this side and then to that. It has been a long time since the opposing professional factions have locked horns in such a determined tug of war.

Which is by way of seeing that a difference of opinion seems to be developing in the financial district as to the future trend of the market, what with the talk of a "necessary reaction" on the one hand and a hard headed conviction that the advance will continue indefinitely on the other.

Contrary to the rule of the last two or three weeks there were no outstanding performers in today's show. The general list seemed to follow the leadership of United States Steel, American Can and others of their set for the most part, but it had to go through some rather confused gyrations to do it.

U. S. Steel Has Small Loss.

Steel, for instance—trading ex dividend—opened at 149¾, pushed up to 151, and then dropped back to 148⅝, leaving it with a net loss of five-eighths on the day. Can swung between a high of 127 and a low of 124½, closing at 124⅝, also off five eighths. Western Union, after being ahead a point or so at one time, finished with a loss of 3⅝. Westinghouse never was able to get going good and its closing sale reflected a drop of 2¾ points from the final of yesterday.

Among other pacemakers of the advance, Consolidated Gas finished with a loss of more than a point. Eastman Kodak was down 4, American and Foreign Power, 2⅝; General Electric, 1½; Radio corporation, ⅞, and Johns-Manville an even point.

Auburn Auto had to give up 4⅛ points of the gains it has been piling up in such spectacular fashion for the last month, and International Business Machine, which has had its sensational runups, took a tumble of 7 points on a single transaction.

Rail Issues Slow.

Most of the railroad issues found the going too steep, laboring as they are under the additional handicap of disappointing January earnings now coming to light. Frisco and Rock Island were hurt, too, by expectation of dividend reductions, the former being especially weak on reports that its dividend will be halved at the next meeting. Atlantic Coast Line, on the other hand, which is seldom very active, distinguished itself by a jump of 7 points.

Diamond Match was quite strong, moving up some 2 points, but later giving up about half its early gain. Other issues making their marks on the upside included Kroger Grocery Stores, Spiegel May, International Silver, International Harvester, and Pere Marquette, up 2 to 3 points.

Amustment shares held fairly steady and motor accessories did better than some of the rest.

WALGREEN GETS CORNER: DAMEN AND LAWRENCE

Will Open New Drug Store About May 1.

BY AL CHASE.

One of Ravenswood's strategic corners, the northeast intersection of Lawrence and Damen avenues, improved with a three story building, is to have a Walgreen drug store as a result of a lease negotiated yesterday by Gus C. Manos for the chain drug store concern with the owners, Nick, Gus, and Spiros Kamberos. The Walgreen company leased the corner store 24x55, and basement of the same size for a ten year term at a graduated rental. The store is to be completely remodeled and the lessee probably will open the new drug store about May 1. The Walgreen company now has in the neighborhood of 420 drug stores in Chicago and other cities.

Details of the recent announcement that the Walgreen company planned a store in Elmhurst at the northwest corner of York and 1st were announced yesterday. The 60x80 site was purchased from the First National bank of Elmhurst for a reported $50,000. The building, to be erected by I. Schuman, will contain four stores and nine offices. The Suburban Realty company, John J. Thermon and Gus C. Manos, were brokers.

More Realty Board Changes.

Edward A. Dato of Krenn & Dato has been appointed by Mark Levy, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, to succeed Frank R. Mason on the board of governors of the subdividers' division. Percy Wilson, chairman, announces the appointment of the Grover C. Elmore as chairman of the division's publicity committee, with Henry G. Zander Jr., H. Roy Berry, L. H. Mills, and Joseph H. Feuerborn as members.

Henry G. Zander Jr. has been named chairman and William Wilhartz vice chairman of the 1930 bylaws committee. The members of the committee are Henry A. Babcock, George E. Bliss, Arthur C. Kussman, Harold L. Reeve, and Homer H. Schneider.

New Home for Indian Hill.

Construction has begun on a fireproof house in Indian Hill estates for Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Wagoner of La Grange. The building will be of steel, concrete, and other fireproof materials. In addition to being insulated against heat and cold it will have an automatically controlled ventilating system. Gas will be used for heating and a refrigeration unit may be installed for cooling the house during the summer months.

The residence is being built on froquois road in the new section of Indian Hill estates. Mr. Wagoner is a special engineer for the Automatic Electric company. George Fred Keck is architect. E. A. Grimm of Bills Realty, Inc., was broker. A. N. McMillen of the Firesafe Homes bureau is the contractor.

U. S. TREASURY ISSUES REGAIN PART OF LOSSES

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The bond market got a load off its chest today when pressure against government obligations was lifted, permitting long term treasury issues to regain a little lost ground. Treasuries advanced from 3-16ths to ½ a point from the week's bottom reached yesterday.

Corporate domestic issues paid little heed to the better tone of governments. It again remained for the foreign list to provide the market with some relief from its dullness. Both European and Latin America bonds shared in the improvement. New 1931 highs were reached by Berlin City 6½s, Berlin City Electric 6s, German 6½s, German Central Agricultural Bank 7s, Cordoba City 7s, Pirelli Co. of Italy 7s, and Budapest City 6s.

Australian bonds were buoyant on the clear cut statement of the Australian government denying any intention to repudiate its external debt. There were gains of a point or more in several South Americans, notably, Rio Grande do Sul 7s, Uruguay 6s of 1960; Brazil 6½s, Chile 6s and 7s, and Argentine 6s of September, 1960, the latter at a new years high.

Hogs dropped in value yesterday when eastern demand narrowed considerably. Outsiders bought only 5,000 head, the smallest number of the year for Friday. Light and underweight hogs declined 10@25c, while a big share of the supply of heavy butchers sold at steady prices.

Light butchers and medium weights ruled weak to 10c lower. The extreme top was unchanged at $7.50, while the general average moved down 5c at $7.05. Larger houses filled fair sized orders at the general decline and 4,000 were left at the close.

Hog Futures Bid $8.00.

Lightweight hogs for April and May delivery were bid $8.00 on the futures market yesterday, but the lowest offer in these months was $8.50. March light were bid $7.50. On the "to arrive" market lightweights for Monday's delivery were bid $7.50. Hogs averaging 210@260 lbs were bid $7.25 for today's delivery, and 260@310 lb averages were bid $7.00.

Yesterday's small supply of 2,000 cattle sold at mostly steady prices. Demand continued narrow and the undertone was not strong, in spite of the fact that the general market is at the lowest level since April of 1922.

Salesmen are advising the country to continue to hold down supplies until the market can recover some strength. Long yearlings averaging 1,017@1,157 lbs topped the price list at $10.00 yesterday.

Lamb prices recovered most of the recent losses on yesterday's active market, the top at $9.00 equaling the highest of the week. Medium and weighty stock failed to recover all of the loss recorded on recent sessions, but were more active sellers on yesterday's bulge.

Prime 95 lb lambs sold at $8.75, and stock without fleece reached $8.25. Aged sheep and yearlings were steady. Shearing lambs held firm, some 72 lb averages bringing $8.25. Sheep receipts at Chicago this week show a decrease of 17 per cent compared with a week ago.

Receipts at Chicago.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 3,000 cattle, 11,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep, against 78 cattle, 7,776 hogs, and 7,920 sheep the previous Saturday, and 98 cattle, 12,191 hogs, and 8,512 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 50,000 to 76,000. S. Lund marked 76,000; F. Reneker, 75,000; H. Pattison, 72,000; W. T. Reneker, R. B. Ellis, and G. W. Chandler, 65,000; E. S. Waterbury and A. G. Welhener, 62,000; F. M. Sherwood, 61,000; J. M. Waters, 60,000; F. W. Young, 55,000, and E. Kennedy, 50,000.

GILLETTE CO. DEFERS ACTION ON DIVIDEND; ESTIMATE EARNINGS

New York, Feb. 27.—Directors of Gillette Safety Razor company today deferred action on the common dividend, pending such time as full benefits from the merger with Auto-Strop would become known. The stock had been on a $4 annual basis.

Preliminary estimates of the Gillette company indicate combined consolidated earnings of the company and Auto-Strop for 1930 were equal to about $3.40 a common share, against $4.44 a share on the same share basis in 1929. The directors, in a letter to stockholders, said that certain manufacturing equipment and processes used by Auto-Strop will be installed in Gillette plants and when this has been completed "costs should be materially reduced and the quality of the product further improved."

Commercial Solvents corporation directors announced that action on a stock dividend for 1931 has been deferred until the November meeting of the board. Last year the company paid 4 per cent in stock in two dividends of 2 per cent each. The regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents in cash was authorized.

Directors of Kleinert Rubber company have omitted the quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on common stock.

Wall street heard today that two railroads which recently deferred action on their common stock dividends will declare reduced payments at their meetings next Wednesday. The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, which has been on an annual $7 basis, is likely to vote a disbursement of $1.25, equivalent to $5 a year reports said. Directors of the St. Louis and San Francisco are expected to declare a $1 dividend on the common against previously quarterly payments of $2.

WHEAT TRADERS IGNORE U. S. PLAN TO EXPORT GRAIN

March Product Sells at "Pegged" Price.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat traders yesterday generally ignored the announcement of the previous day that the Stabilization corporation would sell American cash grain abroad in an effort to relieve the shortage in elevator room in prospect at leading ports. While there was a break at one time that carried the July off 1c to 64¾c, the lowest figure since Jan. 25, and within 2¾c of the inside figure of the season, the decline was largely in sympathy with corn.

Failure of foreign markets to show any great uneasiness over the prospect of competition with the United States had some effect on sentiment locally, and there was no material pressure on the new crop futures, which closed unchained to ¼c lower, with July finishing at 65⅜@65½c and September at 66⅛c.

Sells at "Pegged" Price.

For the first time in a number of weeks, March wheat sold at the "pegged" price, old style being 79c and the new 79⅛c, with resting orders presumably from the government agency preventing the market from declining more than a fraction. March finished at 79c, the "pegged" price and the same as Thursday, while the May was ¼c higher at 81⅞c.

Spreading operations in wheat futures between Chicago and Winnipeg, the latter being sold, caused the latter to develop weakness at one time, but it rallied as soon as the pressure let up and finished ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, with July closing at 61⅞c. Liverpool just about reflected the decline in North American markets after the former closed Thursday and was 1@1¼d lower at the last, with increased pressure of Australian and Russian grain a factor. July in Liverpool closed at 65c.

Export Sale at Gulf.

A small amount of hard winter wheat was understood to have been sold for export at the Gulf on Thursday, trade gossip indicating around 75,000 bu having been disposed of. Antwerp cabled that No. 1 hard winter had been sold there on Thursday at equal to 10c under Chicago May f. o. b. Gulf, or about in line with the rumored figure of 72c that has prevailed of late. This was 20c per bu above the price of the May delivery in Buenos Aires, where the close was at 52c. Around 100,000 bu Manitobas were reported as sold for export during the day.

Reports that Kansas City banks were asking 20c per bu margin on cash wheat in that market were ignored by the trade, as it was felt that this was largely a readjustment from an old to a new crop basis, and all markets are expected to have to go through the same process in the immediate future. One Chicago bank is reported as offering to loan only 60c per bu on cash wheat at the present time, which is about in line with the normal amount that could be secured on the basis of price at which the July delivery is selling at the present time.

New Low on May Corn.

Liquidation by scattered longs in March corn carried the near-by future and the May down to a new low for the season, the May selling off 1¼c to 62¾c, but the break brought in short covering and buying by holders of bids and a rally of around ¾c from the bottom followed, with the close ¼@⅝c lower on the nearby months, while September was ¼c higher. March finished at 60⅜@60¾c; May, 63⅛@63⅝c; July, 65⅜@65⅞c, and September, 65⅜@65½c. Buenos Aires was ¼c higher at the close, with March and May at 32¾c.

As Monday will be first delivery day on March contracts, there has been a general movement on the part of the speculative element in all grains to get out of the March and into the deferred deliveries. Country offerings of corn to arrive were fair, with purchases of 55,000 bu indicated, including 35,000 bu from other terminals at the lowest basis on the crop as compared with the May.

Oats Near Season's Low.

Longs in March oats sold that delivery, which dropped to 30⅝c, or within ⅛c of the lowest figure of the season. Part of the March sold was replaced by purchases of May at 1⅜c premium for the latter. Futures finished ½@⅝c lower, with March, 30⅜c; May, 32¼c; July, 32⅜c, and September, 32⅞c. There were unconfirmed rumors of some export business having been put through in Canadian oats and barley.

Rye was unsettled, breaking early, only to rally with wheat and close ¼c higher to ⅛c lower. March finished at 38⅝c; May, 41½c, and July, 42⅝c. There was said to be an export inquiry in the market for Canadian rye, but no sales were reported.

COTTON SENTIMENT MIXED

There is a feeling in certain quarters in the cotton trade that the farm board has been selling cotton on bulges for several days. They also expect a somewhat similar announcement regarding disposition of the farm board's cotton as has been put out for wheat.

Lower Liverpool cables were ignored in the early trading and prices had a fair advance, only to meet profit taking on the advance and decline, with the close around the lowest level of the day. Net losses on futures in Chicago were 10@12 points, with other markets off 8@12 points. Spots declined 10 points, New York being 11.15 cents, New Orleans 10.80 cents, Galveston and Houston 11 cents. Liverpool closed 10@12 points lower, with spot sales 6,000 bales. Prices follow:

SAVINGS INCREASE.

The year of "widespread depression" closed with deposits in savings banks $592,000,000 in excess of the 1929 savings.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

A limited demand was reported for Manitoba wheat as the result of the action of the American farm board that it would sell American wheat abroad, and sales of around 100,000 bu were estimated in all positions. According to the gossip of the trade, around 75,000 bu hard winter wheat was sold at the gulf, presumably on Thursday. Antwerp cabled that No. 1 hard had been sold there at equal to 10c under Chicago May f. o. b. the gulf, but around 11½c under would have been necessary to interest buyers yesterday.

Cash oats basis was steady to ¼c higher, with No. 2 white ½@¾c under and No. 3 white 1¼@1½c under May. No. 2 rye was quoted at May price to 7c over.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

An increasing disposition to work on the short side of wheat is more apparent to close observers. Traders constantly are looking for new moves on the part of the farm board and in the main do not believe there is anything to induce buying for more than a small upturn. The farm board situation has been somewhat cleaned up, but the trade is constantly afraid of new announcements, although it is said there will be none in the immediate future.

There were export bids for wheat from Europe to the farm board. It is said they offered no wheat on Thursday night, but the bids were said to be close to a working basis.

An estimate of 700,000,000 bu of corn on farms was said to have been made by a private statistician. Last year there was 987,000,000 bu, as indicated by the government report. Private reports are expected Monday.

Exports of wheat and flour from Canada since Aug. 1 aggregate 138,000,000 bu, as estimated by Broomhall. This does not include actual shipments in bond. This, he figures, would leave a theoretical balance of 233,700,000 bu available for export for the new 23 weeks, including amount carried over at the end of July this season. Allowing a minimum of 50,000,000 bu carryover there is available in Canada sufficient wheat to export approximately 8,000,000 bu weekly until the end of July.

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

FORDS

When buying a used car the average man must depend largely on the dealer for the facts relative to its condition. If the car is misrepresented the innocent buyer is generally out of luck.

No one in our organization is permitted to state other than actual facts when showing a car, and all reconditioned cars sold by us carry the same warranty as new automobiles. J. J. Wright, with a record of 19 years in the Ford business, assumes personal responsibility for them.

Saturday and Sunday we are offering a specially selected lot of used Fords, all models, priced very low and on easy terms. It will pay you to look them over.

Come early!

J. J. Wright Motor Co.
242-250 W. 55TH-ST.
